Whitehall, March 18.

With this day receive the confirmation of the vice we told you our Letters from Marsilla's of the 10 instant brought us, of the burning in the Port of Tripoly of four Men of War belonging to those Corsairs, by Sir John Narborough, Admiral of His Majesties Fleet in the Mediterranean; by Letters from himself dated the 28 of January last, off of Maltha, which having been written in haste, as he was in the farther pursued of his design against those Corsairs, give only this short account, as follows:

These are to let you know, That on the 14 instant in the Night, I burnt four of the Tripoliane ships of War of considerable force, viz. the white Crowned-Eagle mounted with 50 Guns, the Lookingglass with 30, the Santa Clara with 24, and the French Perach with 20, as they lay under the Castle and Walls of Tripoly, being all that were in Port. It was done by a surprize by our Boats, commanded in chief by my Lieutenant Cloudisly Shoulsé; he took the Enemies Guard Boat, and in it one Turk and one Moor, the rest having been killed; I bless God I did not lose one man in the action; I am now off of Maltha, and am standing again over for Tripoly, and doubt not but by the help of God to destroy more of those Corsairs; I have with me the Henrietta, Portmouth, and two Frigates, which I met with here. This I write in haste, but by the next will give you an account at large.

Algiers, Febr. 22. This Government continues firm in its resolution to maintain the Peace and Friendship it hath with the English, inviolable; and as well the Dey as Bobba Hoffman the General and Governor (who is in great esteem and authority here) have publicly declared, That whoever of their Officers acts contrary there-unto, shall be punished with the utmost severity: and upon the complaint that hath been made, that an English Merchant ship being Chased by one of these Men of War, the English supposing him a Sally Man, ran their Vessel ashore, and left her; and that thereupon the Algerines took possession of her, and carried her so farther, where the Captain sold her, the Dey and Governor have sworn to cut off the head of the Captain, so soon as they can catch him, and in the mean time have dispatched their Letters to the Governor of Tetuan, to seize the money, the Ship and Goods were sold for there, in order to restore it to the Master of the English Vessel, who attends here for that purpose. The Captain who some months since took out of two English Vessels in the Channel, some ut. b Passengers, will likewise be severely punished. These Men of War, have lately brought in several Prizes, viz. a Dutch Merchant ship of 300 Tuns, laden with Rice and Currants from Venice, five Portugueses, two laden with Sugar, Tobacco and Cacao, one from Fial with several Brazile Goods, one from Terceira, in which was the Governor of that Island going home for Lisbon, and the fifth from Brazile with divers rich Goods, and a Man of War of Majorca. The Golden Horse, a brave new Ship, and five of these Men of War more commanded by the Deys son, who was made Admiral at his going out, met some time since with one Portuguese Man of War, with whom they had a very sharp Rencontre, insomuch that about 400 Turks and Moors were killed; and upon his return home, the Dey being dissatisfied with his carriage in that action, took the Flag from him, and gave it to Aly Rais Canary, formerly Admiral.

Legorn, March 7. This day arrived a Vessel in ten dayes from Messina; the Master tells us, That upon his coming from thence, News was brought thither, that Sir John Narborough, who commands a Squadron of English Men of War in these Seas, had burnt in the Port of Tripoly four Men of War belonging to those Corsairs, which was all that were then in Port; That Sir John Narborough was returned to Maltha, to take with him such of his Squadron that should happen to be there; and to go in search of the Tripolins, which are sailed towards Alexandria: the Master adds, That Lieutenant Admiral de Ruyter was arrived at Melazzo, but that the French Fleet being much stronger than he, it was believed he would not make any attempt upon the Enemy, till the ships he expected from Holland for his reinforcements, were joined with him; That in the mean time, the Viceroy of Sicily made preparations to attack Messina on the side of the Land.

Copenhagen, March 14. The King intends to go and encamp with his Army at Elfenour, so soon as the season will permit, and in the mean time the ground has been designed, and several Troops have been sent thither to work for the making an intrenchment round it. His Majesty has conferred the command of Mareschal de Camp General, on the Prince Adolphus, Duke of Holstein Ploen, which was possessed lately by the Count of Scaek deceased. The contrary winds have been the cause that the Squadron of Men of War which lies ready to put to Sea, is not yet sailed; they have orders to Cruise in the Baltick, to hinder the Suedes from sending any succors to Pomeran, as we are told they intend to do, so soon as their Ports are open, which are now shut up with the Ice.

Strasbourg, March 16. Yesterday and this day we have advice, That the French Troops which are quartered in Burgundy, Lorraine, and the Upper Alsatia, begin to move, and that their design is to form forthwith a flying Camp near Huguenaw, to observe the Imperialists, who assemble at Lauterburgh, and seem to have an eye upon Philipsburgh; and we are assured, that so soon as their Cavalry can subsist in the field, that the French Army will march towards the Rhine, and that in the interim the Mareschal de Montmorency, who is to command it, is daily expected in Lorraine. From Basle they write, That the French Troops which are lodged in the Baillages of Thannes, Altkirck, Ferette, &c. have orders to march towards Brisac. The Bridge of Boats which the Imperialists had caused to be made at Wolfach, hath been brought into the Rhine, and is to be carried down towards Philipsburgh, towards which place as well the Troops of the Emperor as the Empire, which were quartered in four Neighbourhood, are marched, in order

order to, the attacking the Fort which lies before Philipsburgh. The Sieur Verjus, Envoy from France, hath not as yet made any Proposition to our Magistrates, so that we know not hitherto what we have to hope or fear from that side. They write from Bussweiler, the Capital of the County of Hannau Lichtenberg, that the French have commanded the Boors of that Countrey to bring all their Corn, Hay and Straw to Haguenaw, for the subsistence of the Flying Army they intend to have in that Neighborhood.

Cologne, March 21. Yesterday our Elector received by an Express, that the French were going to quit and demolish the Cittadel of Lidge. Our last Letters from Strasbourg told us, That all the French Troops which are quartered in the Upper Alsatia, had orders to march to Brifac; That on the other side the Imperialists assembled about Lauterburgh; That the Marquis of Baden, General of the Imperial Artillery, had been with a good Body of Horse and Foot near Philipsburgh, and having put Garisons into several Castles and Towns near that place, returned back, and had repassed the Rhine at Lauterburgh, from whence it is supposed that the Imperialists intend to block up Philipsburgh again. Monsieur Verjus has not yet made any Proposals to the Magistrates of Strasburgh, which people are in great expectation of.

Brussels, March 24. The French Troops continue to march towards our Frontiers, without that we can yet penetrate into their design, that is, when they intend to open the Campaigne. The French we hear are building more small Frigats at Tournay, though we do not yet know what particular use they intend to put them to. The Sieur Montal, Governor of Charleroy, is gone for Guise, to give some orders there. Our Governor General, the Duke of Villa Hermosa, has commanded all the Boors to carry their Corn into the strong places that lie next to them. From Lorraine they still write, That the Most Christian King was expected at Metz, but that he would not make any long stay there. The Letters from those parts speak much of the design of the French to retake Treves, which we do not make much account of; for besides that there is a Garison of 7000 Men, the Confederates will have a flying Army of about 10000 Men, which will act near the Moselle, by way of diversion; to which the Elector of Brandenburgh will contribute 2000 Horse. From Spire of the 17 instant we are told, that the Marquis of Baden having received an account that the French of Philipsburgh had burnt Bruchsal, immediately commanded Major General Schultz to pass the Rhine at Lauterburgh with several Troops; That the next day, being the 15, the Marquis followed himself with some other Troops, and so together advanced towards Philipsburgh, near which place he held his station all night, till he had put Garisons into all the Castles and Bourgs near that place, and then returned again to Lauterburgh; so that we now again look upon Philipsburgh as blocked up, and make no question but it will be formally besieged very suddenly. This day, according to our advices from Lidge, the French have blown up the Fortifications of that Cittadel; many people here very much wonder they quit a Post of so much importance, and believe that they will find the mis of it. P. S. We just now receive Letters from Germany, which inform us of the death of the Electors of Bavaria, which it's thought may occasion some change of affairs in that Court, at least we here would promise our selves so.

Idem. The French Troops continue to march towards Philipville, Marieburgh and Charleroy; in which last place great quantities of Corn have been laid up sufficient to maintain the Army for a month. From Aeth they tell us, That they are baking there great quantities of Bread, and that they have laid several Bridges over the River Scheldt, between Oudenard and Ghent. The French Cavalry is to Rendezvous the 26 instant at Guise, and Monsieur de Montal is gone to be present at it. Yesterday came hither two Deputies from Binch, to desire that Town may be permitted to remain Neutral, which the Most Christian King has already granted them. From Liege, of the 22 instant, we are told, That all things being ready for the blowing up that Cittadel, this day was appointed for it, but that at the pressing instance of the Elector of Cologne, and of the Magistrates of Liege, the Marschal d'Estrades had given orders for the deferring it, till the return of a Courier which he sent to know if the King would not please to spare the outworks of the Cittadel, which serve for a wall to the Town on that side.

Hague, March 24. His Highness, we hear, has given strict orders to all the Forces to be at their Rendezvous at Langstraet, upon the sixth of the next month. The Duke of Qsnabrug is said to be in a readiness to march with his Army. Besides the eight Men of War my last told you were sailed out of the Texel, there are six more gone from Zealand, mounted with 20 Guns each, on the same design.

Paris, March 25. To morrow will be held a general Review, and then within three or four dayes the Infantry will begin to march towards Flanders. It is now discoursed again at Court, that the Prince of Condé will command the Army in Flanders this Campaigne, and that the King will go to Metz in Lorraine. It is said that his Majesty has commanded that the necessary orders be forthwith dispatched for the assembling the Ban and Arrierman of this Kingdom. The Marquis of Beauhune will now part very suddenly for Poland, whither he carries the Order of the Holy Ghost for that King, which will be accompanied with several rich Presents from their Majesties. There are Letters from Messina, which make mention of a Conspiracy that had been discovered there, for the letting in the Spaniards.

Rye, March 16. On Saturday last, past by this Port to the Westward, 12 Sail of Dutch ships, of which 8 or 9 were Men of War going towards the Mediterranean, to reinforce the Lieutenant Admiral de Ruyter.
