Hague, November 10. Yesterday Noon the Prince and Princess of Orange made their publick Entry into this Town. The Proceffion was very magnificent, and in great Order, notwithstanding the prodigious Affluence of People, which had crowded from all Part: of this Country to see it. The Magistrates of the Hague received and complimented their Highnesses under a triumphal Arch, erected at the Side they came into Town by. The Burghers were under Arms, as was likewise the Garrison; and the Prince of Weilbourg and Prince Lewis of Brunswick marched in the Train at the Head of their respective Squadrons of Guards. The Artillery was fired at the same Time from the Ramparts; the Beils rung; and the Stadtholder, with his Royal Bride, were conducted to their Apartments amidst the Acclamations of the People. The whole Town was magnificently illuminated at Night; and, notwithstanding the prodigious Crowd, not the least Disorder or Accident happened. This Evening their Highnesses make their Appearance, for the first Time, at the Franch Theatre; and on Thursday next the Prince of Orange will give a Ball and Supper at the Old Court, with which the publick Festival will conclude.
