And to thirty-four Private Bills.

St. James's, March 21.

The following Address of the Chancellor, Masters, and Scholars of the University of Oxford, has been presented to His Majesty by the Rev. Dr. Wetherell, Vice-Chancellor of the said University, being introduced by the Lord of His Majesty's Bed-Chamber in Waiting: Which Address His Majesty was pleased to receive very graciously.

To the King's most Excellent Majesty.

Most Gracious Sovereign,

WE your Majesty's most loyal and faithful Subjects, the Chancellor, Masters, and Scholars of the University of Oxford, in full Convocation assembled, humbly desire to approach your Throne with Hearts full of dutiful Affection to your Royal Person, and impressed with a most grateful Sense of the invaluable Blessings derived to these Nations from the Preservation and free Enjoyment of those Civil and Religious Rights, which have been the great and constant Objects of your Majesty's paternal Care and Conduct.

The Interests of true Religion and Liberty, so essentially interwoven with our excellent Constitution, claim the peculiar Attention of this Seminary, which has long subsisted under their Influence, and can only flourish under their Protection.

But when the sacred Name of Liberty is prostituted to the Designs of Faction and Sedition, and converted into an Engine of Party Rage to destroy that glorious Fabric, of which it is the Ornament and Support; such unjustifiable Measures become more dangerous and alarming by the specious and fair Appearances under which they are disguised; and, unless seasonably defeated, may terminate in that Ruin of our happy Constitution, which the sad Experience of former Times has taught us to dread.

We cannot therefore, without Anxiety and concern, behold the repeated Attempts formed by Men, whose Clamours against imaginary Abuses of their Constitutional Rights and Privileges, under Pretence of preserving inviolate our Civil Liberties, tend to raise a Spirit of Discord and Tumult among your faithful Subjects, in open Defiance of Justice and legal Authority, and in Violation of the Peace and good Order of Government, so happily established under your Majesty's Royal Protection.

We have seen the Course of executive Justice daringly obstructed, and every Part of the legislative Power insulted and reviled; we have seen every Art of Malice and Falshood employed to destroy all Reverence for Magistracy and Confidence in Government; we see the daily and unremitting Indignities offered to the most venerable and sacred Personages: We therefore think ourselves bound, by every Tie, social, civil, and religious, by every Principle of conscientious Duty, to express our hearty Abhorrence of such violent and unconstitutional Proceedings; and to assure your Majesty, that it has ever been, and still is, the constant Object of our unwearied Care, to instil into the Minds of the Youth of this Place, the genuine Principles of Religion and Liberty; the Security of which (under God) essentially depends upon the Safety of your Majesty's Person, the Dignity of your Crown, and the Authority of the Laws; in the due and vigorous Execution of which true Constitutional Liberty consists, and by which alone it can be supported.

And we farther beg Leave to assure your Majesty, that nothing shall be wanting on our Part to discountenance Irreligion and Profaneness. We have been always sensible of their evil Tendency to sap the Principles of Loyalty to the King and Obedience to Magistracy, and to dissolve every Tie of Duty, Affection, and Allegiance: But we are now fully convinced of their growing Influence, by the dangerous Associations of Men, who, under the plausible Pretext of supporting our Rights and Privileges, are, by their Principles and Practices, the real Subverters of them.

The following Address of the Chancellor, Masters, and Scholars of the University of Cambridge, has been presented to His Majesty by the Rev. Dr. Hinchcliffe, Vice-Chancellor of the said University, being introduced by the Lord of His Majesty's Bed-Chamber in Waiting: Which Address His Majesty was pleased to receive very graciously.

To the King's most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Chancellor, Masters, and Scholars of the University of Cambridge.

WE your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal Subjects, the Chancellor, Masters, and Scholars of your University of Cambridge, humbly beg Leave to express the grateful Sense we have of your Majesty's constant and unwearied Attention to promote the Happiness of all your People.
