Lisbon, June 14. N the 6th Instant, being his most Faith-ful Majesty's Birth-day, there was a great Court at the Palace of Nossa Senhora D'Ajuda, to compliment their Majesties and the Royal Family on that Occasion.

On the 3d Instant preceding, the following Gendemen, viz. Messieurs Ciera, Fransini, and D'Alabella, the First of whom is Prefect of the College of Nobles, and the Latter Professors of Mathematics and Natural Philosophy in this City, were lest by his most Faithful Majesty's Command, to the Palace of Massa, to take an Observation there of the Transit of the Planet Venus over the Disk of the Sun, and also of the Eclipse of that Luminary, which happened between the Hours of Five and Seven the next Morning; but the Atmosphere was Seven the next Morning; but the Atmosphere was so cloudy, that none could be taken there; never theles, very satisfactory ones were made by the subtress of the Oratory of the Convent of Nossa Senhora das Necessidades in this City.

Turin, June 17. On Sunday last the 11th lastant his Imperial Majesty arrived here about a Quarter before Ten o'Clock in the Morning, at-ended by Count Dietrichstein, Grand Ecuyer, and Light of the Golden Fl.ece, Baron Reischach, Light of the Golden Fl.ece, Baron Reischach, and General Count Nostitz, two of his Imperial Lighty's Chamberlains. The Emperor went, immediately on his Arrival, to the Apartments of the Dake of Chablais, and, after staying some Time tin his Royal Highness, made a Visit to the King of Sardinia. His Imperial Majesty then retired to the House of the Count Khevenhuller, his Minister a this Court, where all the Foreign Ministers in 2 at house of the Count Knevennutter, his withinter at his Court, where all the Foreign Ministers in a boy soon after visited him; but his Imperial Machy was so much fatigued with his Journey, that they had not the Honour of being admitted to his section. The Emperor dined at Court with his Sadinian Majesty, and in the Asserbace, was at the Surdinian Majesty, and in the Asternoon was at the Cash in the same Chariot with the King of Sardinia, where the great Number of fine Equipages, which amounted to Two Hundred and Forty, had a tery grand Estable Has Surged that Wight with t rery grand Effect. He supped that Night with Sardinian Majesty, and retired early.

The next Morning his Imperial Majesty went to the Academy, the University, &c. and dined aftrivards at Court. He was again at the Corfo in the Afternoon, and in the Evening at a grand Apartant in the Royal Palace. About Eight o'Clock seat in the Royal Palace. About Eight o'Clock if the Foreign Ministers were presented to him by the King of Sardinia, in his Sardinian Majesty's Colet. The Royal Family entered the Closet soon size, when, after a little Time, a Pair of Folding-bon were thrown open, discovering a superb Galler, and a grand Suite of Apartments very finely stoned and illuminated. The Emperor, his Sardinian Majesty, and the Royal Family, attended by the social Ministers, walked through them all, with the Brilliancy of the Appearance. Great Subsets of Pages were employed in carrying Resident. Take Brilliancy of the Appearance. Great Vanhers of Pages were employed in carrying Residents to the Company, which was very number and richly drefied. About half an Hour the Ten o'Clock the Emperor, with his Sardinian light, and the Royal Family, withdrew; and in did, and the Royal Family, with his Sardinian short Time the Company retired.

On Tuesday Morning the Emperor visited the said, the Arsenal, and the Souterreins, which are reckoned the finest Works of the Kind in Euare reckoned the finest Works of the Kind in Europe, and was pleased to express the highest Satisfaction at every Thing he saw. In the Evening the Grand Theatre was illuminated, to which the Emperor was conducted by the King of Sardinia, attended by the Royal Family and the whole Court. The Theatre, which of itself is esteemed to be the finest in Europe, was lighted, besides the usual Lustres, with Eighteen Hundred Wax Lights, ranged according to the different Orders of Architecture. The Magnissicence of the Theatre, the Order and Brilliancy of the Lights, the Splendor of der and Brilliancy of the Lights, the Splendor of the Court, the vall Number of Company, the Richneis of the Dreffes, all made the most noble and superb Appearance that can be imagined. The Entertainment was an Opera; after the First Act was introduced a grand Ballet, during which a very fine

Fountain was playing on the Stage. About Eleven, the Emperor and the Court retired.

On Wednesday the Emperor, attended by their Royal Highnesses the Dukes of Savoy and Chablais, went to see the Stupiniggi, a Hunting-Seat of the King of Sardinia, very pleasantly situated, about Five Miles from hence. His Imperial Majesty was very much delighted with the sine Disposition of the Buildings, the Richness and Elegancy of the Apartments, which were all defigned and ornamented in the best Taste by the King of Sardinia himself. The Emperor returned hither to Dinner and was again at the Theatre at Night, where he gave a remarkable Proof of his Politeness and Affability, by visiting the Roy of every Lady on Con Scillage. by visiting the Box of every Lady on one Side of

On Thursday his Imperial Majesty, attended by the same noble Personages as on Wednesday, visited the Veneria, another Country Palace of his Sardinian Majesty, and was particularly struck with the grand Gallery there, and the Stables, containing I wo Hundred Horses belonging to the King of Sardinia. At Night his Imperial Majesty was again Sardinia. At Night his Imperial Majesty was again at the Theatre, when he visited every Box on the other Side of the House.

Yesterday the Emperor went to see the Superga, a fine Convent for Twelve Abbots, built by Victor Amadeus on a Hill just above the Town, and in the Evening condescended to be present a little Time at a grand Assembly given by the Spanish

This Morning, at Four o'Clock, his Imperial Majesty, accompanied by their Royal Highnesses the Dukes of Savoy and Chablais, and General Nossitz, set out to view the Fortifications on the Mountains, which form a Chain of Defence all round this City. To-night he lies at Exiles, To-morrow at Pignerol. and returns on Monday to morrow at Pignerol, and returns on Monday to Turin; and it is thought that his Imperial Majesty will leave this Place on Tuesday, and on his Return

The Emperor's Affability and Condescension have gained him the universal Admiration of all Ranks of People in this City.
