our laft we have finished a new Battery, though not without a confiderable loss of Men 3 from whence we batter the Baltion of Turenne, with good effect, infomuch that we have made very great breaches. The 3d initiant it was refolved to attack the Rayelin, which lies between the Balliors of Turenne and the Dauphin ; and 400 Men were appointed for the Affault, commanded by two Captains; about three a clock in the afternoon they made the attack, and without any great difficulty gained the Ravelin; having furprized the Enemy, who being extremely wearied through their thaving been in Arms all the night preceding, and through other fervice, were mostron them affeep ; but out Men not having been well feconded by the Officers, thereto appointed, and the Enemy springing two Mines, and at the fame time making a vigorous Sally, forced them to retire, and to 2bandon elie Ravelin, with the lofs of 150 Men killed and evounded on our part. The last night the Besieged at-tempted again to burn the Fagots and other matters with which we had filled up the Ditch, and hid already fet fire to some, but we quickly quenched it. This afternoon weare told a general Affault will be made as well upon the faid Ravelin ; as upon the other Outworks, and four Regiments are appointed for that pur-pole. The other day our Generals fent an Officer to the Governor the Sieur du Fay, to perfuade him to furrender the place, and avoid the fhedding of more blood, feeing ho was not in expectation of any relief, and that he could not be able to hold out much longer; whom the Governor sent back with this answer, That as for relief he had never expected any, and that if they knew the good condition the place was in, they would fay he could not yet in a long while think of furrendring it.

Hague, Sept. 11. We are here in great expectation of hearing of a Battel between the Armies in Flanders, which according to our laft advices were not far afunder ; and the Letters from our Campadd, that our Generals very much defired an occasion to engage with the Enemy, fo ir mighe be without too great difadvantage. Me are fomewhat furprized at the news we have, that 3000 Munferiam are fallen into Ooff Friegeland, that they have poficifed themfelves of feveral Pofts and Paffes, and that on the 8th initant they made themfelves Mafters of the Fortrefs of Fredenburg, into which they have put two Companies of Foot; the reason of this is faid to be, that they of Ooff Friegeland have not paid the Bishop of Munfter the Money they agreed to pay the last Winrer to be excused from furnishing Winter-quarters; others tell us, that it is to fecure Winter quarters for his Troops when this Campagne is ended. The march of the Lunenburg and Munfter Troops towards the Mofelle is confirmed by our Letters from Hamburg and Bremen, and we hope they will arrive there time enough yet to give the French adiversion before Winter. The Prince of Friezeland, who arrived here fome days fince indifpofed from the Army is returned home. The Princes Court is making ready sgainst his Highnesses return, which many believe will be very speedily. The affair of the Heer de Groot is not yet determined ; it is faid, that he is accused of High Treason against the S are, though at the fame time he is not under any arreft, but is abroad daily.

Charleroy, Sept. 8. The 2d inftant our A my under the command of the Mareschal de Schomberg, removed from Lichtenburg, to the Neighborhood of Tongres, where the Mareschal receiving advice that the Confederates were posted along the Jecker on the other fide of

From the Camp before Philipsburg, Sept. 5. Since Warem, and that they had laid feveral Bridges over the faid River, as if their intention were to approach towards Liege, gave orders for the Army to decamp the next morning by break of day, as was accordingly done, the Duke de Villaroy advancing with 150 Horle to cb ferve the Enemies motions, and the Count de Montal, who was at the heat of the first Line on the right, advancing likewife with fix Squadrons of Horfe, they underflood, that the Enemy having broken their Bridges over the Feeker, were retited in good order, their Baggage having matched the night before; the Duke de Villeroy with his 150 Horfe, marched on the left hand of the Grand Chauffee as far as Thegrine, and the Count de Montal on the right ; and that night our Army came into the Enemies Camp at Waren, who encamped the lamenight at fanche and Orp le Grand, on the Grand Chauffee. The 4th, the Enemy marched again by break of day, an I took their way between Fudoigne and Perwes, where they are polled with all the advantage polfible, having a River before them, and a Moras on their right and left hand. Our Army continued the fifth at Warem, in expectation of the Provisions which our Commissaries were gone to fetch from Liege.

Bruffels, Sept. 11. The 9th inflan: our Army decamped from Torrebaix St Troy, and came that night to Gemblours ; trom whence they marched again yesterday by 3 in the morning, and about break of day underftood that the Enemy marched in Battalia within a League of out left Wing, towards Charleroy ; whereupon our Generals finding it impossible to hinder their passage, without hazarding the Army too far, refolved to turn on the right hand, and fo came to Walheim, where they encamped last night; and this morning our Army marched again to Wavre. We are told, that feven Squadrons of the Enemies Horfe taking an opportunity to attack the Dutch and Olnabrug Baggage, while our Army marched the 9th inftant, took part of it norwithstanding the good refistance of our Troops that guarded it.

Paris, Sept 12. There is at prefent not any thing of moment to write from hence ; for our Letters from Flanders onely give us an account, that our Army was the 7th inftant at Waren, from whence it would remove the next morning, in order to its rrou whence it would remove the next morning. In order to its return to Charleroy; the Confederates had made feveral motions, and gave out that they would put themfelves between our Army and Charl row; butthe general opinion here is, that they will part without coming to any action The Duke of Luxembarg continues in Brifgens, to refresh his Army, in which he had a great many fick. Philipiburg makes still a brave defence. The Sieur a Tarke late Ambaledon from this Convin in Dark is a crister de Trelon. late Ambaffador from this Crown in Denmark is arrived here, and hach given an account to his Majefly of the pofture he left the affairs in those parts. The King has given the Govern-ment of Guyenne to the Duke de Requelanre. wold by the death of the Mareichal & Albren, who died the 3d inftant at Bourdeaux. We are told that the Prince Regent of Portugal hath offered his Mediation to the feveral parties engaged in the prefent War. We are in daily expectation of receiving fome confiderable news from Sieily.
