The following Address of the Lord Lieutenant, High Sheriff, Knights of the Shire, Justices of the Peace, Gentlemen, Clergy, and others, Freeholders of the County of Southampton, has been presented to His Majesty by Goodyer St. John, Esq; High Sheriff of the said County, being introduced by the Lord of His Majesty's Bed-Chamber in Waiting: Which Address His Majesty was pleased to receive very graciously: And he had the Honour to kiss His Majesty's Hand.

To the KING's most Excellent Majesty.

Most gracious Sovereign,

WE, your Majesty's most faithful and loyal Subjects, the Lord Lieutenant, High Sheriff, Knights of the Shire, Justices of the Peace, Gentlemen, Clergy, and others, of Southampton, beg Leave to approach your Majesty, to express our firm and unfeigned Attachment to your Sacred Person and Government.

We acknowledge, with the utmost Gratitude, the very many Blessings which your People have enjoyed under your Majesty's mild and auspicious Reign, and we behold, with an equal Degree of Concern and Abhorrence, the Repose of the State disturbed by a Part of your American Subjects, who have been led by a Spirit of Delusion and Sedition into such violent Proceedings against the Legislative Authority of this Country, as are no less repugnant to their Duty and Allegiance than subversive of their own Interest, and the general Weal of this great and extensive Empire.

We assure your Majesty that we will, with our Lives and Fortunes, support you in establishing and maintaining the Authority of the Legislation of this Country over every Part of the British Dominions; and we most readily with that, by the Will and Vigour of your Majesty's Councils and Ministers, the present unnatural Rebellion may soon be suppressed, and that general and permanent Tranquility may be restored to your Majesty's People and Government.

Castle of Winchester, November 2, 1775.

The following Address of the Bayliff, Steward, Approved Men, and Burgeses of the Borough of Andover, in Common Council assembled, has been presented to His Majesty by Sir John Griffin Griffin, Knight of the Bath, and Benjamin Letheulliere, Esq; their Representatives in Parliament, being introduced by the Lord of His Majesty's Bed-Chamber in Waiting: Which Address His Majesty was pleased to receive, very graciously.

To the KING's most Excellent Majesty,

This humble Address of the Bayliff, Steward, Approved Men, and Burgeses of the Borough of Andover, in Common Council assembled.

My Gracious Sovereign,

WE, your Majesty's most dutiful Subjects, the Bayliff, Steward, Approved Men, and Burgeses of your ancient Borough of Andover, beg Leave to approach your Royal Person, to testify the Abhorrence we have of the rebellious Revolt of many of your American Subjects, under the false Pretence of asserting Rights they never had, but, in Reality, with a Design of casting off their Allegiance to your Majesty, and their Dependence on the British Empire, of which they are an inseparable Part.

We have too much Reason to fear, that the Spirit of Disobedience, now raging in this distant Part of your Majesty's Dominions, with all the Madness of Arbitrary Riot and Cruelty, hath been worked up to its present alarming Crisis, by the artful Insinuations of some designing Leaders, who have themselves other Pursuits in View, than what their deluded Followers may perhaps as yet suspect: We trust, and do most sincerely hope, this will eventually turn out to be the Case, and that these unhappy and misguided Men will soon see the fatal Tendency of their rash Proceedings, and return to their Duty: And we are the rather inclined to hope this, as we cannot conceive, that any Number of Men here, or in America, who have felt the Blessings of your Majesty's mild and gentle Sway, can, when they come coolly to consider the Consequences, wish to exchange it for any other.

It is to your Majesty, and to the illustrious Princes of the House of Hanover, your Royal Predecessors, that we, and all your Subjects at this Time, in a great Measure owe that Enjoyment of true legal Liberty, which we believe no Nation in the World can boast of but ourselves. That the same Constitutional Liberty, which we feel, may be felt by all other your Majesty's Subjects, in all the Parts of your wide extended Empire, and that every Member of it may acknowledge the Sovereignty of Great Britain, is the incessant and most ardent Wish of our Hearts. And in order to obtain the Accomplishment of this Wish, we do assure your Majesty, that we shall most heartily concur, as far as in us lies, in supporting your Majesty in all such Measures as in your great Wisdom you shall think necessary to take, to bring back your rebellious Colonists to a Submission, in Deed as well as Words, to your Majesty's Government, and to the Legislative Power of the British Parliament.

Given under our Common Seal the Seventh Day of November, in the Sixteenth Year of your Majesty's Reign.
