

Republick formerly furnished eleven stout Gallies more, being by that time to be fitted up to carry 12000 Men, the rest of the Fleet to carry the like proportion. Several of our new ships are launched, and some of them fitted up for service, one of them a large Galley, is brought up before S. Marks, in which his Excellency Morofini intends to embark, and has accordingly commanded his Guns aboard, with all necessaries for service.

The next week the Senate to do honor to the memory of the late Signior Ballarino, who by his services has highly merited from this Republick, have given order for his solemn Funerals, which done, his son is to make a publick entry, and take possession of the charge of High Chancellor, vacated by the death of his Father.

The Count Ciavarina is making preparations for his speedy journey to Constantinople, as Ambassador in the room of the deceased Ballarino.

Three French ships are some days since arrived here with a great quantity of pieces of Eight, upon the account of our Marchants: The Duke of Savoys Ambassador solicites hard for the calling home of the Marquis Ville, whom his Master intends to employ in some service nearer home.

Letters lately arrived from the Armata, by the way of Ortranto advise us, That the Turks having often in vain attempted the succor of Candia, by the common and ordinary shipping, have lately effected it by their light Gallies, which by the advantage of their Oars, waiting not for convenient winds, have successfully landed some forces in that Island, these Gallies coming from Napoli, a place not far distant from the Visier Bassa, occasions a report, That the Visier was in person transported with an Army of 20000 Men; but of this we must expect a farther account. By a Vessel arrived from Zante, we are informed, that the Squadron of Ships that some time since sailed hence under the command of Semitecolo, have by the way met with cross winds, and are not as yet gotten beyond Corfu.

Paris, Decemb. 29. The Sieurs Renouard and Rubentel having been some time since suspended from their charges, are by his Majesty's favor re-admitted to their commands, as Captains of his Guards: His Majesty has named several persons Commissioners to visit the Towns of Corbie, Roye, and Bapaume, which he designs suddenly to dismantle. We are also informed, that the Sieur de Bourds, Governor of Brissac, is lately dead of the Plague.

The Government of Orleans being lately vacant upon the death of the Marquis de Sourdiz, the Mareschal de la Ferte petitioned his Majesty, that he would be pleased to give him leave to make an exchange of his Government of Metz, for that other lately fallen of Orleans, the Duchy he possesses lying within the bounds of the said Government, but his Majesty could not gratifie the Mareschal in his desires, having already disposed of it to the young Marquis, son to the deceased.

'Tis said, that he has conferred the Government of Amboise, which also belonged to the late Marquis de Sourdiz, upon Madamoiselle de la Valliere.

His Majesty is sending some Companies of Foot to Madagascar, and 'tis said others will be speedily ordered for the Plantations in America.

Edenburgh, Decemb. 22. This day were executed six of the ten Rebels that were sentenced by the Justice on Tuesday last, viz. Mr. Hugh Mackel, one of their Ministers, a prime Incendiary, Humphrey Colgwen, Mungo Karpe, Ralph Sheil, Jo. Wadrop, and Jo. Wilson. The Council being pleased to exempt them from dismembring; the other four, Tho. Lennox, Jo. Lindsey, Will. Pedant, and Robert Maximilian, are relieved.

We are assured from Dublin, that upon the first news of the breaking out of this late Rebellion, Sir George Hamilton, Sir Arthur Forbes, Richard Murrey of Broughton Esquire, and nine other eminent Scotch Gentlemen living in Ireland, out of their deep sense of Loyalty to their Prince, and hearty concernment for their Country, were resolved each of them to have raised a Troop of Horse upon their own expences, and to have transported themselves for His Majesty's service, into their own Country, to have assisted against the Rebels, but were happily prevented in their intentions by the welcome news of their defeat.

Cowes, Decemb. 28. On the 23d instant Captain Heggs in the Flying-Horse, sailing hence, the next morning hailed a Dantzicker bound with Salt for Osterd, and afterwards gave chase to three others to the Southwards, where twenty Sail coming down the Channel upon him, he adventured to stand within shot of them, whose Colours discovering them to be Dutch, he was forced to fall off, being chased by them within a league of the Casquets, where they left him within shot, and passed by him; that night he took one of their Fleet, being a Galliot Hoy of Flushing bound for Bourdeaux; the Fleet consisting of several Merchant ships, convoyed by four States Men of War, from twenty four to thirty six Guns.

From aboard the Warrespight, towards the Coast of Holland, Decemb. 26. The eighteenth instant, the whole fleet of Men of War and Merchants came out from Gottenburgh, and the same night off the Scaw, the wind taking us short, made us apprehend some danger in that place; but the care that was generally taken, prevented all inconveniencies: The next morning, being all together, it was thought fit to bear up for Malstrand, whereupon our approach, the weather growing very thick, with much Snow and Wind, the Men of War came to an Anchor: About two of the clock, we thought fit to bear away together, but ill weather again taking us, we stood over to the Fatland coast, where the storm growing greater, we could not lie by, but bore away for our own coast, and by its continuance all that night, we were forced to separate.

The 21 being more moderate, we lay by for twelve hours, attending the ships that were at Stein, of whom, we made up 18 sail, and by them being informed that the rest of the fleet were on head of us, we bore away after them.

The 25 instant coming past the Texel, we discovered five sail of Hollands Men of War standing to us; whereupon we fitted our selves to receive them, as did also the other ships in our company, viz. The Fersey, Diamond, St. Patrick, Nightingale, and Oxford, we then bore upon them, and our ship being a head, gave to one of the enemy a weather-broad-side, and then bore down upon the Admiral, and two others with our lower tire out; which so well shook them, that to get from us, the Admiral ran aboard one of his companions; our other ships likewise so well plied them, that in a short time we took three of them, whereof the Admiral was one; John Bondt Commander, of 38 Guns and 180 Men, call'd the Cleane Harder, her Masts being shot by the Board, we were forced afterwards to burn her, having first taken out the Men: the two others taken, were the Leyden, Faan Blackenbergh Captain, and the Tatch Eccles Captain Vanberg Commander, each of them of 36 Guns, and 140 and 146 Men, all three of them having lost in the fight about fifty men apiece. The other two Vessels endeavored to save themselves by flight, but were chased by two of our Fregats, which continued within night, but with what success we yet know not. We lost (God be praised) but few men in this encounter, and are still in a good condition for further service, the greatest hurt we received, being in our Sails and Rigging.

Alborough, Decemb. 28. On the 26 in the Evening, five more of our Gottenburgh fleet appeared, and yesterday in the morning nine others, all of them standing in to the Gunfleet and Harwich.

This afternoon the Diamond coming in to this Bay, made a Waife for a Pilot, which was immediately sent him, by whom we are informed of the encounter with five Dutch that came from the Texel, and the taking of three of them. They tell us farther, that two Scotch Privateers have lately taken a lusty Danes Man of War about the Scaw, and saw the wrecks of two others that have been there cast away; of which, we expect a farther account.

Above 35 Sail more of the Gottenburghers have these light nights been seen passing by; and even now, a great ship is seen sailing to the Southward, supposed to be the Warrespight.
