Naples, April 27.

By a Feucca arrived from Palermo, we have an account that the Marquis de Castel Rodrigo, Viceroy of that Kingdom, dyed there on Easter day of a Collick. A considerable Fleet of French ships laden with Ammunition and Provisions, are pasted by for Messina. This week five Gallies parted hence with Soldiers for Palermo. Thirty thousand Ducats will be raised here every month for the service of Sicily.

Vivana, May 9. The Rebels in Hungary, which we had hoped would have layen down their Arms upon the tender that was made them of pardon and restitution of their Goods and Estates, are now as insolent as ever, and committ great disorders, relying, it seems, very much upon the assistances they expect from abroad. This Court is full of joy, at the assurance they have that the Emperors is with Child. By a Courier from Germany, the Emperor hath received Letters from the Duke of Lorraine, giving an account of his advance towards Luxemburg.

Copenhagen, May 15. From Schonen they tell us, that 4000 Suedes are posted Engelholme, and 7000 more are encamped near Nesbyholm, to cover Naimo, and from Christiansla our King has fresh Letters which say, that his Majesty is here in a very good condition. In the mean time preparing for the Campaign, but hitherto we know not who is to command our Army in chief. The Sieur Baudits is appointed to command the Cavalry of the Right Wing, Lieutenant General Arensdoif the Cavalry of the Left Wing, and the Baron Rusenstein the Infantry. It was formerly said that the Sieur Gulaentieu was coming hither from Norway, as yet we have no account of his being parted from thence; and some begin to think he will not come at all, especially if it be true what is said of the Duke of Holstein's returning into the Kings service.

From the Duke of Lorraine's Camp at Middenburg, between Diedenhouen and Luxemburg, May 13. After that we had possessed our selves of the French Magazine at Longwy, and removed the Provisions we found there on 300 Wagons, the Duke receiving advice that the Imperial Army was coming down to join us, decamped, and came hither; to morrow we shall remove to Wicler, and there continue a day or two, to provide our selves with all kind of Necessaries, and then continue our march towards Treves, near which City we shall repair the Moselle, and so join the whole Army.

Strasbourg, May 14. Several parties of French, between 30 and 100 strong, are marched this week to Saverne, to finish the demolition of that place, and we understand that yesterday they began to throw down the walls. At Schlestadt they have not for some days worked at all on the Fortifications; and most of the Troops which the Sieur de Monclar had drawn together, are marching with great diligence through Markkirchdal towards Lorraine, to reinforce the Marschal de Crequi. On the other side, the Imperial Commissaries are providing a great Magazine at Friburg, for the subsistence of the Troops of the Circles joined with some of the Emperor who are to act in these parts this Summer, and as it's said, intend to besiege Brisc.

Frankfort, May 16. The Imperial Forces march in two Bodies towards the Moselle, the one about 12000 strong, under the command of Count Caprara, who passed by this City two or three dayes since with a Train of Artillery of 36 pieces of Cannon; the other Body is 20000, and has passed the Rhine at Oppenheim, under the command of the Commissary General Count Caplieres; when these have joined the Duke of Lorraine, he will have an Army of above 40000.

Cologne, May 18. People cannot but wonder, that notwithstanding the season is so far advanced, yet the Osdrug Troops continue quiet in their Winter-quarters in this Diocess, and make not as yet any shew of leaving them. The Neuburg Troops, though they had Orders four or five dayes since to march, are not yet come to the place appointed for their Rendezvous. From Coblenz we have advice, that the Duke of Lorraine was come back thither, and had repassed the Moselle, in order to his conjunction with the Imperial Troops which were on their march, under the command of Count Caprara and Count Caplieres, in two distinct Bodies. The Duke of Lorraine, as he will have a very great and brave Army, so we expect great matters from him.

Nimeguen, May 17. This week several Conferences have been held by the Ministers of the Confederate Princes, as we are informed, about returning their Answer to the demands of the French and the Suedes, which it seems, they have resolved to give in writing to the Mediators, to be by them communicated to the adverse Parties. It is said that my Lord Berkley, one of His Majesty of Great Britain's Ambassadors, has, upon his humble request, obtained leave to return home, for which he is accordingly disposing himself. The Marquis de Los Balbaces, chief of the Spanish Embassy, is expected here before the end of this month.

Amsterdam, May 21. The News that comes from France of the defeat of our Squadron of Men of War commanded by the Sieur Binches in the West-Indies, did at first very much trouble us, but upon a farther examination of what the French themselves write of that Action, and the reports we have here (which, it's said, come by the way of England) there seems to be ground for us to believe, that the loss the French sustained in that Action, does even exceed ours, and that they have no great reason to claim a Victory, especially considering how they were repulsed at Land, and consequently that they failed in their design, which was to have possessed themselves of the Island. However we must have patience till we have an account from the Sieur Binches of the whole Action, in which he has gained much honour and reputation.

Hague, May 21. The Count de Harne, General of the Artillery, hath been here several days and at Delft, giving Orders for the conveying several Cannon to the Prince of Oranges Army, which we expect will decamp some time the next week, and enter upon action. By the way way of France we have an ample account of a great Victory which the French pretend to have gained upon the Sieur Binches at the Isle of Tobago, by which it seems that the whole Dutch Squadron that was there has been ruined, but we hope to find things otherwise when the account comes from our side, which we are in hourly expectation of.

Brussels, May 21. The Most Christian King having taken a review of his Forces in the Plains of Kieurain and Conde, purposes, as we are informed, to return suddenly to Paris. Greatest part of the French Army was encamped yesterday near Bossu within Cannon shot of St. Ghislain, on this side the River, ruining the Country towards Mons. Forty Squadrons of French Horse passed yesterday betwixt Mons and Binch, to ravage likewise that side of the Country. We are told, that the French Forces in these Provinces will be divided into two Bodies, the one to be commanded by the Marschal d'Humieres, and the other by the Duke of Luxemburg. On the side of Germany the King will likewise have two Armies, commanded by the Marschal de Crequi, and the Marschal de Schomberg. On Tuesday his Highness the Prince of Orange returned to his quarters at Lacrum, we are assured that in few days his Army will be ready to march. Several great Cannon are expected to-morrow at the Princes quarters, being brought by water from Holland. The Confederate Troops that are to form a Camp at Ruremond, begin to arrive there, and a Bridge is laying over the Meuse for the convenience of their passage backward and forward. Our last Letters from Luxemburg tell us, that the Duke of Lorraine was advanced with the Troops he had with him, to meet the main Body of the Imperial Army, which was marching towards him, that he had repass'd the Moselle, and that the conjunction will be to-morrow. From France we have an account of a very sharp and bloody Engagement between the French and the Dutch at the Isle of Tobago in the West-Indies; that of the former, the Admirals ship and three more had been lost; and of the Dutch, eleven had been burnt and sunk, and four more forced ashore; and that the French had been vigorously repulsed in the Attack they made on Land. Our Letters from Vienna confirm the News of the Empress being with Child, to the great joy of that Court. The Inhabitants of Valenciennes have offered to pay 120000 Crowns; upon condition they may be excused from building the Citadel required by the King, which, it is said, his Majesty has accepted of; but this afternoon we have an account of a great disorder that hath happen'd at Valenciennes between the Soldiers and the Burghers, which was at last appeas'd by the care of the Governor, who caus'd some of the chief Authors of it to be hang'd.

Antwerp, May 21. Our Letters from the Rhine assure, that the Grofs of the Imperial Army was not only past at Oppenheim and Philipsburgh, but had hasten'd their march so far, that they were come to St. Vandel, so that it's not to be doubted but, they have join'd the Duke of Lorraine before this time; some Advices make them 20000 effective, and others 30000, they seem to direct their march towards Metz, to enter Lorraine that way. From Cologne of the 18, we are told, that the Osnabrug Troops are not offering as yet to stir from their Winter-quarters, but that those from Newburg, consisting of 500 Horse, 500 Dragoons, and 3000 Foot, were already on their march towards Ruremond, to join 3000 Brandenburg Horse, which with five Battalions of Holland Infantry (making about 2000 men) are to compose a flying Army, and to encamp between the Ror and the Meuse, for stopping the Incursions of the Garison of Maestricht. On Tuesday last the Prince of Orange returned to the Army, which continues quartered in the Pais de Dendermonde and Venez-Bowg of Gauar. His Highness has caus'd to be brought to the Army one of the biggest Cannon out of the Magazine at D. Sij, and the Tin Boats from the Nagve. The Most Christian King is encamp'd with his Army at Bossu, almost within reach of the Cannon of St. Ghislain, but without attempting any thing against that place, ruining only the Country far and near; after the review of his Army, his Majesty returns for Paris, leaving his Troops divided into two Bodies, the one commanded by Marschal d'Humieres upon the Lis, and the other upon the Scheldt; under the command of Marschal de Montmorency, so that in case of necessity they can very conveniently join together. Our Italian Letters by this last Ordinary, acquaint us with the death of the Marquis de Castel Rodrigo at Palermo; not without suspicion of poison, he having been only two days sick.

Paris, May 22. The King having been present at the review of his Forces near Kieurain, and given the necessary Orders for the disposing of them into several Bodies, is expected here the beginning of the next week. From Lorraine they write, that the Duke of Lorraine was retired towards Trèves to meet and join the Imperial Troops, which had already pass'd the Rhine, and were descending towards the Moselle; that the Marschal de Crequi had a watchful eye upon all the Enemies motions, and hath hitherto kept them from attempting any thing of moment. The Marschal de Schomberg is, we hear, appointed by the King to command the Body of an Army which is at present assembled near Charleville, under the Orders of the Sieur de la Cordonnere Lieutenant General. In Alsace the Sieur de Montclar will have a small Army to observe the Enemy on that side, who, as it is given out, intend to block up or besiege Bisac. We shall in a day or two see a Relation of the late Action between the Count d'Estrees and the Dutch at Tobago made publick, hitherto we know nothing more of that Engagement, save what we have already told you.
