Admiralty-Office, September 10, 1779.

YESTERDAY in the Evening the Honourable Vice-Admiral Barrington, and Captain Sawyer, of His Majesty's Ship the Boyne, arrived at this Office with Dispatches from the Honourable Vice-Admiral Byron, of which the following are Copies and Extracts.

Copy of a Letter from the Honourable Vice-Admiral Byron to Mr. Stephens, dated Prince's Royal at Sea, the 8th of July, 1779.

S I R,

AGREEABLE to what I wrote you by the St. Albans, Duplicate of which will accompany this, I failed from St. Christopher's the 15th of last Month, at the same Time the Trade left it for Europe, and proceeded to Windward of the Islands for Protection of the Convoy, intending to call at Barbados in my Way to St. Lucia; but a strong Lee Current, with the Wind at East, retarded our Progress so much, that it was the 30th of June before the Squadron could weather the Island of Martinico. This induced me to proceed directly to St. Lucia, where I arrived next Morning, and learnt that the French had possessed themselves of the Island of St. Vincent, with a very small Force, and without Opposition. Upon a Conference with Major-General Grant it was determined to attempt the Retaking of St. Vincent's, for which Purpose the Troops were ordered to be embarked immediately on board the Transports, and every Thing got in Readiness without a Moment's Loss of Time; but Intelligence being received of a Fleet seen that Morning to Leeward steering a Course for Grenada, I wrote to Lord Macartney, by one of his Aids de Camp that happened to be at St. Lucia, to give his Lordship Notice of our Motions, and that the Troop and Squadron would immediately come to his Relief, if, at St. Vincent, or on the Passage thither, we should learn that Grenada was attacked. I likewise sent an Officer in a fast sailing Schooner to look into Fort Royal Bay, where he saw Thirteen large Ships, which he supposed Ships of War, more especially as one of them bore a Flag at the Foretop Gallant Mast-head; but a Frigate and some other small Craft giving him Chase, he was prevented from going so near as he intended.

The Line of Battle, to be transmitted herewith, will shew that the Squadron under my Command consisted of Twenty-one Ships and a Frigate; with these and the Transports I failed from St. Lucia on Saturday the 3d, and next Afternoon had Intelligence from St. Vincent of more than Thirty Sail of French Men of War and Armed Ships having passed there on Thursday, and among them appeared to be upwards of Twenty Ships of the Line of Battle; it was farther reported that Monf. de la Motte Piquet had joined the Count D'Estaing about a Week before with a strong Reinforcement. Upon this Information the Signal was made instantly to bear up for Grenada; but it fell calm soon after, and continued so until Nine o'Clock next Morning, about which Time a small Schooner that left Grenada on Saturday Evening came into the Fleet, and the principal Person on board her (a Merchant) reported, that the French had landed about Two thousand five hundred Troops near the Town of St. George on Friday, made an Attack upon the Fort that Night, and were repulsed; that Lord Macartney expected to hold out a Fortnight; and that he had seen the Enemy's Naval Force there, which did not exceed Eight Ships of the Line, besides Frigates and Armed Transports. Another Schooner from Grenada joined us soon after, and brought a similar Account; only the Master of her, who had been frequently a Pilot on board the King's Ships, reported, that the Enemy had between Fourteen and Nineteen Ships of the Line. It being my Intention from this Intelligence to be off St. George's Bay soon after Day-break, I drew the Ships of War from among the Transports, leaving only the Suffolk, Vigilant and Monmouth for their Protection, under the Orders of Rear-Admiral Rowley, who was intended to conduct the Debarkment of the Troops; but he was to join me with these Ships if I saw Occasion for their Service. One of the Enemy's Frigates was very near us in the Night, and gave the Alarm of our Approach. Soon after Day-light on Tuesday the 6th, the French Squadron was seen off St. George's, most of them at Anchor, but getting under Way, seemingly in great Confusion, and with little or no Wind. The Signal was immediately made for a general Chase in that Quarter, as well as for Rear-Admiral Rowley to leave the Convoy; and as not more than Fourteen or Fifteen of the Enemy's Ships appeared to be of the Line from the Position they were in, the Signal was made for the Ships to engage, and form as they could get up; in Consequence of which, Vice-Admiral Barrington in the Prince of Wales, with Captain Sawyer in the Boyne, and Captain Gardner in the Sultan, being the Headmost of the British Squadron, and carrying a Press of Sail, were soon fired upon at a great Distance, which they did not return until they got considerably nearer; but the Enemy getting the Breeze of Wind about that Time, drew out their Line from the Cluster they were lying in, by bearing away and forming to Leeward on the Starboard Tack, which shewed their Strength to be very different from our Grenada Intelligence, for it was plainly discovered they had Thirty-four Sail of Ships of War, Twenty-six or Twenty-seven of which were of the Line, and many of those appeared pared of great Force; however the general Chase was continued, and the Signal made for a close Engagement; but our utmost Endeavours could not effect that, the Enemy industriously avoiding it, by always bearing up when our Ships got near them; and I was sorry to observe, that their Superiority over us in sailing gave them the Option of Distance, which they availed themselves of, so as to prevent our Rear from ever getting into Action; and being to Leeward they did great Damage to the Masts and Rigging, when our shot would not reach them. The Ships that suffered most were those the Action began with, and the Grafton, Captain Collingwood, the Cornwall, Captain Edwards, and the Lion, Captain Cornwallis. The spirited Example of Vice Admiral Barrington, with the former Three, exposed them to a severe Fire in making the Attack; and the latter Three happening to be to Leeward sustained the Fire of the Enemy's whole Line as it passed on the Starboard Tack: The Monmouth likewise suffered exceedingly, by Captain Fanshaw's having bore down in a very gallant Manner to stop the Van of the Enemy's Squadron and bring it to Action; but from the very smart and well-directed Fire kept up by these Ships and others that were engaged, I am convinced they did the Enemy great Damage, although their Masts, Rigging and Sails appeared less injured than ours. The Four Ships last mentioned, with the Fame, being so disabled in their Masts and Rigging, as to be totally incapable of keeping up with the Squadron, and the Suffolk appearing to have received considerable Damage in an Attack made by Rear-Admiral Rowley upon the Enemy's Van, I took in the Signal for Chase, but continued that for close Engagement, formed the best Line which Circumstances would admit of, and kept the Wind to prevent the Enemy from doubling upon us, and cutting off the Transports, which they seemed inclined to do, and had the Latter very much in their Power, by means of their large Frigates, independent of Ships of the Line. The French Squadron tacked to the Southward, about Three o'Clock in the Afternoon; and I did the same, to be in Readiness to support the Grafton, Cornwall, and Lion, that were disabled, and a great Way astern: But the Lion being likewise much to Leeward, and having lost her Main and Mizzen Topmasts, and the rest of her Rigging and Sails being cut in a very extraordinary Manner, she bore away to the Westward when the Fleets tacked; and, to my great Surprise, no Ship of the Enemy was detached after her. The Grafton and Cornwall stood towards us, and might have been weathered by the French if they had kept their Wind, especially the Cornwall, which was farthest to Leeward, had lost her Main Topmast, and was otherwise much disabled; but they persevered so strictly in declining every Chance of close Action, notwithstanding their great Superiority, that they contented themselves with firing upon these Ships, when passing barely within Gun shot; and suffered them to rejoin the Squadron, without one Effort to cut them off. The Monmouth was so totally disabled in her Masts and Rigging, that I judged it proper to send Directions in the Evening for Captain Fanshaw to make the best of his Way to Antigua; and he parted Company accordingly.

When we were close in with St. George's Bay, the French Colours were seen flying upon the Fort and other Batteries, which left no Doubt of the Enemy being in full Possession of the Island. To dislodge them was impracticable, considering the State of the two Fleets; I therefore sent Orders to Captain Barker, the Agent, to make the best of his Way with the Transports to Antigua or St. Christopher's, which ever he could fetch, intending to keep the King's Ships between them and the French Squadron, which at the Close of the Evening was about three Miles to Leeward of us, and I had no Doubt, would at least be as near in the Morning; for although it was evident, from their Conduct throughout the whole Day, that they were resolved to avoid a close Engagement, I could not allow myself to think, that with a Force so greatly superior, the French Admiral would permit us to carry off the Transports unmolested; however as his Squadron was not to be seen next Morning, I conclude he returned to Grenada.

It is my Duty upon this Occasion to represent, that the Behaviour of the Officers and Men of His Majesty's Squadron was such as became British Seamen, zealous of the Honor of their Country, and anxious to support their national Character. The Marines likewise, and Troops that were embarked with their Officers in the King's Ships, behaved as brave Soldiers; and from the exemplary good Conduct of those who got into Action, from the visible Effect which their brisk and well directed Fire had upon the Enemy's Ships, and from that cool determined Resolution and very strong Desire of coming to a close Engagement, which prevailed universally throughout the Squadron, I think myself justifiable in saying, that the great Superiority in Numbers and Force would not have availed the Enemy so much, had not their Advantage over us in Sailing enabled them to preserve a Distance little calculated for deciding such Contests.

You will herewith receive a List of the Killed and Wounded: Vice-Admiral Barrington is among the latter, but his Hurt is slight, which is happily the Case with a considerable Part of the Wounded.

I am, SIR,

Your most obedient,

Humble Servant,

J. BYRON.

Extract of a Letter from the Honorable Vice-Admiral Byron to Mr. Stephens, dated Princess Royal off St. Christopher's, July 17, 1779.

I Arrived here the 15th with all the Ships of His Majesty's Squadron that were with me off Grenada, except the Monmouth and Lion; the former got in Yesterday, and the latter is said to be at Anchor off the Island of Saba, where the Maidstone Frigate is sent to her Assistance.

Major-General Grant, with about Half the Transports, are arrived; several more are now coming on.

Extract of a Letter from the Honorable Vice-Admiral Byron to Mr. Stephens, dated Princess Royal at Sea the 3d of August, 1779.

THE Account I had of the Lion being at Anchor under Saba, proved to be a Mistake; and I have not learnt any Thing certain of that Ship since the Monmouth spoke her some Days after the Action. All the Transports reached St. Christopher's except one Ship, with the Lieutenant-Colonel and Part of the 4th Regiment on board, which Ship had lost her Mizzen-Mast by another Vessel running foul of her; and I learnt from two Gentlemen who left Grenada about a Week ago, that she fell in with the French Fleet, and was taken the Day after the Action. The same Gentlemen acquainted me, that although great Pains were taken to conceal the Loss which the French sustained in the Engagement, yet they were well assured, that Three Captains, Eighteen Lieutenants, and Twelve Hundred Men lost their Lives, and that the Wounded amounted to nearly Two Thousand; which Account doth not differ materially from what we had from St. Eustatius, and other Quarters.

Whitehall, September 10, 1779.

Extract of a Letter from Major-General Grant, Commander in Chief of His Majesty's Forces in the Leeward Islands, to the Right Honorable Lord George Germain, One of His Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State. Dated on Board the Sybella Victualler, at Sea, the 8th of July, 1779.

My LORD,

ADMIRAL Byron bore down to Leeward the 6th of June to protect the Trade, which had assembled at Grenada, and were to rendezvous at St. Christopher's. He proceeded accordingly to the last-mentioned Island, and we lost Sight of his Squadron, from the Heights of St. Lucie, the 8th of June.

The French taking Advantage of the Absence of the British Fleet, when employed in protecting the Homeward-bound Trade of the West Indies, sent Four Armed Vessels under the Command of Monsieur le Chevalier Durumain, with Three Hundred Men, composed of Regulars and Militia, and landed the 16th of June upon the Island of St. Vincent. The Island submitted without firing a Shot, and the Capitulation was signed the 17th.

I waited on Admiral Byron as soon as possible, after he came to an Anchor, the 1st of July, at Gros Ilet, upon returning with his Fleet from the Cruize to Leeward. When I got on Board, I found he had but just received an Account of the Reduction of St. Vincent's. None of the Express Vessels which had been dispatched for him having been lucky enough to fall in with the Squadron.

The Gentlemen of the Navy who were on Board with the Admiral seemed much alarmed about Grenada. I had not heard of an Attack upon that Island, but readily agreed to proceed with the Fleet and Army to save or retake Grenada and St. Vincent's.

Upon my Return to Head Quarters at Six o'Clock in the Evening, Orders were given for embarking next Morning at Day-break, and the Embarkation was completed in the Course of that Day and Night. The Admiral was informed the 3d, at Seven o'Clock in the Morning, that every Thing was ready to go to Sea.

In Consequence of which Signals were made, and we sailed with Twenty one Ships of the Line, the Ariadne, Fourteen Transports, Four Ordnance, Four Hospital, and Two Convalescent Ships, Three Victuallers, the Agent of Transports, the Engineers, and a Horse Sloop.

We made St. Vincent's the 4th, and were informed that the French had but Three Hundred Regulars and Three Hundred Militia upon the Island; that they were fortifying themselves, with the Assistance of Four Hundred Negroes; and that the Charibbs had joined them.

The

The Admiral received Advice the 5th, in the Morning, that Grenada was actually attacked; that the French had from Eight to Ten Sail of the Line, with Seven or Eight Frigates, and had landed from Two to Three Thousand Men; that Lord Macartney was in Possession of the Hill which commands the Town of St. George; and, knowing from a Mr. Houlton that he was to receive immediate Support, would of course maintain his Post as long as possible.

The Fleet carried this Day all the Sail they could, and was in Sight of Grenada and the French Fleet the 6th at Day break.

The British Squadron bore down upon them with all the Sail they could crowd, and the Attack began at Half an Hour after Seven in the Morning, and continued till Twelve; was renewed again at Two, and continued till Sun-set.

General Meadows and I saw the Whole very distinctly from this Ship. Nothing could exceed the determined Bravery and Gallantry of the whole Squadron. We Lookers on were full of Admiration at many handsome Things which we saw done and attempted in the Course of the Day.

But Things turned out very differently from what we had Reason to expect, from the Intelligence which Admiral Byron had received. D'Estaing was reinforced before he left Martinique, and had at least Twenty-six Sail of the Line and Eight Frigates, with Six or Eight Thousand Men. The French gave out Ten Thousand Land Troops and Marines.

Admiral Byron therefore very prudently determined to stand for St. Christopher's to seek the damaged Ships, and sent to inform me of his Intention. I am convinced he will soon discover the Superiority at Sea; as the French, though superior in Numbers, must at last give Way to the Intrepidity of the British Squadron.

Admiralty-Office, Sept. 11, 1779.

Extract of a Letter from Rear-Admiral Edwards Commander in Chief of His Majesty's Ships at Newfoundland, to Mr. Stephens, dated St. John's, July 24, 1779.

I Arrived here the 21st Instant; I found His Majesty's Ship Surprise, Captain Reeve, who, on the 14th Instant, was preparing her for Sea; and receiving Information, that His Majesty's armed Schooner Egmont had been attacked and taken off Cape Spear, that Day, by a Privateer Brig, immediately slipped his Cables, and went out after her. In the Evening he got Sight of her, chased, and about Twelve o'Clock at Night took her. She proved to be the Wild Cat Privateer of Salem, not ten Weeks off the Stocks, mounting fourteen Carriage Guns, and had Seventy-five Men when she came out. Lieutenant Gardiner and Twenty of the Egmont's People were retaken in her, but unfortunately the Schooner had separated before Captain Reeve, whose Conduct upon this Occasion deserves much Commendation, could get Sight of them.

I have the Pleasure to inform their Lordships, that Captain Cadogan, in His Majesty's Ship Licorne, on the 31st of May fell in with and took L'Audacieuse French Privateer of Twenty-four Six-pounders, and 194 Men, who engaged him Half an Hour. The Privateer had 22 Men killed, and 17 wounded. The Licorne had only one Man wounded.

On the 15th of June Captain Cadogan parted with his Convoy in Lat. 48° 50' North, and Long. 42° 48' West, in a violent Gale of Wind; and on the 19th (in Sight of Land off here) saw a Ship, which he chased, and at Two P. M. the next Day, came up with and took her. She proved to be the General Sullivan American Privateer, of Twenty-four Six-pounders, and 106 Men, and arrived here the next Day with the Licorne and French Prize. I beg Leave to note, that Captain Cadogan's Conduct in preserving his Convoy from the 29th, (the Day he first saw the French Privateer) to the 31st (the Day on which he took her) is very commendable.

Captain Pasley, in His Majesty's Ship Sibyl, arrived here the 23d of May. In his Passage out he retook the Townside Privateer of Liverpool; and on his first Cruize on the Banks retook a Brig loaded with Wine; both which Prizes he brought in with him to St. John's.
