AT the Court at St. James's, the 13th of October, 1780,

The KING's Most Excellent Majesty in Council.

HIS Majesty in Council was this Day pleased to declare The Right Honourable Frederick, Earl of Carlisle, Lieutenant-General and General Governor of His Majesty's Kingdom of Ireland.

Admiralty-Office, October 14, 1780.

Extract of a Letter from Vice-Admiral Sir Peter Parker, Commander in Chief of His Majesty's Ships at Jamaica, to Mr. Stephens, dated Port Royal the 13th of August, 1780.

CAPTAIN Cornwallis arrived the 20th of last Month, with the Lion, Sultan, Hector, Ruby, and Bristol, from convoying the Trade through the Gulph of Florida. By the inclosed Copy of a Letter from Capt. Cornwallis, we suppose the Squadron he fell in with were French from Europe, bound to some Part of America, under the Command of Mons. Terney. Captain Cornwallis displayed on this Occasion his usual Spirit and Conduct. The Behaviour of the French cannot be otherwise accounted for than by their having some very particular Object in View.

In the Evening of the 1st Instant, Rear-Admiral Rowley and Commodore Walsingham arrived with Ten Sail of the Line, and the Barbadoes Brig.

Lion, off Cape Francois, July 14, 1780.

S I R,

ON the 9th of June, the Convoy having past through the Gulph of Florida, and got as far to the Northward as 29:30, Captain Inglis made the Signal to separate; we parted Company accordingly, and proceeded on, pursuant to your Orders, with the Lion, Sultan, Hector, Bristol, Ruby, and Niger. On the 20th, being then in the Latitude 30: 18 North Longitude, made from Cape Florida 11: 47 E. the Wind at S. S. E. standing to the Eastward. At One P. M. the Niger a-head made the Signal for Four Sail in the N. E. I made the Signal for a general Chace; we soon perceived they were a Convoy standing across us to the N. N. W. but upon their seeing us, they hauled up towards us; some large Ships stretching a-head of the rest, particularly Two that were much a-head; who, as soon as the Hector and Niger came near them, wore, and edged down to join the others. About Half past Four, being pretty near, and perceiving Seven Two-deck Ships drawing into a Line, besides some others that were with the Convoy, and some Frigates, I made the Signal for the Line a-head upon the Starboard Tack, the Enemy being upon the Larboard Tack, their Convoy about Two or Three Miles upon their Starboard Quarters, and some Two-deck Ships and Frigates carrying a Press of Sail to join the other Seven; the Ruby was so far to Leeward, that the Enemy would have weathered her; she was therefore obliged to tack: I then made the Signal to wear, and form the Line upon the Larboard Tack, the same the Enemy were upon, and edged down to support the Ruby, and prevent their Weathermost Ships getting between her and us. The Enemy kept edging off, and forming their Line, but did not fire, although within Gun-shot. About Half past Five o'Clock, perceiving we had pushed the French Ships sufficiently to Leeward to enable the Ruby, who was upon our Lee-Bow, to join us, I made her Signal to tack: The Enemy then hoisted their Colours, and began to fire: Their Leading Ship had a Broad Pendant; and their Third Ship, which commanded, and was a-breast of the Lion, a Flag at the Mizzen-top mast-head: All the other Ships hoisted common White Pendants. As soon as the Ruby had fetched into the Rear of our Line and tacked, the Enemy's Headmost Ship tacked, and the rest in Succession, keeping their Line; and those leading upon the Starboard, that led before upon the Larboard Tack; they fired as they passed our Ships, but at a great Distance. When they got the Length of our Rear, about Seven o'Clock in the Evening, they bore up, and joined their Convoy.

This Fleet I believe consisted of 14 Men of War, 10 or 11 of which were Two-deck Ships, and 3 or 4 Frigates: The rest were Merchant Ships, or Transports; a Cutter, and an Armed American Brig; the whole we reckoned from 44 to 47 Sail.

As soon as it was dark we brought too, and enquired of those, that had been nearest the Enemy's Convoy, their Force; which nearly agreed with the Opinion we had formed on Board the Lion. We stood on to the Southward under our Topails and Foresail all Night; and in the Morning they were not to be seen. A Random Shot killed the Coxswain, and wounded a Marine, on Board the Lion: One Man was wounded on Board the Bristol: The Ruby, by passing between the two Lines, was more exposed to the Enemy's Fire than the other Ships; she had One Man killed, and Three wounded, One of whom is since dead; her Jib-boom was shot away; a Shot through the Slings of her Fore-yard, that will I believe require her having a new one; is the only Damage of Consequence received by any of the Ships.

The whole of this is a Matter of small Importance; but I thought it my Duty to inform you of every Particular, for Fear of Misrepresentations, as the Enemy are sometimes not very correct in their Accounts.

We flattered ourselves at first, that it was was a Convoy under the Care of the Four Line of Battle Ships we met the last Cruize with some Frigates; I am sure it was the sincere Wish of my Brother Captains, and every one of our little Squadron: But I ain to lament my ill Fortune, that after having been entrusted by you with the Command of Five such Ships, and a Frigate, that I should again meet the Enemy so strong, as to prevent our being able to attempt any Thing against them.

I am, &c.

W. CORNWALLIS.

Extract of a Letter from Nathaniel Davison, Esq; His Majesty's Consul General at Algiers, to the Earl of Hillsborough, One of His Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, dated Algiers, September 8, 1780, received October 11.

THE Conduct and Success of Captain Edward Moor, commanding the Fame private Ship of War, of Dublin, on a late Occasion, will, I doubt not, be deemed sufficiently remarkable to justify justify my troubling your Lordship with the following Particulars.

He sailed from Mahon the 20th of last Month, and receiving Advice soon after of the Departure of five French Vessels, all Letters of Marque, from Marseilles, bound for the West-Indies, determined to go in Quest of them. On the 25th he descried five Sail near the Spanish Coast, which corresponded with his Intelligence; but as they were at a Distance, and the Day was far spent, he judged it prudent not to make a Shew of pursuing them, that he might have a better Chance to succeed in getting betwixt them and the Land at Night; which he had the good Fortune to effect. He found himself at Day-light next Morning off Cape de Gat, and about two Leagues from the five Ships that were together, and formed in a Line to receive him. At Half past Six, when he was within Gun-shot, they hoisted French Colours, and discharged their Broad-sides. Captain Moor bore down upon them, and though they continued their Fire without Interruption, reserved his till he was within Pistol-shot of the largest, which struck after an Engagement of three Quarters of an Hour. Without stopping to send any of his People on Board, he proceeded to engage the Second, and took her, after a short Resistance. He left an Officer and seven Men in this Prize, with Orders to look after the former; till he returned from pursuing the three remaining Vessels, which he observed were making Sail to get away. He came up with and took two of them; the other escaped. The largest Ship is called les Deux Freres, pierced for Twenty Guns, mounting Fourteen Six-Pounders, and Fifty-five Men, (Fifteen of whom got off in a Boat;) the Second l'Univers, (the Captain of which was killed) pierced for 18 Guns, carries Twelve Four-Pounders and 41 Men, little inferior in Size to the Deux Freres; the Third, the Zephir, (formerly His Majesty's Sloop) pierced for 14 Guns, mounting 10 Three-Pounders, and Thirty-two Men; the Fourth, the Nancy, a Pink of Two Six-Pounders, Two Two-Pounders, and 18 Men. They got all safe into this Bay on the 29th of last Month, about Ten o'Clock at Night.

Captain Moor's gallant Behaviour has been taken great Notice of by the Officers of this Regency, and his humane and generous Treatment of his Prisoners been admired by every Body; indeed so much so, that Mons. de la Vallée, French Consul General here, thought it incumbent on him to write a Line to me to express his Sense of it, in the strongest Terms of Encomium and Gratitude.

The Fame mounts Twenty Guns, Six-Pounders, on one Deck, and Four upon her Quarter-Deck, viz. Two Four-Pounders and Two Three-Pounders, and 108 Men.
