

it 2800 Wagons of Ammunition and Provision; to which will be also joined 40 Cannon and 10 Mortars, which though they begin to move already, cannot reach the Army till Friday night. In the mean time the Pioneers work hard, and the Batteries will be made ready, as we hope, against that time. Our Letters from the Camp say, that the Garison was yesterday encamped without the Counterscarp, the Prince of Orange not having been able to make any considerable advance in the Siege, through the want of this Convoy. The Duke of Lorraine is at present encamped with the Imperial Army at Mousoh, having possessed himself of that important place, by his diligent marching 11 or 12 Leagues in two days, before the French could prevent it, by which all Champagne lies open to him. His Highness has caused three Bridges to be laid over the Meuse, taken the Forts and Redoubts on both sides of the River, and raised likewise some new works on this side for the security of his Bridges, being resolved to fortifie the place for his Winter-quarters. The Marschal de Crequi not being advertised of the Duke's march, till all his Baggage was actually passed and secured, followed him in all haste, taking his march towards Stenay, and encamped his Army between Pouilly and Ivor, where our last Letters left him, being within a League of the Imperialists betwixt Stenay and Mousoh. From Allface they write, that the Army of the Circles continues encamped at Huningen, and the Sieur de Monclar betwixt Ensisheim and Muthausen. The Duke of Saxen-Byssenach being assisted by one Monsieur de Sainte Magdalene, who pretended himself to be highly dissatisfied with the French, that he had so great power with the Governor of Landskroon, that he would undertake the seizing of that place, if he had sufficient Troops to assist him. His Highness sent Lieutenant General Dunwaldt, and Colonel Roses with a considerable detachment towards the place, who went so well received, as to be permitted to enter the Gates, but were then so briskly charged by the Enemy, as to be forced to retire in great disorder, with the loss of many men, and amongst them Colonel Roses, and a Major was killed; Lieutenants General Dunwaldt, and a young Prince of Saxony escaped very narrowly, the first having his Hat shot off, and the other his Coat pierced with a Bullet, and his Skin only raised. This misfortune and treachery has so much enraged the Duke of Saxen-Byssenach, that, we are told, he has resolved to attack the place immediately, to be revenged for the affront and disappointment he has received.

Bruges, Aug. 11. The little Army under the command of the Marquis d'Offera, consisting in 3000 Foot, and 650 Horses, are at present encamped within a Musket-shot of our Palisades, stretching along the Canal to Ghent. This morning the said Marquis parted hence for Newport, to see what number of men might be drawn out of that Garrison, without exposing the place to danger. From Lille they write, that the Duke of Luxemburg with about 40000 men, is advanced as far as Ripich, within three Leagues of Charleroy. Upon advice that the French were assembling a Body of an Army in the Neighborhood of Ipres, the Marquis d'Offera has sent for four Regiments belonging to the Dutch, as also the Regiments of the Prince de Vaudemont and Count d'Egmont to reinforce him.

Philippeville, Aug. 11. The Duke of Luxemburg having been informed by Prisoners and Defectors from the Dutch Army, that the Prince of Orange had resolved to quit the Posts he had taken about Charleroy, and to fight him, marched with his Army drawn up in Battalia towards the Enemy. Hereupon the Prince of Orange went and encamped at Adonigny, on the Sambre; and the Duke of Luxemburg at Chasselet, his right Wing at Origny, and his left at Castellet. The Enemies are separated from each other only by a small Rivulet and Wood. The Enemies are working with all diligence upon their Lines of Circumvallation, and have also begun their Lines of Contravallation in the Prince of Orange's quarters. The place is in very good condition, and the Count de Montal by keeping his Horse without, has hitherto hindered the Enemies from making their approaches to it.

Versailles, Aug. 14. Our Letters from Metz say, that the Duke of Lorraine continued still at Mousoh, and that the Marschal de Crequi was encamped within half a League from him, and that the Enemies had not passed the Meuse, although for that purpose they had laid a Bridge of Boats over it. The Marschal de Lequien has posted himself so advantageously, that the Confederates will hardly adventure to attack him, though he were much weaker than he is. All sorts of Provisions are very plentiful and cheap in his Camp. In the mean time no considerable Action hath passed between the Armies, besides continual Skirmishes between Parties. The 9th instant the Prince of Orange began to break earth before Charleroy. The 8th, the Duke of Luxemburg having advice that a great Convoy of Provisions and Materials for a Siege were coming to join them, sent out the Count de Sillis with 2000 Horse, and a Regiment of Dragoons to attack them, which the Enemies perceiving, without marching further returned back to Metz. The Duke of Luxemburg is on his march to Charleroy; on Wednesday last he encamped at Valoux, and on Thursday at Floreffe, very near the Enemies Camp. His Army at present consists of between 40 and 50000 men. Yesterday the Duke de Lesdigueres, the Marquis de Cœuvres, and several of the Nobility parted hence for Flanders, upon the great appearance there is of a sudden Battel there. This morning the Chancellor was taken suddenly ill with a Fit of an Apoplexy, but is now a little better, though most people despair of his recovery.

Postscript. Just now his Majesty has received a Courier from Monsieur de Lequien, with the News that the Duke of Luxemburg is approached so near the Prince of Orange, that he has possessed himself of all the ground on which the Prince should draw up his Army in Battalia.

Paris, Aug. 14. From Germany we hear nothing new, the Imperialists seeming to have no other design, than to keep the Marschal de Crequi from sending any detachments into Flanders. On Wednesday the Prince of Condé, having been sent for the day before to Court, was above two hours in conference with the Kings and the chief Ministers, about the resolutions to be taken in relation to the Siege of Charleroy. The general expectation here is, that a Battel will be ere long fought, in order to the relief of the place, which is furnished with all things that can be desired; the Garison consists in about 4600 men, and of them 300 Musketeers, so that it is not doubted but they will make a brave defence.
