Copy of a Letter from Captain Timothy Kelly, Commander of His Majesty's Sloop the Fly, to Mr. Stephens, dated Yarmouth Roads, September 27, 1782.

I BEG you will please to inform my Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty, that I failed from this Place on the 23th Instant, for the Protection of the Herring Fishery; and the next Day, being cruising off Munsley, received Information that a French Cutter Privateer had taken a Brig and Sloop near Cromer; upon which I immediately made Sail, and soon after discovered them; when after a short Chace I recaptured the Brig and Sloop, and renewed the Chace after the Cutter, which I also took after a Chace of Five Hours: She proves to be L'Escamateur of Dunkirk, commanded by one Thomas Roberts, an American, mounting Fourteen Four Pounders (but pierced for Sixteen) and Sixty-five Men. I arrived here this Afternoon, and have brought her with me: She had been from Dunkirk Three Days, and had taken nothing but the Brig and Sloop.
