Stockholme, Aug. 31. Old Stile.

THe last Letters from the Army inform us, that the King has closely blocked up Christiansburg, having burnt the Bridges on both sides that lead into the Town; and as some Letters says, has by Fireballs put the whole Town into a Flame; and is like speedily to be Master of it. The Enemy were not able to do any thing at Calmar, so that they were forced to quit that design. It is said that Count Bent Horne is to go to command the Forces in Livonia, in order to the giving the Elector of Brandenburg a diversion on that side. The Danes have made a great ravage in the Island of Oeland, not having spared the Churches, of which they burnt sixteen, and what Cattle they could not carry away with them, they killed. Four thousand Bores from Drummen and thereabouts, have passed the Mountains, and possessed themselves of the Province of Femtia. The Ryck Chancellor with his Army has passed the River Venner, which hath obliged the Sieur Guldenliet to retire with his Forces, after having well provided Maestran.

Genova, Sept. 30. By a Vessel arrived this week from Sicily we have an account, that the French have divided their Forces, part whereof is before Siracusa, and the other part before Catana, which latter place is said to be very well provided, and that the Duke of Bourbonville is there in person.

Hamburg, Sept. 28. It seems nothing is able to shake the courage of the besieged in Stetin, for notwithstanding the Danes are so well posted on the Isle of Rugen, that they are in a manner Masters of it, and that in such case Stralsund cannot hold out long, yet they continue to defend the place with as much obstinacy as if they had an Army in viewable to relieve them. The Besiegers think fit hitherto to defer the general Assault they tell us they have made long since preparation for, in hopes that the Inhabitants will at last be more reasonable than to expose themselves to an inevitable destruction. Time will shew the issue.

Frankfort, Sept. 27. The Letters we receive from Alsace give us this following Account: That the Duke of Saxe Eysenach, having separated his Army by sending Major General Dunewalt with a detachment to Friburg, and another with his Artillery to Offenburg, according to the orders he had received from the Duke of Lorraine, he encamped with the rest of his Troops on the River Knitsig, resolving to remain there, as in a place of security to observe the Enemies motions; but that Lieutenant-General Monstar having passed the Rhine at Brisc the 18, and the Marschal de Gueul at Rheinfels the 21 instant, they advanced with so much diligence, that they had almost enclosed the Duke of Saxe in his Camp, but a Peasant informing him of the Enemies approach, he was forced to retire in great haste and disorder towards Strasbourg, leaving most, if not all his Baggage behind him; but the French following attacked his Rear about six in the evening on the 22, and killed about 300 of his Men, pursuing the rest under the Cannon of the Fort which guards the Bridge of Strasbourg. The next day the Sieur de Monstar seized upon Wilster, and burnt it, with the Castle that is there, and it is believed he will do the like to several other places in Brissgow, where the Germans have laid up great quantities of Forage. Letters from Spire of the 25 tell us, that the Duke of Lorraine and his General Officers had been treated there two days before by the Elector of Treves; that his Army had in the interim marched from Landau to Philipsburg, where they had passed the Rhine.

Strasbourg, Sept. 27. The nearness of the French Army hath kept us here in a continual alarm, for notwithstanding all the outward appearances of friendship between us and the French, we cannot but believe they resent the retreat we now lately gave to the Troops of the Duke of Saxe Eysenach. In the mean time they have not only burnt Wilster, but likewise Alzenheim, Golcher, and 15 or 16 considerable Villages more; and they give out that they will destroy all the Country between this City and Bisse. The Duke of Lorraine advances this way, and we are assured that his Vanguard will be this evening within a League of this place; he has given orders for the laying a Bridge over the Rhine between this City and Driesheim. The Marschal de Gueul, upon the approach of the Imperial Army, has detached 6000 men, who are at present encamped at Bensels to cover Schlestadt. Yesterday the Imperialists had their head-quarters at Raastan, and this day it will be at Schwartzach.

Cologne, Octob. 1. Our Letters from Alsace of the 27 instant give us an account, That two Captains of Horse, with a Squadron of 80 men, arrived the day before near the Fort on the Rhine, which is over against Strasbourg, and had posted themselves not far from thence at Newweyt; That the Duke of Saxe Eysenach having till then continued encamped with his Troops between the two Bridges of Strasbourg, began to move, part of his Cavalry being already marched to join the Duke of Lorraine; That they were preparing to lay a Bridge over the Rhine; That in the mean time the French made a great destruction in Brissgow; That Prince Ermin of Baden was arrived with some Moris at Offenburg. Our Letters add, that the Regents of the Duchy of Wirtemberg had commanded the Bore to take Arms, to hinder any Troops taking their Winter-quarters there.

Brussels, Octob. 1. This morning a great Convoy parted hence to our Army, which is as yet at Braine-le-Comte and Solignies, but as we are informed will decamp to-morrow, and march towards Engghien. The Duke of Ville Armosa will not, as is said, leave the Campaign till the end of this month, and till Mall and Engghien are sufficiently fortified. From Gant they give us an account, that a detachment of the French Army had passed the Canal of Bruges, and had burnt several Villages belonging to the Viewburg of Gant; that yesterday morning about break of day, the French Troops advanced to the Meadows, under the Cannon of Gant, where the Peasants had sheltered their Cattle; the
