Constantinople, July. The Plague rages here with Violence, and the Mortality is considerable, the Infection having spread in every Quarter of the Town, and the adjacent Villages. Pera and Galata, the Residence of the Franks, have suffered greatly; and in the new Barracks for the Gunners, at Topana, from Twenty to Thirty are buried daily. The raw misty Weather, which promotes the Contagion, has continued these Four Weeks past without Interruption; a very unusual Circumstance in this Climate, and at this Season. Letters from Smirna, of the 17th Instant, mention, that the Plague has also broken out in that City.
