THE following Address of the Gentlemen, Clergy, and Freeholders of the County of Denbigh, has been presented to the King by Lloyd Kenyon, Esq; His Majesty's Attorney General, Chief Justice of Chester, and one of the Representatives in Parliament for the Borough of Hindon, being introduced by the Lord of His Majesty's Bed chamber in Waiting: Which Address His Majesty was pleased to receive very graciously:

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty:

WE, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal Subjects, the Gentlemen, Clergy and Freeholders of the County of Denbigh, assembled at a County Meeting duly summoned by public Notice from the High Sheriff, at the same Time that we lament the political Divisions of the present Time, beg Leave to offer to your Majesty our most grateful Acknowledgments of that salutary and expedient Exercise of your Majesty's Royal, constitutional, and undisputed Prerogative of dismissing, from the Public Service, the late Ministers of the Kingdom.—A Set of Men, who, separated in Principle, were united only in that Lust for Power and Employment; which they grasped at with Deceit and obtained by Violence: Men, who fortunately for the Kingdom, at an early Period of their Administration, were weak and daring enough to discover a Design, in one and the same Measure, of sacrificing the Rights and Properties of Individuals, and the just and equitable Limits of our sacred Constitution,

Long may your Majesty continue to be the watchful Guardian of your own Prerogatives, and therein of your People's Rights; whilst we making humble Offers, as we now beg Leave to do, of our Lives and Fortunes, in Support of your Majesty's Exertions to these great Ends, are satisfied, we do all that in us lies to transmit inviolate to Posterity, that Constitution which has been bequeathed to us by the Virtues and Wisdom of our Forefathers, trusting that, in the End, your Majesty, by Divine Providence, may reign quiet and undisturbed in the Hearts and Affections of a free and united People.

Signed, by Order of the Meeting,
Thomas Fitzmaurice, Chairman.

The following Address of the Citizens of Bristol, has been presented to the King by Sir Watkin Lewes, Knt. one of the Representatives in Parliament for the City of London, accompanied by the Right Honourable Lord Hood, Thomas Evans, Esq; and Mr. David Lewes, Merchant, Burgesses of the said City, being introduced by the Lord of His Majesty's Bed-chamber in Waiting:

[Price Seven-Pence.]

Which Address His Majesty was pleased to receive very graciously:

The humble Address of the Citizens of Bristol to His Majesty.

Most Gracious Sovereign,

WE, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal Subjects, the Citizens of Bristol, in Merchant Taylors Hall assembled, sensible of the Obligation we are laid under by your Majesty's benevolent Conduct on a late alarming Occasion, feel ourselves bound to approach the Throne with all Humility and Respect, and to repeat our assurances of our constant Attachment to your Majesty, and the Government of our Country.

The late Attempt so rashly made by a Ministry, under the specious but deceitful Pretence of the Good of the People of your Majesty's Kingdom of Great Britain, to annul the Rights of the East-India Company, and raise an influencing Power, unknown to our Constitution, and subversive of its Welfare; we have beheld, with great Concern and Apprehension, as tending, on the one Hand, to infringe on the Rights of the Crown, and, on the other, to injure your Kingdom at large.

As this Attempt however was wisely frustrated, and your Majesty has since, in your abundant Regard for the Good of all your faithful Subjects, dismissed and removed that Ministry, which boldly endeavoured to carry it into Execution; we look up to your Majesty with Gratitude of Heart, for having thus exerted your Prerogative on so necessary an Occasion.

We rejoice in seeing that your Majesty hath borne in Mind the very Spirit of our Constitution, by the Choice of another Ministry which we hope do not mean to distinguish between the Interests of the Subjects, and those of the Crown; but which, on the contrary, by blending them inseparably together, will become as deserving your Majesty's Confidence, as of the Respect and Admiration of your Kingdom at large.

The Prerogatives of your Majesty's Crown being in this Manner exerted for the Good of all your People, we, the Citizens of Bristol, beg your Majesty to accept our warmest Thanks for the same, with an Assurance that we shall ever be ready, at the Expence of our Property and Lives, to defend and preserve them inviolate for the Benefit of Posterity, against all Encroachments whatsoever.

[Signed by 1065 residing in Bristol, and 32 Burgesses residing in London. In all 1097.]

The following Address of the Corporation, Freemen, and other Inhabitants of the City of Wells, has been presented to the King by John Curtis, Esq; one of the Representatives in Parliament for the said City, being introduced by the Lord of His Majesty's Bedchamber in Waiting: Which Address
