

The following Address of the Inhabitants of the Borough of Tewkesbury, has been presented to the King by James Martin, Esq; one of the Representatives in Parliament for the said Borough, being introduced by the Lord of His Majesty's Bed-chamber in Waiting: Which Address His Majesty was pleased to receive very graciously.

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty,
The humble Address of the Inhabitants of the Borough of Tewkesbury, in the County of Gloucester.

Most Gracious Sovereign,

WE, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal Subjects, with all Humility present our Assurances of faithful and steady Attachment to your Majesty's Person, Family, and Government.

Our happy Constitution having placed in your Majesty's Power the sole Appointment of Ministers, we firmly rely on your Majesty's Wisdom and paternal Affection at all Times to raise to those exalted Stations, Men of distinguished Abilities, strict Integrity, and sound Constitutional Principles.

We cannot but express our most sincere and cordial Approbation of the Conduct and manly Resolution of those Persons whom your Majesty has at this Time thought most eligible to fill those important Offices.—And we trust, and sincerely hope, as they are so eminently distinguished for their private and public Virtues, having the Confidence of their Sovereign, and the good Opinion of your Majesty's loyal Subjects, they will be ever animated by an honest and laudable Zeal to serve their Country.

Repeating our strong Assurances that we will always steadfastly support the Constitutional Exercise of your Majesty's just Prerogatives, to the utmost of our Power, we most heartily wish you every Comfort and Blessing this World can afford; and earnestly pray that your Majesty may long gloriously reign over a free, happy, and united People.

The following Address of the Freeholders and Principal Inhabitants of the Town and Neighbourhood of Redruth, has been presented to the King by Sir Francis Bassett, one of the Representatives in Parliament for the Borough of Penryn, being introduced by the Lord of His Majesty's Bed-chamber in Waiting: Which Address His Majesty was pleased to receive very graciously.

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty.

Most Gracious Sovereign,

WE, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal Subjects, the Freeholders and Principal Inhabitants of the Town and Neighbourhood of Redruth, in the County of Cornwall, deeply impressed with Sorrow at the present lamentable State of Public Affairs, occasioned, as we conceive, by the Want of a firm and united Administration, beg Leave to express our most earnest Hope that your Majesty will, in Compliance with the Wishes of the House of Commons, call into your Councils such Men as may have the Confidence of Parliament, under whose Administration this Country may once more regain its Consequence, and we may again become a happy and united People.

The following Address of the Freeholders, Justices of the Peace, Commissioners of Supply, and Heritors of the County of Edinburgh, has been presented to the King by the Right Honourable Henry Dundas, Representative in Parliament for the County of Edinburgh, being introduced by the Lord of His Majesty's Bed-chamber in Waiting: Which Address His Majesty was pleased to receive very graciously.

Unto the KING's most Excellent Majesty,

The Address of the Freeholders, Justices of the Peace, Commissioners of Supply, and Heritors of the County of Edinburgh.

Most Gracious Sovereign,

WE, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal Subjects, the Freeholders, Justices of the Peace, Commissioners of Supply, and Heritors of the County of Edinburgh, conceive it to be our Duty now to exercise that Privilege, the Birthright of Britons, of approaching the Throne of their Sovereign, and of conveying to His Ear, the unbiassed, unsolicited, and honest Expression of their Sentiments and Wishes.

While we have beheld of late, with great Concern, the most open and resolute Efforts towards an Innovation of our admirable Constitution, both in the Attempt to create a new executive Power, and in the Challenge of the most clear and defined Prerogative of the Crown:—While we have seen these Attempts seconded by a determined and uniform Endeavour to impede every Measure of Government, we have marked, with a Heart-felt Satisfaction, the Exertion on the Part of your Majesty, of a calm and persevering Wisdom, in the steady Refusal of your Acquiescence in those Demands of disappointed Partizans, which would strip the Sovereign of His legal Powers, and destroy the Balance of that Constitution which is the Admiration and Envy of Europe.

We are fully convinced, Sire, that, since the glorious Era of the Revolution, the Sceptre of these Realms has never been wielded with more Moderation, nor the Rights of the People more inviolably preserved, than under your Majesty's Reign: And we trust that your Majesty, with the Aid of able Ministers of your free Choice and Appointment, will invariably pursue such Measures of Government, as will tend to the Maintenance of the just Rights of every Branch of the Constitution, and the Happiness of your Subjects.

Signed in our Name, and by our Appointment,
by the Præsides of the Meeting, at Edinburgh,
the 11th of March, 1784.

Arch. Hope.

The following Address of the Lord Provost, Magistrates and Council of the City of Glasgow, has been presented to the King by John Craufurd, Esq; Representative in Parliament for the City of Glasgow, being introduced by the Lord of His Majesty's Bed-chamber in Waiting: Which Address His Majesty was pleased to receive very graciously.

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty,

The humble Address of the Lord Provost, Magistrates and Council of the City of Glasgow.

Most Gracious Sovereign,

WE, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal Subjects, the Lord Provost, Magistrates, and Council of the City of Glasgow, in Common Council assembled, consider it as our Duty, at this important Crisis of Public Affairs, to express to your Majesty the warmest Assurances of our Zeal and Attachment to your Person, Family and Government.

Conscious of the Benefits we derive from our excellent Constitution, and from your Majesty's paternal Concern for the Welfare of your People, we approach the Throne with Sentiments of unfeigned Gratitude,
