A Proclamation Requiring the Members of both Houses of Parliament to give their Attendance upon the Fifteenth day of January next.

CHARLES R.

Whereas the Kings most Excellent Majesty by His Royal Proclamation of the Six and twentieth day of October last, did give Notice, That he intended an Adjournment of both Houses of Parliament, from the Third day of December instant, (being the day prefixed for their Assembly) until the Fourth day of April next; And whereas His Majesty upon the said Third day of December, did by Message severally to each House of Parliament, signify, That (for divers Weighy Considerations) His Majesty did think fit to meet the said Houses sooner than the said Fourth day of April; And that therefore His Pleasure was, That the said Houses of Parliament should be severally Adjourned until the Fifteenth day of January next; To which time both Houses were Adjourned accordingly. Of all which His Majesty is graciously pleased that all persons concerned should have timely notice; and doth therefore hereby Publish, and make known the sum. And His Majesty being desirous (in respect of several important Matters intended to be Debated, and Considered) to have on the said Fifteenth day of January, a full Assembly of the Members of both Houses of Parliament, hath (with the Advice of His Privy Council) thought fit to Require, and doth hereby Require and Command all and every the Lords Spiritual and Temporal of this Realm, and the Knights, Citizens and Burgesses of the House of Commons, to give their Attendance at Westminster on the said Fifteenth day of January next. And His Majesty doth expect a ready Conformity to this His Royal Will and Pleasure.

Given at Our Court at Whitehall the 7th day of December 1677. in the Nine and twentieth year of Our Reign.

Turin, Nov. 19. At Pignerol is arrived a French Intendant, who is to provide all things necessary for the Troops designed to attack the Spinniards in Milan; from whence we have an account, that the Prince de Ligge, Governor of that Country, is putting it in the best posture of defence he can, that he had sent a state of the Militia of that Duchy to the Court at Madrid; as also an account of the posture the several Garisons are in, to the end such resolutions may be taken hereupon, as to enable him to supply in time what is found wanting. From Rome we hear, that the matter concerning the Priviledges pretended by the Ambassadors, cannot be yet determined; and though the Pope is resolved to suppress them, yet he meets with so much opposition in it, that he cannot yet go through with it.

Hamburg, Decemb. 7. Here is arrived a person who came out of Spain six days ago, he gives a sad description of the ruines and desolation of the place, and the hardships the Inhabitants are exposed to; but at the same time assures us, that they do not abate in the least of the courage and resolution they have given proof of all along, that they will never surrender the place, that if the Besiegers are resolved to be Masters of it, they must take it with their Swords in their hands, that they are resolved to expect it, and if they are overpowered, to be buried in the ruines of their City; but
