Windsor, August 16.

HIS Majesty, the Queen, and their Royal Highnesses the Princess Royal, Princess Augusta and Princess Elizabeth, set out from Earl Harcourt's Seat at Nuneham Courtney, after Divine Service on Sunday Morning last, and arrived at the Eastern Gate of the public Schools at Oxford soon after One o'Clock. They were conducted through the Divinity School to the Sheldonian Theatre, where Their Majesties and the Princesses being seated, the Vice-Chancellor presented an Address from himself, the Masters and Scholars of the University, which His Majesty was pleased to receive very graciously, and to return a most gracious Answer.

Their Majesties from thence proceeded to visit the Chapel at New College, the Colleges of Wadham, Trinity, Lincoln and Brazenoze. They then went to the Council Chamber, where an Address was presented from the Mayor, Bailiffs and Commonalty, and most graciously received by His Majesty, who was at the same Time pleased to confer the Honour of Knighthood on Richard Tawney, Esq; Senior Alderman of the City of Oxford. Their Majesties with the Princesses then visited Christ-Church College, and returned to Nuneham the same Evening, at about Half an Hour after Six o'Clock.

Their Majesties and the Princesses set out again from Nuneham between Nine and Ten o'Clock on Monday Morning, and arrived at Blenheim between Eleven and Twelve, having been met and attended thither by the Inhabitants of Woodstock. Their Majesties were received at Blenheim by the Duke and Dutchess of Marlborough with every Mark of Attention and Respect. After having viewed the House, and as much of the Park as the Time would admit of, they returned to Nuneham about Eight o'Clock.

On Tuesday Morning at Nuneham, His Majesty was pleased to confer the Honour of Knighthood on Charles Nourse, Esq; of Oxford; and an Address was there presented to the King from the Gentlemen, Clergy, and other Inhabitants of the Town of Witney, and its Neighbourhood, which His Majesty was pleased to receive very graciously.

Their Majesties and the Princesses left Nuneham a little after One o'Clock, and arrived at Windsor a little before Six o'Clock on Tuesday Evening.

[The Address from the University of Oxford.]

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty.

Most Gracious Sovereign,

WE, your Majesty's dutiful and loyal Subjects, the Chancellor, Masters and Scholars of the University of Oxford, deeply impressed by this repeated Instance of your Majesty's gracious Condescension and Goodness, beg Leave to signify, in the strongest Manner, the increased Satisfaction we receive from the Royal Presence among us after the happy

Deliverance, which it has pleased the Divine Providence to grant your Majesty, from the late alarming and horrid Attempt to deprive these Kingdoms of that invaluable Life to which we owe the inestimable Blessings of Protection and Security, the genuine Effects of a mild and equal Government.

With similar Sentiments of Pleasure and Satisfaction we behold the most exalted and most amiable of her Sex relieved from those Sensations of anxious Solitude which nothing could effectually remove, but the Reflection that the Attempt, however desperate, was not the deliberate Act of Malice or Disaffection, but the wild Effort of a disordered Mind.

We shall not fail, with our Thanks, to offer up our sincerest Prayers to that Being, in whom alone are the Issues of Life, for the continued Safety and Prosperity of your Majesty, and your Illustrious House; on which the Welfare of the Nation at large, and of this Seat of Religion and Learning in particular, most essentially depends.

Given at our House of Convocation this Twelfth Day of August, in the Year of our Lord, 1786.

His Majesty's Most Gracious Answer.

SUCH dutiful Sentiments, on My second Visit to this Seat of Learning, accompanied by affectionate Congratulations on the Protection of Divine Providence, manifested by the Failure of the Attempt on My Life, call forth My warmest Thanks. I am not less sensible of your Expressions towards the Queen.

The University of Oxford may ever depend on My Inclination to encourage every Branch of Science, as the more My Subjects are enlightened, the more they must be attached to the excellent Constitution established in this Realm.

[The Address from the Corporation of Oxford.]

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty.

WE, your Majesty's dutiful and loyal Subjects, the Mayor, Bailiffs and Commonalty of the City of Oxford, in Common-Council assembled, influenced by the purest Motives of Gratitude for every Blessing we could hope or wish for under your Majesty's mild and auspicious Reign, with the most heartfelt Satisfaction congratulate your Majesty on your late providential Escape from the Hands of an Assassin. An Attempt so outrageous and daring upon a Life sacred and inestimable in the Eyes of all Mankind, could only be conceived by one, whom Nature or Infirmary had rendered incapable of knowing your Majesty's Virtues; and it is Matter of high Consolation to us, as well as it must have been to your Royal Breast, to hear that it came from a Person of that unhappy Description.

Deeply concerned as we are for your Majesty's Welfare, we cannot resist the Impulse of our Feelings in beseeching your Majesty, that the most effectual Means may be taken to prevent in future so disastrous a Calamity
