Whitehall, March 31:

THE following Addresses having been delivered or transmitted to the Right Honourable Lord Sydney, His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Home Department, have been by him presented to the King: Which Addresses His Majesty was pleased to receive very graciously.

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty,

The humble Address of the President, Council and Fellows of the Royal Society of London, for improving natural Knowledge.

Most Gracious Sovereign,

WE, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal Subjects, the President, Council and Fellows of the Royal Society, beg Leave to offer our cordial and most sincere Congratulations to your Majesty, on the Restoration of your Health; for which gracious Dispensation of His Providence we return our humble Thanks to the supreme Disposer of all Events.

The flourishing and opulent State of the Kingdom, and the unrivalled Excellence which our Agriculture and Manufactures have attained, evince the Wisdom and Goodness of your Majesty's Reign; whilst the Grief which pervaded all Ranks of Persons during your late Illness, and the universal Joy expressed on your Recovery, shew that your People are duly sensible of the Blessings they enjoy.

But your Majesty's faithful Subjects of the Royal Society, besides the Advantages they reap in common with the other Members of the Community from your Majesty's mild and equitable Government, have the further Reason to rejoice at your happy Recovery, that your Majesty has always deigned to bestow particular Attention upon those Sciences, for the Promotion of which the Royal Society was instituted. By your Royal Patronage they have been encouraged, and by your Bounty advanced, in a Manner that adds Splendor to the present Age, and ensures to your Majesty the Gratitude of Posterity.

It is our fervent Wish, that your Majesty may enjoy a long and prosperous Reign, for the Happiness of your People, and the general Benefit of Mankind.

Given under our Common Seal, this 26th Day of March, 1789.

In the Hour of our Distress our Affliction knew no Bounds when we reflected upon the many great and inestimable Blessings which we have enjoyed under your Majesty's Government; our Liberties, Civil and Religious, preserved to us inviolate; the Laws duly and regularly administered; and all such such Plans of sound Policy invariably pursued, as have no other Object than the Public Good. To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty,

The humble and unanimous Address of the Mayor and Citizens of the City of Rochester, in Common Hall assembled, the 23d Day of March, 1789.

WE, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal Subjects, the Mayor and Citizens of your City of Rochester, approach with heartfelt Joy to congratulate your Majesty's auspicious Restoration to Health, and to the personal Exercise of the Government of your Kingdoms; assuring your Majesty, that none of your Subjects more truly feel the Happiness of that Event, so universally and ardently desired, than the Citizens of this ancient and loyal City.

We trust, it has pleased Providence to permit our late Calamity for Purposes of Good to this Country; to demonstrate to us more strongly the Excellence of our Constitution, from the Distress and Embarrassment which threatened to follow a Suspension of the executive Government in those Hands where only it is rightly placed; and to manifest more clearly to your Majesty the affectionate Loyalty of every Class of your Subjects: They have lamented it, Sire, not only as a Public Misfortune, but as a Domestic Grief, which came Home to the Bosom of every Man; and as their Anxiety was extreme, their Joy is uncommon and universal.

If our Prayers and Wishes are heard, your Majesty will long continue to rule over a loyal, loving and beloved People; to set the fairest Example of publick and private Virtues; and to govern us with the same Wisdom, Mildness and Regard for our true Interests, which we have so long happily experienced. It will be our Duty to prove ourselves not unworthy of your Majesty's paternal Care, by a ready Support of legal Authority; by a conscientious Obedience to the Laws; and by endeavouring, as far as we are impowered, by a due Execution of them, to promote Virtue and Religion, the only sure Foundations of publick Order and Tranquility.

[Delivered by Sir Charles Middleton, Bart. and Nathaniel Smith, Esq; Representatives in Parliament for the said City.]

Unto the KING's Most Excellent Majesty.

May it please your Majesty,

WE, the Noblemen, Gentlemen, Freeholders and Commissioners of Supply of the County of Lanark, beg Leave to approach your Majesty with the Sentiments of Subjects attached to your Person, and loyal to your Family and Government.

With Feelings of the warmest Satisfaction we congratulate your Majesty on the happy Re-establishment of your Health; deeply sensible how intimately every Circumstance, which relates to your personal Welfare, involves the Happiness, the Interest, and the Glory of the Nation.

It is our most earnest Wish that your Majesty may long continue to reign over a prosperous and a grateful People; who, when Calamities of whatever Description assail the State, may attain and improve the important Knowledge of setting a just Value on the many Blessings they enjoy under your mild and auspicious Government.

Signed at the Appointment of the Meeting held at Hamilton, the 16th of March, 1789, by their Præses, Hamilton and Brandon.
