Mosco, June 12.

THE Ambassadors of Poland are still here, and are extremely carested, the Ministers of this Court thinking it necessary at this time that these Countries are going into so great a War with the Turks, to keep up a perfect friendship and correspondence with the Crown of Poland, and for that reason it's believed they will consent to the several particulars demanded by them, and even that great one concerning the restitution of Kiovia and Smolensko, which this Court would never hitherto hear of. The Czar continues very much indisposed, so that he appears not abroad; and there are those that suspect that it has not altogether a natural cause. The Czar has given the command of all his Armies to General Rodomanoski, who we have advice had ordered 20000 men to pass the Nieper, to observe the motions of the Turks, and to harass them in their march. A Body of an Army is likewise drawn together near Astracan, which is to fall into the Territories of the Crim Tartars, whose Kam has with all the force he could make, joined the Turks.

Madrid, July 16. About the middle of the last month the Dutch Squadron under the command of the Sieur Evertz sailed from Barcelona, to go and look after the French Men of War, who had cruised on those Coasts under the command of Monsieur de Quefne; but the Sieur Evertz understanding that the said Men of War had quitted the Coast, and had taken their course towards Toulon, he returned with his ships to Barcelona, from whence he sailed again the 5th instant for Roses, according to the orders that have been sent from hence to Cadix; it is not doubted but the Gallions sailed from thence the 13 or 14 instant for the Indies. Upon the search that was made, as we told you heretofore, by the Kings Officers, above 800 Bales of Prohibited Goods were discovered and seized, besides those that were thrown into the Sea by the Captains of the ships, to prevent their falling under farther prejudice, save the loss of their Goods.

Vienna, July 20. On Monday last the Duke and Dutchess of Nauburg arrived here by water, and were received by their Imperial Majesties at the water-side. The same day the Emperor had Letters by an Express from the Duke of Lorraine, giving an account of the sharp Engagement a detachment of his Army had had with the French near Rhinvelt. The Letters from Hungary confirm what we have already told you of the Rebels having been forced with considerable loss to quit the Blokade of Caschau. The Sieur Grakaw, Envoy of the Elector of Brandenburg, has frequent Conferences with the Ministers of this Court, concerning the great affair of the Peace, which his Electoral Highness thinks ought by no means to be made upon the Terms proposed by the French. In the mean time we are expecting to see whether any way will be found out to remove the difficulty which we hear is arisen in this great Work, about France quitting the Towns in Flanders, which they pretend not to do till Sueden be restored to what they have lost during the War.

Copenhagen, July 23. By Vessels come in from the Balticke we have an account, that our Fleet hath sustained much damage in bad weather, and that it will be necessary some ships come home to repair. From Schonen we are told, that our Army marches, in order to relieve Christianstadt.

Ditto, July 26. Passengers come over from Elsenburg inform us, that yesterday the King decamped with an Army of between 13 and 14000 men, and took his march directly towards Christianstadt, to relieve that place, which is extremely streightned. The Suedes in Babus defend themselves stout, and that Siege proves a work of great difficulty.

Hamburg, July 30. We may now in a very short time expect to hear that the Brandenburg Troops in Pomeran have entred upon some action of moment, the general belief is they will besiege Straelsond, which is the onely place of moment that remains to the Suedes in that Country. The Danish Fleet has been forced to leave that Coast, and to go to Bornbolme, to repair the damages they have lately received in bad weather. From Denmark they write positively that that King was marched in order to relieve Christianstadt, near which the King of Sueden is posted with his Army; so that it's probable they will come to an Engagement. The Fortres of Babus defends it self very briskly, in somuch that we have seen some Letters which speak somewhat desparingly of the success. It is most certain that greatest part of the Lunenburg Troops, which were otherwise intended to have acted in conjunction with those of the Elector of Brandenburg, are now ordered to march towards the Rhine to strengthen the Imperial Army.

Cologne, July 29. After the many uncertain reports we have had concerning our Electors returning to his Residente at Bonne, we cannot give credit any more to any thing that is said of it, and it is rather believed that the Emperor will not think fit to part with that place, till the Peace be concluded, of which considering the difficulties that are lately arisen in it at Nimeguen, there are at present very little hope. We have nothing new from Alsace, save what we told you in our last of the French attacking Offenburg, which we expect will bring the two Armies to an Engagement, seeing it is not to be thought that the Duke of Lorraine will suffer that place to be lost if it is in his power to hinder it.

Liège, July 31. Our Neighborhood begins to be freed of the Troops which have had their stations hereabouts; for on one side the Marschal de Schomberg, according to the orders he has received, is marching towards Flanders, to reinforce the Duke of Luxemburg's Army; and on the other side the Forces of the Elector of Brandenburg, and those of the Duke of Lunenburg, who were designed to be employed upon the Meuse, are likewise marched that
