

Great Britain had honorably maintained a strict Neutrality, and generously forbore to interfere in her domestic Arrangements, had openly countenanced the seditious Designs of those unworthy Men, who, insensible of the Blessings they enjoyed under this admirable Constitution, had traitorously courted the Fraternity of France, and strove to disseminate in this happy Country the same infamous Principles which had involved that Nation in Misery and Ruin.

Such is that Enemy whom the Circumstances of the Safety of our Allies, the general Peace of Europe, and at length an open Declaration of War against ourselves, now call upon us to resist with all our Force. We prepare therefore to sustain our Part in this most necessary War, as becomes a brave and an independent People. We devote ourselves with manly Zeal to the Defence of our Country, in this Hour of Danger; and we will cheerfully contribute our Lives and Fortunes, in a vigorous and patriotic Exertion to maintain the Honour of the British Arms, to support your Majesty's wise and equitable Government, and to preserve the Purity, Independence, and Stability of our glorious Constitution.

Signed and sealed by our Appointment, and in our Presence, this 20th Day of February, 1793.

Tho. Elder, Provoft.

Whitehall, February 26.

The following Address has been presented to the King: Which Address His Majesty was pleased to receive very graciously.

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty,

The humble Address of the Inhabitants of the Town and Neighbourhood of Oldham, Lancashire.

Most Gracious Sovereign,

WE, the Inhabitants of the Town and Neighbourhood of Oldham, Lancashire, highly sensible of the Blessings we enjoy under your Majesty's mild and equitable Government, humbly presume to approach the Throne with the warmest Expressions of Loyalty and Gratitude for the wise and salutary Measures adopted by your Majesty for the Suppression of those seditious and libellous Publications which have of late disgraced the Liberty of the Press.

Firmly attached to your Majesty and our glorious and happy Constitution in Church and State, it is with the deepest Regret and utter Abhorrence we see the insidious Attempts of ill-disposed Persons to disseminate those levelling Principles that have caused the horrid Scenes of Rebellion and Murder in a neighbouring Nation, and which, if introduced into this Kingdom, must inevitably deprive us of all an Englishman holds most dear; his Religion, Liberty and Laws.

At the Foot of the Throne we therefore beg Leave to offer our Lives and Fortunes, which we freely devote to the Support of your Majesty's Person and Government.

We deplore the Fate of the late unfortunate and much injured French Monarch, but while the sympathizing Tear flows from our Eyes at the Recital of his unmerited Suffering, we reflect with redoubled Pleasure on the inestimable Happiness of our own Situation, in being Subjects of a Sovereign, whose private Virtues endear him to the Hearts of all his People, as much as his public Conduct commands their Admiration and Respect.
