this His Majesty's Order in Council, it shall be lawful to import Wheat and Wheat-Meal or Flour upon the lowest Duty specified in the Table marked D. in the said Act passed in the Thirty-first Year of His present Majesty's Reign, until the End of the present Session of Parliament, or until such Time as His Majesty shall think fit to revoke this present Order.—And the Right Honourable the Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury are to give the necessary Direction herein accordingly.

W. Fawkener.

Extract of a Letter from Colonel Sir James Murray, Bart. Adjutant-General to the Forces under the Command of His Royal Highness the Duke of York, to Mr. Secretary Dundas, dated Tournay, May 10, 1793.

IN consequence of the Movements of the Enemy, which gave Reason to expect an Attack upon the Austrian and Prussian Posts, His Royal Highness determined to march in the Morning of the 8th to their Support. He arrived about Six o'Clock at the Camp of Maulde with the Brigade of Guards, and a Battalion of the 10th Regiment of Hanoverian Infantry. The Prussian General was by this Means enabled to reinforce himself, at St. Amand and the adjoining Wood, with the Troops which had occupied that important Position.

The Attack commenced about Seven o'Clock. It was directed against the Posts occupied by General Clairfait, which extend from the Scheldt to the Abbaye de Vicogne, and the Prussian Corps which defends the Wood in the Front of the high Road, leading from that Place to St. Amand.

To these Points were directed the whole Efforts of the French Army, which had been previously reinforced by all they could bring together from every Quarter. General Knobelsdorf, having been under the Necessity of sending a considerable Part of his Troops to support the Austrians at the Abbaye de Vicogne, His Royal Highness, about Five o'Clock, left Two Battalions in the Camp at Maulde, and marched with the Coldstream, the Flank Battalion; and that of the Third

Third Regiment, to his Support. When the Battalion of the Coldstream, which was upon the Left, arrived; the Enemy had nearly reached the Road; they already commanded it, to a great Degree, by their Fire: The Guns attached to the Battalion were placed upon it, and, by a well directed and well supported Fire, kept the Battery which was opposed to them in Check, and did considerable Execution.

The Battalion advanced into the Wood, attacked and drove the Enemy before them: In going forward they became unfortunately exposed to the Fire of a Battery, from which they suffered severely. They fell back to their Position at the Edge of the Wood, which they maintained for the Rest of the Day, notwithstanding a heavy Cannonade; the Enemy made no Attempt to approach them. Nothing can exceed the Spirit and Bravery displayed by the Men and Officers of the Battalion upon this Occasion; nor is less Praise due to the Alacrity and Intrepidity with which the other Battalions advanced into Action. They took different Positions in the Wood, where they were at Times exposed to a severe Cannonade, from which, however, they received little Injury, the Direction of the Fire being in general above them. There were seen this Morning between 40 and 50 of the French lying dead upon the Spot upon which the Fire of the Coldstream and of its Guns had been directed. Major-General Lake commanded the Battalions which went into Action; and His Royal Highness declared that he was much indebted to him for his Exertions.

The Importance of the Service rendered by His Majesty's Troops upon this Day has been acknowledged, in the strongest and most explicit Terms, by the Generals of the different Armies; and if by their timely Co-operation the Enemy were prevented from advancing upon the high Road, it cannot be doubted that they contributed, in a very great Degree, to secure the Fortune of the Day.

At the Abbaye de Vicogue and the Village of Raimés the Action continued, with almost equal and unremitting Violence, till Eight o'Clock in the Evening: General Clairfait was every where successful in maintaining his Ground; the Enemy, however, though baffled and defeated in their Purpose, remained in the Woods within a very small Distance of his Posts. During the Action they cannonaded the Prussian Camp near St. Amand.—I am not exactly informed what Measures they took in order to keep the Prince of Cobourg in Check, but it appears that nothing of Moment passed in that Quarter.

Upon the following Day, the 9th, there was little Firing, and it was not known what might be the Intention of the Enemy. His Royal Highness thought it therefore proper to let the Troops remain till the Evening at St. Amand and Maulde: Every Thing being quiet, and Intelligence having been received that the Troops opposed to General Knobelsdorff were retreating, they began their March for Tournay, but he was stopped at the Village of Maulde by a Meslage from General Clairfait, informing him that the Enemy had erected Batteries all along his Front, as well as upon some Part of General Knobelsdorff's, which, if they were allowed to compleat and to possess, it would become extremely difficult for him to maintain his Position. His Royal Highness immediately stopped the March of the Troops, and went himself to St. Amand, where he was met by General Clairfait and General Knobelsdorff. It was agreed that the Austrians and Prussians should assault the Whole of the Batteries at Day-break, whilst His Royal Highness retained Possession of the Camp of Maulde.

This was done accordingly, and had the desired Success. The Enemy had withdrawn their Cannon in the Night; but they were entirely driven from the Batteries, several killed, and upwards of 100 Prisoners taken, with a very inconsiderable Loss. Thus defeated upon every Occasion, the Enemy seem to have entirely abandoned their Design: The Body, which came from Lisse, has fallen back upon Orchies. There was Firing To-day at one of General Clairfait's Posts, but nothing which had the Appearance of a serious Attack. By the Account of Deserters and Prisoners, they lost 4,000 Men upon the 8th.—General Dampiere is said to have received a Wound, of which he is since dead.

The Troops arrived this Evening in their former Quarters.

The Austrians had upwards of 500 killed and wounded, and the Prussians 300, on the 8th.
