Genoa, December 14.

THE 10th Instant arrived here the King's Fisher, and the Fames Gally, being Convoys to the William, John Williams Commander; and the Theodor, Nicolas Caseley Commander. About ten Sail of Merchantsmen are past by for Legorn. And we have an account, that Sir John Narborough is gone with 13 Sail of Men of War and Fireships for Algiers; and that Viceadmiral Herbert Cruises with another Squadron in the Streights mouth.

Vienna, Dec. 11. Two dayes since arrived here an Extraordinary Courier with Letters from the Duke of Lorraine, giving his Imperial Majesty an account, That he had put the Army into Winter-quarters, and that he had assigned his own at Efingen; and desiring to know the Emperors resolutions concerning the Recruits, and other Preparations that are to be made against the next Campaign, which he says the French intend to begin very early, and for that purpose will have all their Troops complee before the end of January. From Hungary we have the confirmation of the defeat of 3000 Turks, (who had made an incursion into the Country of Vakon and Thian) by the Imperial Troops drawn out of those and other Garisons; and that of the Turks, several Aga's and other Persons of Note had been taken Prisoners.

Dantzick, Dec. 12. In our last we gave you an account, that the Suedes Army had passed the Memel at Tilse, and had possessed themselves of that place; all the account we have since from those Parts, is, that the said Army lies encamped about 3 Leagues on this side Tilse, endeavouring all they can to oblige the Country People to remain in their Houses, and to furnish them with whar they have. The Sieur Leienboocké, who hath long resided here on the part of the Crown of Sueden, is upon his departure from hence for Grudentz, in order, as is said, to his drawing the Troops together, who were raised long since by the French Ambassador, and the marching them to the Suedes Army; they are to be commanded by Count Carelfon. The Elector of Braudenburgh, we are told, has sent to the King of Poland, to know what he is to expect from him in this conjuncture of Affairs, whether he intends to countenance or assist the Suedes or him, or to remain Neutral. His Electoral Highness is, it's said, suddenly expected in these Parts.

Coningsberg, Dec. 13. The consternation here is great, occasioned by the Enemies being so near us; they have certainly possess themselves of the Town and Castle of Tilse, and of the Castle of Ragnitz, and this day we had a report, that their whole Army was advanced to Wellen, and that their Parties have been plundering near the Pillau. Lieutenant General Gortskj is gone hence to join his Troops he brought from Pomeren, which passed by this City some dayes since: The Officer that commanded the Troops that were posted at Tilse for the guard of that passage, is very much blamed for having abandon'd it, as he did, and it's not improbable but he may be called to an account for it. We are told that the Suedes are 18000 strong, and that they do everywhere treat the Country People very kindly, to encourage them to remain in their Houses.

Berlin, Dec. 18. The Wagons belonging to his Electoral Highnesses Artillery are brought hither, as is said, to repair, that so they may be sent to Prussia, whither the Troops march daily; as did yesterday 800 of the Electors Guards, under the command of Lieutenant Colonel Wrangeh, and they will in a day or two be followed by the Regiment of the Electoral Prince, and five Regiments of Horse; and when these Troops arrive in Prussia, and have joined those that are already there, we doubt not but they will be strong enough to make head against the Suedes, and to secure that Country against their attempts.

Copenhagen, Dec. 19. The mistrust that some had of the Elector of Braudenburgh being about treating separately with France, are wholly removed by the late Interview between his Majesty and his Electoral Highness. For in the Conferences they had together, all matters were determined with mutual satisfaction, and resolutions were taken to carry on the War with all possible vigor, and never to admit of any separate Transactions or Propositions concerning a Peace. We cannot hear that the Treaty, which hath been mentioned, for the security of the Conquests they have made in this War is yet concluded, much depending upon the resolutions of the Dukes of Lunenburgh, and the Bishop of Munster, who are to be Parties in this Treaty, and who, especially the latter, is believed to incline more to a Peace, than to continuing the War.

Hamburg, Dec. 23. We have heard nothing farther since our last, concerning the loss of the Vessels that transported the Suedes from Pomeren; there are those that will not believe it, and tell us they have an account; that only four Vessels were lost, and that even most of the Men on board of them were saved; it is to be wished for the sake of so many poor Men, that this last may prove true: But from Lubeck, they write very positively, that a Master of a Vessel arriving there, did assure that near 2000 dead Bodies of these Soldiers that were cast away, had been driven ashore on the Isle of Bornholm: The Suedes Army being come into Prussia, has occasioned a great consternation at Coningsberg; and the more, for that there appears not as yet a Force sufficient to make head against them.

Strasburgh, Dec. 23. The French Troops in Burgundy have Orders, as we are informed, to come into Alsace, to join the other Forces which Monsieur de Monclar is drawing together. They threaten us with a sudden Siege, and we have ground enough to be lieve that they are in earnest; for the Preparations they are making, do plainly demonstrate, that they have some great enterprize in hand. We on our sides do in the mean time all we can to provide for our security, and the Duke of Lorraine has assured us, that he will be at hand to assist us, when ever there is need of it; his Highness is at present at Gunfberg, with his Queen; and the Imperial Troops are every where in their Winter-quarters.

Cologne, Dec. 27. The French are drawing their Troops together, in order, as is generally believed, to the attacking the City of Juliers; which puts us into so great an anxiety here, that besides the Troops we have rais'd at our own charge, our Magistrates are going to call the Luxemburgs, and other Troops of the Allies to their assistance, (which they would not do but on the last necessity) for we receive Advancements from all hands, that after Juliers, it will be our turn, and this we are confirm'd in, by their having poss'd themselves of so many important Posts in our Neighbourhood.

Lige, Dec. 22. This City has wholly accommodated matters with the French, so our fears are in some measure over, at least for the present. The French have forced the Spaniards that were quartered at St. Tron, and other places in this Country, to quit them, and have put 700 Men into St. Tron; and we are told that they are marching towards Hasselt, to oblige the Dutch Troops to retire from thence.

Antwerp, Dec. 29. The French, as we understand by Persons come from Ghent, Aech, &c. are preparing to quit those Places, pursuant to the Treaty of Peace between the two Crowns, which was published yesterday at Lille; but from Brussels we have advice, that they demand a very great Sum of the Inhabitants of these Countries, for Arrears of Contributions; and that the Duke de Villa Hermosa had sent a Person of Quality to Lille, to adjust this matter with the Marschal d' Humieres, as also to appoint the day for the evacuating the places.

Nimeguen, Dec. 28. The French having given in a Project of Articles for a Peace between the King their Master and the Emperor, and the Imperialists having returned a contra Project, upon which Counsellors have been dispatch'd to their respective Courts, we are now expecting the return of them, with the resolutions of those Princes upon them. In the mean time the Imperialists have made, as we are inform'd, an overture, that seeing there occurred several difficulties in the Article about Friburg, the Emperor would restore Philipsburg to the French, upon condition that place were likewise restored to him; but this the French absolutely refuse, as preferring Friburg before Philipsburg, for the use it may be of to them. Upon this and the other Points which remain in difference, the Imperial and French Ambassadors have, at the desire of the former, had Conferences together, the place was the Stadthou'se of this City, whither the Ambassadors of Denmark and Brandenburg likewise repaired, and were present at the Conferences, though without being call'd thereunto. To morrow the Imperialists and the French will have another Conference at the Stadthou'se, and they are agreed in the Point of Philipsburg and Friburg, the Emperor being content, according to his former choice, to keep the first, and to leave Friburg to the French.

Flague, Dec. 30. The Deputies of the States have, since my last, had a Conference with the French Ambassador, on the occasion of the Message sent by Monsieur Calvo to the Governor of Hasselt, to retire from thence. In the mean time we understand that all the Provinces, and all the Towns of Holland are of opinion, that the intended reduction of the Forces ought to be deferred for some time, till it appear more plainly, then as yet it does, what the intention of France is, as well in relation to this their demand of our quitting Hasselt, &c. as their restoring the Places in Flanders; which though the French, as we understand from Flanders, say they are ready to do, yet they pretend not to draw their Troops out of the Spanish Territories, till all the Arrears of Contributions are paid, which amount, according to their Computation, to a very great Sum. The next week the States of Holland meet, and then we may expect a final resolution will be taken in the point of the reduction, as well as in other matters. From Nimeguen we have an account, that the Imperial and French Ambassadors have had Conferences together at the Stadthou'se, which is new, for all the Negotiations between them heretofore, passed merely by the hands of the Mediators, those Ambassadors never coming together. What these Conferences, at which my Lord Ambassador Frenkins assisted, will produce, we must expect to hear; but because this month is now expiring, when the French declared they would be at liberty to advance new Propositions, endeavors are using to dispose the French to a prolongation of that term.

Paris, Dec. 28. The Peace between this Crown and Spain, hath been published here with the usual Solemnity. The Letters we receive from Alsace of the 19th instant, give an account, That the Troops that winter in that Country are to quit their quarters, and take the Field about the middle of January; that those in Lorraine, and the Franche Comte, have the same Orders; and that it's believed they will in the first place attack the Forts which they of Strasbourg are now at work upon. In the Electorate of Treves, the French fortifie the Castle of Dann, and several other Posts thereabouts. From Nimeguen we understand, that the French and Imperial Ambassadors have renewed the Negotiation, which seem'd one while interrupted; and at Court it is said, that the King has sent Orders to his Ambassadors to allow the Imperialists till the 15th of the next month, to expect the return of a Courier they had sent to Vienna, to know the Emperors final resolution upon the Project that had been given in by the French Ambassadors. We have Letters from Vienna which say, That if the War continue, the Emperor intends to have two Armies in the Field the next Campaign, to act on the Rhine; one below, about Cologne, under the command of General Montecuculi; and the other above, about Strasbourg, under the command of the Duke of Lorraine. The King has made Monsieur de Montbrun his Lieutenant in his Conquests in Flanders under the Marschal d' Humieres, and Monsieur de Montauban his Lieutenant in Burgundy, under the Marschal de Duras.
