Venice, Febr. 10. We have Letters from Turkey, which give us an account, that the Grand Visier was come to Adrianople, and had made his Entry into that City in a triumphal manner, as if he returned from obtaining great Victories. That the preparations for the War were very great throughout all the Ot- toman Territories, and that according to all appearance the War between them and the Moscovites would be continued with great heats on both sides, and to the shedding of much blood. The Senate have resolved not to send an Ambassador to Rome, till they shall be thereto desired by the Pope, and then the Chevalier Crimani a person of great experience, will, it's thought, be pitched upon for that employment.

Vienna, Febr. 9. The hopes we had of seeing a speedy end put to the troubles of Hungary, by a Peace, lessen every day more and more; for as on one side the Hungarians think not the two great Points concerning their Religion and Liberties sufficiently provided for, by the Conditions the Emperor was pleased to declare he was willing to grant them, when their Deputies were here, so it's to be believed that the account we have from Nimeguen, that the Peace would certainly be signed in few days, will not incline the Ministers here to any new concessions towards those people, seeing the Emperor will now have his Forces, which have been employed in Germany, at liberty to act, if he shall think fit, against these Malecontents: But it is to be feared that in such cases, case, they will take refuge under the protection of the Turks.

Ratisbonne, Febr. 16. The News of the Peace being signed at Nimeguen, though all the Articles of it are not such, as were to have been wished, is very welcome to the Dyet, and to all People here, except to the Ministers of the Elector of Brandenburgh, and of the other Northern Allies, who intend in the next Session, to enter their Protests against the said Peace.

Strasbourg, Febr. 17. Yesterday arrived here a Courier with Letters from the Duke of Lorraine, to the Imperial Commander here, by which he is required to cease immediately all Hostilities against the French, in pursuance of an Article of the Treaty of Peace, signed the 5th instant at Nimeguen. And we are informed, that the Marquis de Monclar has sent like Orders to the French Officers in Alsace, so that now our Tears are over, and instead of them we expect the sweet effects of Peace; which will be the more delightful, after having suffered under so much misery and desolation, as this Country has done, during the War. The French, as we understand, are already preparing to quit Alampelgard; and at Schleissbad they have reformed a great many Soldiers. But they continue to require the Contributions, which, it seems, are to be paid till so many months after the Peace be ratified: And yesterday a small Party of French plundered some Countrey people who were coming hither with Forage.

Brussels, Febr. 21. We cannot yet tell, when the French will quit Ghent, which the Inhabitants of that City are in an impatient expectation of, because of the great burthen they at present lie under. The English Troops that have their quarters in this Province, were two days since on their march towards Ostend; but the weather changing to a Thaw, they have been hindered from continuing it, and have been forced to return to their quarters again. The Marquis de los Balbases is expected here in a day or two from Nimeguen, on his way to Paris, whither, as we have already told you, he goes to demand Madamoiselle, Daughter to the Duke of Orleans, in marriage for the King of Spain. The News at Court is, that the Princes of Lunenburgh have made their Peace with France and Sweden, and that the Bishop of Munster seemed inclin'd to follow their example; so that the King of Denmark, and the Elector of Brandenburgh, will then be left alone in the War.

Diva, Febr. 24. All matters between his Excellency and the Maréchal d'Humieres, relating to the Contributions, are now finally adjusted, and the City of Ghent will be evacuated on Monday next: in order whereunto the French Troops retired yesterday out of the Countrey of Waes, this day they leave the Vieuxbourg of Ghent, and to morrow Alost. Likewise to morrow Lieutenant General Agurio goes hence to meet the Spanish Troops, with which he is to take possession of Ghent on Monday morning. This day seven night Courtray will be also evacuated, and about the same time his Excellency will go to Ghent, to settle the Affairs of the Province of Flanders; and after his return hither, will be performed the Ceremony of his receiving the Golden Fleece, all the Knights of that Order in these Countries being come hither upon this occasion, except the Prince of Chimay, and the Duke of Haure, who will be here the next week. From Vienna they write, that the Marquis de Grana is designed Ambassador Extraordinary from that Court to Spain. We are told from Paris, that the Most Christian King intends a progress in April next, to visit the Coasts of Brittany, Normandy, Boulogne, and from thence will go to Dunkirk, Ipres, and other his Conquests in Flanders.

Bruges, Febr. 25. It hath thawed for several days, so that our Rivers are open again, which have been shut up 11 weeks by the sharpest Frost that has been known in these Countries these 20 years. Ghent will be evacuated on Monday next; and yesterday marched from hence two Spanish Regiments of Foot, who are to be put into Garrison there. Yesterday the English Frigats sailed from Ostend for Flissing, to take in the English Troops that come from Brabant.

Hague, Febr. 24. The 22 instant the States of Holland met, and entered upon the debate of the matters before them. The Deputies of the respective Admiralties have been several dayes here in Town, and have been in Conference with the Deputies of the States. The Sir Silvercroom, the Swedish Minister, has given in a Memorial to the States, in which he presses them to conclude the Treaty which is depending between the King his Master, and this State.

Falmouth, Febr. 13. Yesterday came in here the Elys of London, Christopher Smith Master, from the Bermudos, bound, with Oranges, for London; the Master says, he came from thence on the 4th past, and that he left no Ships behind him, save such as belonged to the Island.

Weymouth, Febr. 17. This day came in here the Benjamin, John Abbot Master, and the William, Christopher Omsley, both of this place, from Malaga. They parted with their Convoy and the rest of their Company, and near the Southern Cape met a Flyboat of St. Malo's, Burthen about 200 Tuns, laden with Salt, bound home; she had lost all her Masts and her Boat, and had Six Foot Water in Hold, so that the French Master and his Company left her, and came on Board the William.
