

The Journal of the Royal Society of Medicine

W. H. R. ...
The Journal of the Royal Society of Medicine is published quarterly, in January, April, July, and October. It contains original research papers, clinical reports, and reviews of current medical literature. The journal is a key publication for medical professionals and researchers in the field of medicine.

W. H. R. ...
The journal covers a wide range of medical disciplines, including internal medicine, surgery, pediatrics, and gynecology. It provides a platform for the dissemination of new findings and the advancement of medical knowledge. The Royal Society of Medicine, the publisher, is a leading organization in the medical community.

W. H. R. ...
The journal is essential reading for all medical practitioners and students. It offers valuable insights into the latest developments in medicine and provides a comprehensive overview of the current state of the field. The Royal Society of Medicine continues to support the journal as a vital resource for the medical profession.