Downing-Street, August 23, 1796.

HE Letters, of which the following are Copies, have been received from Colonel Craufurd by the Right Honorable Lord Grenville, His Maciety's Principal Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs.

Head Quarters of His Royal Highness with the Archduke Charles of Austra, the control Estimates, July 12, 1796.

MY Lord,

Have the Honor to inform your Lordship, that News arrived this Morning of General Warten-fleben's having been attacked, on the 10th Instant, by General Jourdan, at Friedberg, just as he was preparing to retire to Bengen, and assemble his Army in that Camp.

The Enemy were, according to all Reports, near Four Times as strong as the Austrians; and the latter, after having repulsed Three successive Attacks, were obliged to retire to Bengen, with the Loss of several Hundred Men, and One Cannon.

General Wartensleben's Army had been divided into Three Corps along the Lahn, all of which were directing their March towards Bengen, but neither of them was sufficiently strong to make a Stand of any Consequence, with a Probability of Success. The Enemy, therefore, having arrived at the Point of Friedberg, by rapid Marches, the Morning of the Day that the Austrians intended to quit that Post, found a Force by no Means adequate to resist them, and profited of this Circumstance as I have mentioned above.

Proper Garrisons are left in Mayence, Manheim, Phillipsbourg and Ehrenbreitstein.—The Archduke remains encamped at Pfortzheim; the Prince of Conde at Villenger, and General Froligh is still in the Brifgaw.

Thave the Honor to be, &c. &c. &c. C. CRAUFURD. Head Quarters of His Royal Highness, the Archduke Charles of Austria, Gemund, July 24, 1796.

My Lord

Have the Honor to inform your Lordship, that His Royal Highness the Archduke, upon receiving Intelligence of the Enemy's Intention to dislodge the Corps at Eslingen, and thus make themselves Masters of the Great Road from Stutguard to Ulm, reinforced that important Post in the Night of the 20th, and made the necessary Dispositions for a most vigorous Defence.

On the 21st the Enemy made several Feints on the Right, and along the whose Front of the Camp of Felbach, whilst they marched against the Heights of Essingen with a very superior Force. Their Attack commenced there about Seven o'Clock in the Morning; and, after Five unsuccessful Esforts, they were obliged to retire to Hohenheim near Stutgard.

The Skill with which this Position was defended. and the Vigor displayed in repulsing the reiteratedand severe Attacks on Grounds so intersected and woody, that neither Cavalry nor Artillery could act with Efficacy, do equal Honor to General Hotze, who commanded, and the gallant Troops that executed his Orders. The excessive Heat of the Day, and the great Fatigue that they experienced, as they had all been under Arms, and most of them marching the whole preceding Night, did not prevent them from contending most courageously with near double their Numbers till Eight o'Clock, when Victory rewarded such exemplary Conduct. I have not the least Intention of making any Distinction between the Merits of those brave Men who are all entitled to fo great a Share of Praise, but I cannot help obferving to your Lordship, that the first Battalion of the Hungarian Regiment of Spleny, fought from the Beginning of this Action without being relieved, and, though it lost between Three and Four Hundred Men, remained in Fire till Night put a Stop fo much talked of in the Army, that I feel called upon not to pass it over in Silence.

The total Loss of the Austrians on this Day was about One Thousand Men, including several Officers; that of the Enemy amounted, according to the best Estimates which can be made from the Reports of Descriters and Prisoners, to near Two Thousand.

In the Night of the 20th the Archduke marched to Schorndorf, and on the 24th to this Place.

I have the Honor to be, &c. &c. &c.

Head Quarters of His Royal Highness the Archduke Charles of Austria, Nordlingen, August 4, 1796.

My Lord,

Have the Honor to inform your Lordship, that His Royal Highness the Archduke marched from Cemund on the 26th of July, and encamped with one Part of his Main Army at Bohmenkirchen and another at Urspringen. General Froligh was on the South of the Danube near Waldfee, the Prince of Condé near Revenspurg, and a Corps under General Wolf at Bregentz; the Suabians were still at Bieberach, to which Place they had retired upon the Conclusion of their Armistice. General Wartensleben kept his Position near Bamberg, having a small Body of Light Troops between Nurenberg and Anspach, for the Purpose of communicating with the On the 29th General Froligh, in Compliance with an Order from the Archduke, marched to Bieberach, furrounded and difarmed the Suabian Corps, obliging them to disperse immediately, and retire behind the Line of Operations.—After which he took his Position in that Neighbourhood, and the Prince of Condé marched to Waldsee, leaving an Advanced Guard near Revenspurg. From the 26th to the 30th several Skirmishes happened between the Advanced Posts; in all of these the Austrians had the Advantage; and a Detachment of Hussars surprized a large French Reconnoitring Party near Hohenstadt, between Blanbeuren and Geislengen, every Man of which was either killed or taken.

Ton the 31st, as the Magazines on the Danube were placed in Safety, and as the Enemy began to manœuvre towards the Archduke's Right, His Royal Highness determined to concentrate his principal Force. He therefore moved, on the 1st of August, with his Main Army, to Haydenheim, on the 2d to Nersheim, and on the 3d to Nordlingen, the Detached Corps retiring gradually, fo as to cover this

His Royal Highness's general Position is now as follows: The Main Army at Nordlingen, with an Advanced Guard at Nersheim; Two small Corps near Boppingen and Weiltingen, to observe the Roads leading from those Places; and a Corps of Superior Force at Gundelfingen, for the Purpose of covering the Left and keeping up the Communication with General Froligh and the Prince of Condé, the former of whom is at Weissenhorn, on the Both, the latter at Memmingen, with his Advanced Guard at Wurtzach.

The Enemy having discovered the Channel by which the Water was conveyed into the Fortress of -Koningstein, cut off the Supply, and by that Means reduced the Garrison, consisting of about Five Hundred Men, to the Necessity of surrendering. The to it's uncommon Exertions.-This Circumstance is | Troops mare hed out with Arms and Baggage, and they returned into the Emperor's Dominions, on Condition of not ferving till exchanged.

> > Head Quarties of His Royal Highness the Archduke Charles of Austria, Nordlingen, August 5, 1796.

My Lord,

Have the Honor to inform your Lordship, that the Enemy attacked this Afternoon the Advanced Posts commanded by the Prince John of Lichtenstein, near Kirchheim; but they were repulfed with the Loss of above Two Hundred Men taken Prisoners. and a great Number left dead on the Field. The general Position of the Armies remains the same as Yesterday.

I have the Honor to be, &c.

C. CRAUFURD:

P. S. News is this Moment arrived of General Krays having obtained a confiderable Advantage over the Enemy at Scuten, near Bamberg, in which Neighbourhood he had been left by General Wartenfleben, upon the latter's marching to Forcheim; but His Royal Highness has not yet received the Particulars of this Affair.

Copy of a Letter from Sir John Jervis, K. B. and Commander in Chief of His Majesty's Ships and Vessels in the Mediterranean, to Evan Nepean, Esq. dated on Board His Majesty's Ship Victory, of Toulon, July 1, 1796.

THE Inconftant joined this Morning from Leghorn; and I inclose, for the Information of the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty, - Captain Fremantle's Report of the Proceedings of the Enemy in Tuscany, their taking Possession of Leghorn, and the Retreat of the British Factory, with most of their Property, which they owe to the unparalleled Exertions of Captain Fremantle, the Officers and Crew of the Inconstant; Commodore Nelson, owing to Calms and light Winds, not having reached Leghorn Road until the Enemy was in possession.

I am, Sir,

Your most obedient humble Servant,

J. JERVIS.

Inconstant at Sea, June 30, 1796.

SIR, Had the Honor of acquainting you, in my Letter of the Evening of the 23d Instant, accompanied with Dispatches by the Blanche, of the supposed forcible Entry of the French Troops into Tuscany, and their intended Invasion of Leghorn.

On the 24th I attended a Meeting of the Conful and Factory, where the Information that had been received was communicated; and having affured them that I would remain at Anchor in the Road for their Protection until the Enemy obliged me to weigh, the Merchants prepared to embark their Goods on Board the Merchant Ships and Transports, which were ordered immediately out of the Mole, and I requested Captain Craven would use every Dispatch in getting the large Ships lower Masts, Spars, &c. launched and secured on Board the Transports.

? On the 25th many of the Merchant Vessels, and the Elizabeth Transport, which was sheathing in the Inner Mole, were got out, and the Masts lashed alongfide the latter.

On the 26th the Gorgon arrived about Noon, and the remaining large Spars were launched and fent to that Ship, when having got certain Information of the Intention of the Enemy, who flept at Pantedera, only Eighteen Miles from Leghorn, I ordered the whole of the Convoy, amounting to Twenty-three Sail of Square-rigged Veffels, and Fourteen Tartans, to be got under Weigh at Day-Light on the 27th; a little after Noon on that Day the French entered the Town of Leghorn, and began firing at the Inconstant about One, when I got under Weigh with the only Vessel remaining, which was a Prize to L'Aigle, a Brig laden with Ship Timber. Two small Privateers endeavoured to cut her off, which obliged us to tack to support her, and occasioned some few Shot being exchanged, which however did no Damage.

Commodore Nelson, with the Captain and Meleager, who had received Notice of the Enemy's Defign, anchored here on the 27th at Ten o'Clock, and the Commodore added the Meleager to the Convoy, which was of much Importance, as the Enemy's small Privateers were numerous and enterprifing.

All the Shipping, nearly the Whole of the English Property, and all His Majesty's Naval Stores and Provisions, have been faved; and every English Person and Emigre defirous of leaving Tuscany, have been received on Board some of the Ships.

Commodore Nelson, in the Captain, remained at Anchor off the Malora, and will doubtless stop any English Ships who may not be informed of the French being in Possession of Leghorn.

I feel myself particularly obliged to Lieutenant Grey, employed in the Transport Service, for his great Exertions in getting the Stores, &c. off, and great Credit is due to Mr. Heatly, Agent Victualler, who was indefatigable in faving the Provisions, Wine, &c.

I have Cause to be satisfied with the Unanimity and united Efforts of every English Subject on this Occasion, where so little Notice could be given, and confidering that no certain Accounts were ever received that the French were absolutely in Tuscany until the 25th, I hope, Sir, you will believe that nothing has been wanting to accelerate the Embar-Ration, or to accommodate and protect both the Persons and Property of His Majesty's Subjects and the unfortunate Emigrés, all of which I lest safe off-Cape Corfe Yesterday at Noon; Lord Garlies having promised to see them in Safety into San Fiorenzo, with the Lively, Meleager, Gorgon, Comet and Vanneau.

I have the Honor to be, &c. &c. &c. THO. FRA. FREMANTLE. (Signed)
