DECLARATION.

[Published by His Majesty's Command.]

HIS Majesty's benevolent Endeavours to restore to His People the Blessings of secure and honorable Peace, again repeated without Success, have again demonstrated, beyond the Possibility of Doubt, the determined and persevering Hostility of the Government of France, in whose unprovoked Aggression the War originated, and by whose boundless and destructive Ambition it is still prolonged. And while by the Course of these Transactions, continued Proofs have been afforded to all His Majesty's faithful Subjects, of His anxious and unremitting Solitude for their Welfare, they cannot, at the same Time, have failed to recognize, in the uniform Conduct of the Enemy, the Spirit by which the Councils of France are still actuated, and the Objects to which they are directed.

His Majesty could not but feel how much the Means of Peace had been obstructed by the many additional Difficulties which His Enemies had so repeatedly thrown in the Way of every Negotiation. Nevertheless, on the very first Appearance of Circumstances in some Degree more favourable to the Interests of Humanity, the same ardent Desire for the Ease and Happiness of His Subjects induced His Majesty to renew His Overtures for terminating the Calamities of War: Thus availing Himself of every Opening which could in any Manner lead to secure and honorable Peace, and consulting equally the Wishes of His own Heart and the Principles by which His Conduct has invariably been guided.

New Obstacles were immediately interposed by those who still directed the Councils of France, and who, amidst the general Desire for Peace which they could not at that Time openly disclaim, still retained the Power of frustrating the Wishes of their own Country, of counteracting His Majesty's benevolent Intentions, and of obstructing that Result, which was so necessary for the Happiness of both Nations. Difficulties of Form were studiously created; Modes of Negotiation were insisted upon, the most inconsistent with their own Conduct in every other Instance; the same Spirit appeared in every Step which was taken by them; and while the most unwarranted Insinuations were thrown out, and the most unfounded Reproaches brought forward, the established Customs and Usages, which have long prevailed in Europe, were purposely departed from, even in the simplest Acts which were to be done on their Part for the Renewal of the Negotiations. All these Things His Majesty determined to disregard; not as being insensible of their Purport and Tendency, nor unmindful of the Importance of these Points, in the public Intercourse of great and independant Nations, but resolving to defeat the Object of these Artifices, and to suffer no subordinate or inferior Consideration to impede, on His Part, the Discussion of the weighty and extensive Interests on which the Termination of the War must necessarily depend.

He directed His Minister to repair to France, furnished with the most ample Powers, and instructed to communicate at once an explicit and detailed Proposal and Plan of Peace, reduced into the Shape
