Moscow, April 15.

THE 13th instant, being the Birth-day of our Czar, was observed with great Solemnity, the Czar appearing in publick in his Royal Robes, and all the Foreign Ministers being afterwards invited to a very great Entertainment in the Palace. We have an account from the Frontiers, that a Body of our Troops has lately fought with, and defeated a strong Party of the Tatars, which occasions a great deal of joy here, and gives us hopes of farther and more considerable successes this Campaign, for which the preparations are making with all the vigor and diligence possible; and it's certain our Czar will have a greater Army in the Field this Summer, than he had the last; besides which, we very much reckon upon the assistance of the Poles, who are now likewise coming into the War.

Legorne, May 22. This morning arrived here the Assistance Frigate, with eight Merchant Ships from Galipoli, where Captain Gardner, late Commander of the said Frigate, dyed. By a Vessel arrived from Tripoly, we have an account, that the Pearle and Diamond Frigates, after having put Mr. Baker, the English Consul, ashore, were sailed for Zant. That at Tripoly the People suffered very much through want of Provisions, especially of Corn; that to supply themselves, they had sent eight Vessels to Alexandria to lade Corn; and that three of their Men of War were going out to Cruise.

Vienna, May 28. The Imperial Court continues at Laxemburg, where Conferences are almost daily held, for composing the Affairs of Hungary, in which the Archbilhop of Gran does particularly labor. Two days since arrived an Extraordinary Courier from Nimeguen, with Letters from the Imperial Ambassadors there, which, as we are told, give an account of the difficulties they meet with in the execution of the Peace; the French demanding that the Imperial Troops do quit Boune, Trier, Strasburgh, and other places of the Empire, at present Garisoned by them, and offering at the same time to do the like on their part; and that if the Imperial Troops do retire out of the Empire, the French, except those that are to act against the Elector of Brandenburg, will do so too; but the Emperor thinks it not becoming him, to withdraw his Troops, while the French Armies, on pretence of the War with the Elector of Brandenburg, remains in the heart of the Empire.

Copenhagen, June 3. We are expecting to see what effect the Conferences in Schonow will have, of which Peoples opinions are in the mean time very various. Our Fleet lies as yet in the Sound, though it is said that part of it has Orders to sail to the Elbe.

Sedan, June 2. The Marschal de Crequi, who has been here some time, has received Orders from Court, to repair immediately to Wesel, and in pursuance of them, he parts hence to morrow morning early.

Strasburgh, June 2. The Count of Schaellenberg, and the Deputies of this City, who were to wait upon the Duke of Lorraine at Wizbach, being returned, we understand from them, that the six Imperial Battalions, and the Regiments of the Circles, who are in Garison here, and had Orders to march from hence, are now countermanded; and that the Muster and Reform which was intended to be made of part of the Imperial Army, is put off, till it be seen what the designs of the French are, for their repossessing themselves of several places in Alsace, which they had, pursuant to the Peace, quitted, their continuing with so great diligence to fortifie Schlestadt, and Monsieur de Louvois's Journey into these parts, gives the Imperialists great jealousy, and makes them think it necessary to stand upon their Guard.

Cologne, June 6. Our Elector received two days since by an Express, an account of the death of the Elector of Bavaria, his Cousin-Germain, which happened the 26th past, suddenly; for walking in his Garden in the afternoon, he complained of a pain at his heart, and had hardly spoken the words, when he fell down dead. The Bishop of Strasburgh is every day to visit our Elector, and we very suddenly expect here his Brother Prince William of Furstenberg, in his way to France, to take possession there of the Abby of St. Germain, of which he is Abbot. The French Artillery is now on its march towards the Rhine, with 37 Squadrons of Horse, and 4 Battalions of Foot, who to morrow pass by Nuis, in their way to Wesel. We are told that the French have thoughts of removing the Bridge they have now at Wesel, higher up, to some place in the Dutchy of Fulders, or of this Diocess. The French on the other side the Rhine, continue to differ their march towards Ravensberg and Minden, Monsieur Calvo having his Quarters at a place called Soest in the Country of Marke. They have again put a Garison into Lin, a small place in this Diocess, contrary to the Peace, which the French say is likewise not executed by the Emperor, seeing his Troops continue in the places in the Empire, which by the Peace they ought to quit, but it's hoped this Point will be adjusted at Nimeguen.

Nimeguen, June 8. The Letters which arrive this afternoon from France, give an account that the Propositions which the Sieur Meinders had made at that Court, in order to a Peace between that Crown and the Elector his Master, had been rejected, that he was thereupon preparing for his return hither; and that Orders had been sent to the Marschal de Crequi to repair immediately to the Army on the Rhine, and to prosecute the War with all vigor against the Elector; and we are told that the said Marschal will be at Wesel this day. This News has hindered the Conferences between the Imperial and the French Ambassadors, about the execution of the Peace, for that the Emperor seems resolved not to draw his Forces out of the Empire, as long as the French con-
