Amsterdam, Octob. 27. There are Letters from Hamburg of the 25th instant, which say, That they hourly expected to hear that the Mediators, which are the French Minister, and those of the Princes of Lunenbourg, had agreed the matters in Controversy with the King of Denmark, who seemed to yield in some things, which he had at first very justly insisted upon. The Elector of Brandenburg, in the mean time, do s not appear in this whole Affair, so that it's believed what was said of his intention to joyn his Troops with those of Denmark in the Siege of that City, was without ground.

Hague, Oct. 27. The Minister of the Elector of Brandenburg continues to press the States to give him after satisfaction in the matter of the Arrears of Subsidies which he pretends of this State, which according to all appearance he will obtain, for the States seem desirous to live in Friendship with his Electoral Highness; to whom they have therefore sent the Sieur d' Amerongen, whose main business is to remove all misunderstandings, and to settle a good Correspondence between his Electoral Highness and this State. Our Herring Busses have had a very bad Fishing, having caught very little. By a Vessel arrived from the Elbe we have an account, That there lay 14 Danish Men of War at Gluckstadt, and that they lost all Vessels bound to Hamburg, but that it was believed this interruption of Trade would not last long, there being great appearance that the differences between the King of Denmark and that City would be accommodated, especially since the French King had interposed therein, and had ordered the Sieur Kabenac, his Minister, to go immediately to that King to offer his Mediation, and to let him know how glad he should be that all extremities might be avoided, and things amicably composed.
