fed die diliarces wirh ferer other Potentates, and particularly and latcir with the King of Oirat bithan; and that therctore the lame ought not to be retuled to the King of foric, efpecially fceng that the faid King was formerly earnefly recuicited by she faid States to enter into a Detenfive Alinuce, which was afterwards concluded in 166.2. and that 越e Letter ubich His Maj. Ity writ the I r h of Min 1673. (unon which the Srates accepted the conditions of the Feace ) was grounded uson the faid King's retolution to renew the old Alliances with this S:are, according as it is now offered. For theic and orher more preifing reaions, the Sates of the City and Ommelands have thought good and rejoived that thi, State ought not to dechine, but to leak fuch a Detenfive Ailiance with the King of Fionce, as fhall be judged maft to confift with its Intereft and fecurity in this conjuncture, elpecially feeing it has made no difficulty to Conclude fucli Alliances with Englınd and other Potentitem.

Hague, March 8. Yefterday the States of Hol. Iand Adjourned themfelves till the 13 th Inflant, without concluding any thing concerning the new Impofitions now in Debate, but after they have confulted their Principals once more, which they are now gone to do, it's not doubted but they will come to a determ nation therdin. The States General have not as yet returned any Anfwer to the French Ambalfador concerning the Alliance, and conlidering huw ungrateful That they have refolved to give is to the Court of France, it's probable they nill not return the Ambaffador any unlefs he defire it. The Prince of Orange departed this morning for Flanders (having firlt difpofed of twoimportant Employments, viz. the place of Receiver of the Revenues of the Earldom of sholland, and that of Curator of the Univerfity of Leiden ) to vifir the Dutch Garifons in that Country. Yefterday Mr. Sidney cnterrained molt of the forreign Miniltens at Dinner, and the fame day gave a great Supper to the Princefs and feve + sal Ladies of quality. The council of state has prefented their letition to the htates General for moneys for the Building the $3^{6} \mathrm{~m} . \mathrm{n}$ of War, and scmand for the firlt jear two Milions and 45000 Gilders, which according to the ordinary calculation is about 222000 l. fterl of which commuwication is to be given to the feveral Provinces in order to their raifing their refpective proportions.

Hague, Marchis. On Weuncfd.sy laft the States of foliand met for the fult time fince their laftreceis, but as yet they have not entred upon any bufinefs of importance, and it's likely they will not till the return of the Prince from Flanders, which ir's faid will not be till Monday next. The Duke of Newburg's Minilter preffes this State with much carpeitnefs to ditharge the Arrears of Subfidies duc to his Malter, which amount to 140 thoufand Crowns. * The States, upon the reading of their laft Letters from England giving them an account of his Royal Highneffesarrival, and of the pofture of things, were extreamly fatisfied, and are more and more confirmed in their refolutions of remaining ftrictly united with His Majelty of Great Briz tain in their common Interefts. It is now faid that the French Troops will not quit Dinant till thofe of this State have evacuated Faffels and Ma-i feyck.

Paris, Marb 16. Our Letters from the Coart give us an account that the 6 rh inftant the King and the Dauphin met the Dauphinefs two Leagues beyond Vitry, as foon as fhe - faw the King the came haftily out of her Coach and calt herfelf at his feet, the King took ber up, embraced her, and prefented the Dauphin to her, after which they went all into her Coach, and came to Vary, The next day they comtinued their Journey to Chalons, from whence the Queen parted af ter Dinner to meet them, which the did about a Leagne from thence, they all came out of their Coaches in the open Field, and atter the Compliments proper for the cccafion, they went into them again, and came to clalons about five in the Evening. Two houres after the Cardinal de Bowillon gave the lecond Benediction, the Dauphinels being led into the Chapel by the Duke of Ricbehru her Knight of Honour, and the Marefchal d. Drlf.meds the Mafter of her Horie. The Cardinal Bleffed 13 Pieces of Gold and a Ring of Gold and Silyer wrought together, and faid aloud thele words; Louris Dauphin of France, do yot take M, tri, Jonne, Chrift enne, Vı Ef ire, of Bava ia here prelent for your Wife, and you Marie tc. do you take Lour. &c. for your Husband? to which having anlwered $r_{1} a$; the Cardinal gave the 13 Pieces of Gold and the Ring to the Dauppin whoput the Ring on the Dauphineffes finger, and gave her the Gold in Faitb of Marriage. The Ceremony being ended, the King, Queen, Dauphin Dauphinels, Morificur, and the Princes of the Blood Supped together, after which the Dauphin and the Dauphinefs were Bedded, the King giving the Dauphin his Dhirt, and the Qgeen doing the like to the Dauphineds. The soth the Cour part ed from Cha'ons, and Lodged at Rbimes, the 12 th they eame to Soiffons, and the next day to Villiers $c f$ ret som All people give the Dauphinels a very great Charaeter, and particularly the King and the Dapphin are extreamly plealed with her.
