And a Letter being likewise read, which was written by the Judges of the said Circuit to the Lord Lieutenant, in Answer to a like complaint made to his Grace by one Edward Ivy, another of the Witnesses, and gave his Grace an account that the said Hubert Burck, Edward Ivy, and Sanfon (who was also a Witness) having complained to them, That the Grand Jury would not hear them, they sent for the Foreman, with some of his Fellows, who did in open Court declare in the presence of the said Sanfon, Burck, and Ivy, That they had heard what Sanfon and Burck could say, and that they had sent for Ivy and Macnemarra, but that they could not be found. Whitehall, April 14. His Majesty having commanded the Judges, who are returned from their several Circuits, to give an account of what they had done in pursuance of the Directions they had received from His Majesty in Council, for the more effectual Executing the Laws against Popish Recusants; they accordingly this day attended his Majesty at the Committee of Ppery, and made the following Report.

That in some Counties they found most of those named in the Commissions already Convicted, and their Convictions returned into the Exchequer. But that they had however caused them to be again Proclaimed as such. That in other Counties many Popish and reputed Popish Recusants had taken the Oaths, and came to Church; That others, to avoid the effect of the Law, shifted Counties; That in some Counties the Commissions were but newly come down; That however all possible care was taken for the speedy and effectual proceeding upon them: And lastly, that in all their Circuits they had caused those that were not already Convicted to be Presented, and had applied themselves with all possible zeal and vigor for the punctual Performance of the directions they had received in this matter.

His Majesty was pleased to approve of what they had done, and to require them to proceed as they had begun, letting them know that they should be supplied with all such Orders and Directions as should be farther necessary. And that for such persons as had absented or withdrawn themselves from their respective Counties, that effectual care be taken for their Prosecution at the next Assizes. And that His Majesty would direct the Lords Commissioners of the Treasury to appoint several fit and able persons to solicit and attend this Service, as well at the Assizes as wherever else there should be occasion, His Majesties intention being, That the said Laws against Popish Recusants be duly and effectually Executed.
