

Road above Goff's Bridge, and some Companies of Light Infantry formed on each Side of them, under Lieutenant-Colonel Wilkinson. The Rebels attempted to attack these, but were instantly repulsed, and driven beyond the Bridge. A large Body were perceived at the same Time moving towards my Left. Major Aylmer, and afterwards Major Daniel, with Five Companies of Light Infantry and a Six Pounder, were detached against them. The 60th Regiment, finding no further Opposition in Front, had of themselves inclined to their Left, to engage the Body which was attempting to turn us. The Action here was for a short Time pretty sharp. The Rebels were in great Numbers, and armed with both Muskets and Pikes; they were, however, forced to give Way, and driven, though they repeatedly attempted to form, behind the Ditches. They at last dispersed, flying towards Enniscorthy and Wexford. Their killed could not be ascertained, as they lay scattered in the Fields over a considerable Extent, but they seemed to be numerous. I inclose a List of our's. * The Troops behaved with great Spirit; the Artillery and Hompesch's Cavalry were active, and seemed only to regret that the Country did not admit of their rendering more effectual Service. Major Daniel is the only Officer whose Wound is bad; it is through the Knee, but not dangerous.

The Business, which began between Three and Four, was not over till near Eight. It was then too late to proceed to Taghmon. I took Post for the Night on the Ground where the Action had commenced. As the Rebels gave Way I was informed of the Approach of the 2d and 29th Regiments under Lord Dalhousie. In the Morning of the 21st we were proceeding to Taghmon, where I was met by an Officer of the North Cork from Wexford with the inclosed Letters. I gave of Course no Answer to the Proposal made by the Inhabitants of Wexford, but I thought it my Duty immediately to proceed here and to take Post above the Town, by which means I have perhaps saved the Town itself from Fire, as well as the Lives of many Loyal Subjects who were Prisoners in the Hands of the Rebels. The Rebels fled, upon my Approach, over the Bridge of Wexford, and towards the Barony of Forth. I shall wait here your further Orders. Lord Kingsborough has informed me of different Engagements he had entered into with respect to the Inhabitants. I have declined entering upon the Subject, but have referred his Lordship to you or General Lake.

* This List was omitted.

I received your pacified Note during the Action of the 20th: It was impossible for me then to detach the Troops you asked for, but I hear you have perfectly succeeded at Enniscorthy with those you had. Mr. Roche who commands the Rebels is encamped, I hear, about Five Miles off. He has sent to Lord Kingsborough to surrender upon Terms. Your Presence speedily is upon every Account extremely necessary.

I am, &c.

JOHN MOORE.

Major-General Johnson.

P. S. It is difficult to judge of the Numbers of Rebels, they appear in such Crowds and so little Order. Information states those we beat to have been between 5 and 6,000.

ANSWER.

Enniscorthy, June 22, 1798.

Lieutenant-General Lake cannot attend to any Terms offered by Rebels in Arms against their Sovereign. While they continue so, he must use the Force entrusted to him with the utmost Energy for their Destruction.

To the deluded Multitude he promises Pardon, on their delivering into his Hands their Leaders, surrendering their Arms, and returning with Sincerity to their Allegiance.

(Signed)

G. LAKE.

To the Inhabitants of Wexford.
