

The London Gazette.

Published by Authority.

From Saturday May 3, to Tuesday May 6, 1800.

Downing-Street; May 6, 1800.

THE following Intelligence, which had been received at Vienna, has been transmitted from Lord Minto to Lord Grenville, His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, in a Letter dated April 20.

ACCOUNTS have been received from General Melas dated the 10th Instant.

It had been the General's Intention to move forward against Varagio on the 9th, but having learnt that the Enemy having received a Reinforcement of Three Thousand Men, intended to make a vigorous Defence in this advantageous Position, General Melas halted in consequence, and deferred the Attack until the following Day; the Battle was bloody, a great Number of Men being killed on both Sides; at length the Perseverance of His Imperial Majesty's Troops was successful; several Officers and about Two Hundred Men were made Prisoners; among the former were some belonging to the Suite of General Massena, who had hastened in Person to the Scene of Action, in the Hope that his Presence would inspire his Troops with additional Courage: he led them repeatedly to the Charge: the Enemy flying in Disorder was pursued as far as Invrea. That Part of them which took the Road leading along the Sea Coast suffered considerably by the Fire of the Squadron of His Britannick Majesty. On another Side M. Le Comte de Hohenzollern attacked and carried the Bochetta on the 9th, making Two Hundred Prisoners, with Six Pieces of Cannon.

In the Night between the 7th and 8th, General Kaim surpris'd the Enemy's Posts at Mount Cenis, taking Two Hundred Prisoners and Sixteen Pieces of Cannon, and established himself in that Position.

Vienna, April 19, 1800.

ACCORDING to farther Accounts from General Melas, respecting his advancing into the Territory of the Genoese Coast, the Enemy had entrenched their Position on La Torre di Cadibuona in the most advantageous Manner, occupied by Three Thousand Men. This Position General Melas ordered the Division of Mitrowsky to attack on the 6th Instant, and its Conquest would have been difficult, had not a Battalion of the Regiment Neisky, under the Command of Major Gertich, undertaken to storm it, which decided the Victory in Favor of the Austrians. Five Pieces of Artillery were taken; a Chief of Brigade, Twenty Officers, and Two Hundred Privates, made Prisoners; and it was only owing to the ground being favourable to the Enemy, that they succeeded in reaching their second Position on Monte Ajuto, whither they fled; notwithstanding the many steep Mountains, pursued with incredible Swiftnefs by our brave Troops. General Count Saint Julien and Major-General Lattermann meanwhile ascended and took Monte Ajuto and Monte Negro, and the whole of the Troops of General Saint Julien pursued the Enemy on Three Roads towards Vado and Savona. At the Position of Monte Negro, a Chief of Battalion, Twelve Officers, and One Hundred Privates were made Prisoners, and One Cannon and several small Field Pieces taken.

On the 7th, in the Morning, Field-Marshal Lieutenant Elsniz ascended Monte Saint Giacomo, and occupied Monte Sette Pani with the Brigade of General Uim.

The Enemy having evacuated the Fort of Vado in the preceding Night, after spiking their Cannon, and having fled towards the Sea near Nice, Monte Altissimo and the Fort of Vado were occupied by our Troops on the same Day, where they found Seventeen Pieces of heavy Artillery. General Melas afterwards blockaded the Citadel of Savona with the Imperial Troops.

On the 8th, the English Admiral Lord Keith entered the Port of Vado, with Two Ships of the Line of Seventy-four Guns, Four Cutters, a Brig, and Eight Ships laden with Provisions.

General Melas having received certain Information that the main Force of the Enemy was assembled in and near Genoa, he entrusted the Blockade of the Citadel of Savona to General Elnitz, and with the Rest of his Army pursued his March along Monte Notte and Monte Negro, in a Manner which enabled him to take a Position with his Left Wing on the Lake near Albizola, and along the Rivulet of Rezo, and to fix his Headquarters at Madonna di Savona.

General Ott reported to General Melas, that on the 6th he had gained some Advantages over the Enemy at Cornua and Reccio, and that he had driven them from a second Position on Monte Capunardo.

On the following Day the aforesaid General resolved to march to Monte Creto, in order to assist in forcing the Bochetta, which General Count Hohenzollern had undertaken to attack.

In the different Engagements which have hitherto taken place the Loss of our Troops has been incon siderable.

Besides other Prisoners made in the City of Savona, one of the Enemy's Hospitals, with Three Hundred and Fifty Men, fell into our Hands; and General Melas states, that Prisoners are still coming in; all of whom report that the Enemy were unprepared for a formidable Attack on that Side, which also appears from the Circumstance of several Officers being made Prisoners on the most impassable Mountains, whither they had been sent by the French Generals, to search for a Communication with the Interior of France, as well as with Nice and Genoa.
