St. James's, March 10, 1803.

THIS Day the Reverend Doctor Landon, Vice-Chancellor of the University of Oxford; the Lord Eldon, Lord High Chancellor, High Steward of the University; the Reverend Mr. Rodd and the Reverend Mr. Wetherell, the Two Proctors; and the Delegates appointed by the University to attend on this Occasion, together with the Viscounts Mountjoy, Hinton, Dupplin, Lewisham, and Elrington; Lords Newton, Cranston, and Rodney; Mr. Ward, Mr. Nevill, Mr. Allen, and Mr. Turner, Members of the University, all in their proper Academical Habits; and accompanied by the Archbishop of Dublin, the Marquis of Titchfield, the Bishops of Durham, Winchester, and Oxford, Sir William Dolben, Bart. one of the Members for the University, and several other Noblemen and Gentlemen who were educated at the University, waited upon the King, to present to His Majesty the following Address of Congratulation on the recent Detection and Defeat of a most atrocious Conspiracy against His Majesty's sacred Person, and the civil and religious Establishments of this Kingdom:

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty.

Most Gracious Sovereign,

WE, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal Subjects, the Chancellor, Masters, and Scholars of the University of Oxford, humbly beg Leave to approach your Throne with our sincere and cordial Congratulations on the recent Detection and Defeat of a most unnatural Conspiracy against your Majesty's sacred Person, and the civil and religious Establishment of this Kingdom.

The signal Protection which, in this as well as former Instances, the good Providence of God hath vouchsafed to your Majesty, your Royal House, and to the People of this Realm, justly demands our devoutest Praise and Thanksgiving.

Anxious as we are, and ever must be, in these Seats of Learning, to inculcate the sound Principles of true Religion as the best and surest Basis of Fidelity, Loyalty, and every moral and political Duty, we cannot but reflect with peculiar Detesta-tion and Abhorrence on that consummate Depravity of Heart, which, in Defiance of every divine and human Obligation, could have formed Designs so malignant and atrocious, even amidst all the Advantages of your Majesty's mild and paternal Government, and under the fullest Enjoyment of our free and happy Constitution.

We are earnestly desirous of renewing to your Majesty our Assurances of faithful and unalterable Attachment: Nor shall we ever cease to offer up our Prayers to Almighty God that he would preserve and prolong a Life so important, as that of your Majesty, to the dearest Interests of your People; and that, under your Majesty and your Royal House, he would be graciously pleased to continue to our latest Posterity the invaluable Blessings we now enjoy in the Exercise of our Liberties, our Laws, and our Religion.

To which Address His Majesty was pleased to return the following most gracious Answer:

I Receive with peculiar Satisfaction your affectionate Congratulations on this fresh Instance of the Divine Protection, which I, in common with My People, have experienced in the Detection and Defeat of a most desperate and atrocious Design to involve our established Constitution, together with the great and manifold Blessings we derive from it, in one general Destruction. It is upon your constant and faithful Exertions to instil into the rising Generation true Principles of Religion and Virtue, that the Permanency of these Blessings must greatly depend; and in these your laudable Endeavours, you may confidently rely on the Continuance of My Favour and Protection.

St. James's, March 16, 1803.

THIS Day the Reverend Doctor Sumner, Vice-Chancellor of the University of Cambridge; Doctor Pearce, Doctor Jowett, Doctor Ingle, the Reverend Mr. Burrell, Mr. Broderick, the Reverend Mr. Sumpter, the Reverend Mr. Walker, being the Delegates appointed by the University; attended by Mr. Beverley, Esquire Beadle; accompanied by Lord Percy, Lord Clonmel, Lord
