Navigation of the North Seas.

Notice is hereby given, that the Light on the Island of North Ronaldsay, in Orkney, North Lat. 59° 40' and West Longitude 2° 15' will be discontinued and cease to be lighted, from and after the 1st Day of June next 1809; but the revolving Light erected in 1806 upon the Start Point of the Island of Sanday, from which the Light on North Ronaldsay bears by the Compass N. N. E. $\frac{1}{2}$ E. distant about Eight Miles, will continue to be lighted as heretofore, this Light having been found to be in the most central Situation for pointing out the low Shores of the North Isles of Orkney.

As the Commissioners are desirous that the Lights under their Charge should be at all Times in the best Order, Commanders and Masters of Vessels, who may observe any of these Lights improperly kept, are requested to give Notice to the Secretary to the Commissioners, or to Mr. Robert Stevenson, their Engineer, immediately upon their Arrival in any Port in Great Britain or Ireland.

By Order of the Commissioners of the Northern Light-Houses,

C. Cunningham, Joint Secretary.
