MY LORD, Deleytosa, Aug. 8, 1809.
I APPRIZED your Lordship on the 1st Instant, of the Advance of a French Corps towards the Puerto de Banós, and of the probable Embarrassments to the Operations of the Army, which its Arrival at Plasencia would occasion; and these Embarrassments having since existed to a Degree so considerable, as to oblige us to fall back, and to take up a defensive Position on the Tagus, I am induced to trouble you more at length with an Account of what has passed upon this Subject.

When I entered Spain, I had a Communication with General Cuesta, through Sir Robert Wilson and Colonel Roche, respecting the Occupation of the Puerto de Banós and the Puerto de Perales, the former of which, it was at last settled, should be held by a Corps to be formed under the Marquis De la Reyna, to consist of Two Battalions from General Cuesta's Army, and Two from Bejar; and that the Puerto de Perales was to be taken care of by the Duque del Parque, by Detachments from the Garrison of Ciudad Rodrigo.

I doubted of the Capacity of the Garrison of Ciudad Rodrigo to make the Detachment to the latter, but so little of the effectual Occupation of the former, that in writing to Marshal Beresford on the 17th July, I desired him to look to the Puerto de Perales, but that I considered Banos as secure, as appears by the Extract of my Letter which I inclose.

On the 30th Intelligence was received at Talavera, that Twelve Thousand Rations had been ordered at Fuente Dueros for the 28th, and Twenty-four Thousand at Los Santos for the same Day, for a French Corps, which it was believed was on its March towards the Puerto de Banós.

General Cuesta expressed some Anxiety respecting this Post, and sent me a Message, to propose that Sir Robert Wilson should be sent there with his Corps.

Sir Robert was on that Day at Talavera, but his Corps was in the Mountains towards Escalona; and as he had already made himself very useful in that Quarter, and had been near Madrid, from which City he had had a Communication, which I was desirous of keeping up, I proposed that a Spanish Corps should be sent to Banós without Loss of Time.

I could not prevail with General Cuesta, although he certainly admitted the Necessity of a Reinforcement when he proposed that Sir Robert should be sent to Banós; and he was equally sensible with myself, of the Benefit to be derived to the Cause, from sending Sir Robert back to Escalona.

At this Time we had no further Intelligence of the Enemy's Advance, than that the Rations were ordered; and I had Hopes that the Enemy might be deterred from advancing, by the Intelligence of our Success on the 28th, and that the Troops in the Puerto might make some Defence; and that under these Circumstances it was not desirable to divert Sir Robert Wilson from Escalona.

On the 30th, however, I renewed my Application to General Cuesta, to send there a Spanish Division of sufficient Strength, in a Letter to General O'Donoghue, of which I inclose a Copy, but without Effect; and he did not detach General Bassecourt till the Morning of the 2d, after we had heard that the Enemy had entered Bejar, and it was obvious that the Troops in the Puerto would make no Defence.

On the 2d we received Accounts, that the Enemy had entered Plasencia in Two Columns.

The Marquis de la Reyna, whose Two Battalions consisted of only Six Hundred Men, with only Twenty Rounds of Ammunition each Man, retired from the Puerto and from Plasencia, without firing a Shot, and went to the Bridge of Almaraz, which he declared that he intended to remove; the Battalions of Bejar dispersed without making any Resistance.

The General called upon me on that Day, and proposed that Half of the Army should march to the Rear to oppose the Enemy, while the other Half should maintain the Post at Talavera.

My Answer was, that if by Half the Army, he meant Half of each Army, I could only answer that I was ready either to go or to stay with the whole

British Army, but that I could not separate it. He then desired me to chuse whether I would go or stay. and I preferred to go, from thinking that the British Troops were most likely to do the Business effectually, and without Contest; and from being of Opinion was more important to us than to the Spanish Army, that to open the Communication through Plasencia, although very important to them. With this Decision, General Cuesta appeared perfectly satisfied.

The Movements of the Enemy in our Front since the 1st, had induced me to be of Opinion, that despairing of forcing us at Talavera, they intended to force a Passage by Escalona, and thus to open a Communication with the French Corps coming from Plasencia.

This Suspicion was confirmed on the Night of the 2d, by Letters received from Sir Robert Wilson, of which I inclose Copies; and before I quitted Talavera on the 3d, I waited upon General O'Donoghue and conversed with him upon the whole of our Situation, and pointed out to him the Possibility that in the case of the Enemy coming through Escalona, General Cuesta might find himself obliged to quit Talavera, before I should be able to return to him; and I urged him to collect all the Carts that could be got, in order to remove our Hospital. At his Desire I put the Purport of this Conversation in Writing, and sent him a Letter to be laid before General Cuesta, of which I inclose a Copy.

The British Army marched on the 3d to Oropeza, General Bassecourt's Spanish Corps being at Centinello, where I desired that it might halt the next Day, in order that I might be nearer it.

About Five o'Clock in the Evening, I heard that the French had arrived from Plasencia at Naval Moral, whereby they were between us and the Bridge of Almaraz.

About an Hour afterwards, I received from General O'Donoghue the Letter and its Inclosures, of which I inclose Copies, announcing to me the Intention of General Cuesta to march from Talavera in the Evening, and to leave there my Hospital, excepting such Men as could be moved by the Means he already had, on the Ground of his Apprehension that I was not strong enough for the Corps coming from Plasencia, and that the Enemy was moving upon his Flank, and had returned to Santa Olalla in his Front.

I acknowledge that these Reasons did not appear to me sufficient for giving up so important a Post as Talavera, for exposing the combined Armies to an Attack in Front and Rear at the same Time, and for abandoning my Hospital; and I wrote the Letter of which I inclose a Copy.

This unfortunately reached the General after he had marched, and he arrived at Oropeza shortly after Daylight, on the Morning of the 4th.

The Question what was to be done, was then to be considered. The Enemy, stated to be Thirty Thousand strong, but at all Events consisting of the Corps of Soult and Ney, either united, or not very distant from each other, and supposed by Marshal Jourdan and Joseph Buonaparte, to be sufficiently strong to attack the British Army, stated to be Twenty-five Thousand strong, were on one Side, in Possession of the high Road to the Passage of the Tagus at Al-maraz, the Bridge at which Place we knew had been removed, although the Boats still necessarily remained in the River.

On the other Side, we had Reason to expect the Advance of Victor's Corps to Talavera, as soon as General Cuesta's March should be known, and after leaving Twelve Thousand Men to watch Vanegas, and allowing from Ten to Eleven Thousand killed and wounded in the late Action, this Corps would have amounted to Twenty-five Thousand. We could extricate ourselves from this difficult Situation only by great Celerity of Movement, to which the Troops were unequal, as they had not had their Allowance of Provisions for several Days, and by Success in Two Battles. If unsuccessful in either, we should have been without a Retreat; and if Soult and Ney avoiding an Action had retired before us, and had waited the Arrival of Victor, we should have been exposed to a general Action with Fifty Thousand Men, equally without a Retreat.

We had reason to expect, that as the Marquis de la Reyna could not remove the Boats from the River Almaraz, Soult would have destroyed them.

Our only Retreat was, therefore, by the Bridge of Arco Bispo; and if we had moved on, the Enemy, by breaking that Bridge while the Army should be engaged with Soult and Ney, would have deprived us of that only Resource.

We could not take a Position at Oropeza, as we thereby left open the Road to the Bridge of Arco Bispo from Talavera by Calera; and, after considering the whole Subject maturely, I was of Opinion that it was advisable to retire to the Bridge of Arco Bispo, and to take up a defensive Position upon the Tagus.

I was induced to adopt this last Opinion, because the French have now at least Fifty Thousand Men disposable to oppose to the Combined Armies, and a Corps of Twelve Thousand to watch Vanegas; and I was likewise of Opinion, that the sooner the defensive Line should be taken up, the more likely were the Troops to be able to defend it.

Accordingly I marched on the 4th, and crossed the Tagus by the Bridge of Arco Bispo, and have continued my Route to this Place, in which I am well situated to defend the Passage of Almaraz and the lower Parts of the Tagus. General Cuesta crossed the River on the Night of the 5th, and he is still at the Bridge of Arco Bispo.

About Two Thousand of the Wounded have been brought away from Talavera, the remaining Fifteen Hundred are there; and I doubt whether, under any Circumstances, it would have been possible or consistent with Humanity, to attempt to remove any more of them.

From the Treatment which some of the Soldiers wounded on the 27th, and who fell into the Hands of the Enemy, experienced from them, and from the Manner in which I have always treated the Wounded who have fallen into my Hands, I expect that these Men will be well treated; and I have only to lament, that a new Concurrence of Events, over which from Circumstances I had and could have no Controul, should have placed the Army in a Situation to be obliged to leave any of them behind.

I have the Honour to be, &c.

Downing-Street, September 2, 1809.

A DISPATCH, of which the following is a Copy, was Yesterday Morning received at the Office of Lord Viscount Castlereagh, one of His Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, from Lieutenant-General the Earl of Chatham, dated Headquarters, Batz, August 29, 1809.

MY LORD,

MAJOR Bradford delivered to me your Lordship's Dispatch of the 21st Instant, signifying to me His Majesty's Commands that I should convey to Lieutenant-General Sir Eyre Coote, the General and other Officers and Troops employed before Flushing, and particularly to those of the Artillery and Engineer Departments, His Majesty's most gracious Approbation of their Conduct; and which I have obeyed with the most entire Satisfaction.

I had the Honour in my last Dispatch of acquainting your Lordship with my Intention of proceeding to this Place, and I should have been most happy to have been enabled to have announced to your Lordship the further Progress of this Army. Unfortunately however, it becomes my Duty to state to your Lordship that, from the concurrent Testimony from so many Quarters, as to leave no Doubt of the Truth of the Information, the Enemy appears to have collected so formidable a Force, as to convince me that the Period was arrived, at which my Instructions would have directed me to withdraw the Army under my Command, even if engaged in actual Operation.

I had certainly early understood on my Arrival at Walcheren, that the Enemy were assembling in considerable Force on all Points; but I was unwilling to give too much Credit to these Reports, and I was determined to persevere until I was satisfied, upon the fullest Information, that all further Attempts would be unavailing.

From all our Intelligence it appears that the Force of the Enemy in this Quarter, distributed between the Environs of Bergen-op-Zoom, Breda, Lillo, and Antwerp, and cantoned on the opposite Coast, is not less than Thirty-five Thousand Men, and by some Statements is estimated higher. Though a Landing on the Continent might, I have no Doubt, have been forced, yet, as the Siege of Antwerp, the Possession of which could alone have secured to us any of the ulterior Objects of the Expedition, was by this State of Things rendered utterly impracticable, such a Measure, if successful, could have led to no solid Advantage; and the Retreat of the Army, which must at an early Period have been inevitable, would have been exposed to much Hazard.

The utmost Force (and that daily decreasing) that I could have brought into the Field, after providing for the Occupation of Walcheren and South Beveland, would have amounted to about Twenty-three Thousand Infantry and Two Thousand Cavalry. Your Lordship must at once see, even if the Enemy's Force had been less numerous than represented, after the necessary Detachments to observe the Garrisons of Bergen-op-Zoom and Breda, and securing our Communications, how very inadequate a Force must have remained for Operations against Lillo and Lietkenshoek, and ultimately against Antwerp; which Town, so far from being in the State which had been reported, is, from very correct Accounts, represented to be in a complete State of Defence; and the Enemy's Ships had been brought up and placed in Security, under the Guns of the Citadel.

Under these Circumstances, however mortifying to me to see the Progress arrested of an Army, from whose good Conduct and Valour I had every thing to hope, I feel that my Duty left me no other Course than to close my Operations here; and it will always be a Satisfaction to me to think, that I have not been induced lightly to commit the Safety of the Army confided to me, or the Reputation of His Majesty's Arms. It was an additional Satisfaction to me to find that the unanimous Opinion of the Lieutenant-Generals of this Army, whom I thought it right to consult, more out of respect to them, than that I thought a Doubt could be entertained on the Subject, concurred entirely in the Sentiments I have submitted to your Lordship.

I am concerned to say, that the Effect of the Climate at this unhealthy Period of the Year, is felt most seriously, and that the Numbers of Sick already is little short of Three Thousand Men.

It is my Intention to withdraw gradually from the advanced Position in this Island, and sending into Walcheren such an additional Force as may be necessary to secure that important Possession, to embark the Remainder of the Troops, and to hold them in Readiness to avail His Majesty's further Commands, which I shall most anxiously expect.

I have the Honour to be, &c.

(Signed) CHATHAM.

Admiralty-Office, September 2, 1809.

Extract of a Letter from Rear-Admiral Sir Rich. John Strachan; Bart. K. B. to the Honourable William Wellesley Pole, dated on board His Majesty's Ship the St. Domingo, off Batz; the 27th August 1809.

I HAVE now to acquaint you, for their Lordships' Information, that the Flat Boats of every Description of Vessels being assembled, and every necessary Arrangement made on the Part of the Navy, for Landing the Army near Santflee, on the Beach which had been previously reconnoitred, and not hearing from the Earl of Chatham respecting his Intentions, I communicated with his Lordship on the 24th Instant, and on the following Day I found his Lordship had not come to a Determination, on account of the increased Force of the Enemy, and the Army getting sickly, and that he had sent for the Generals to consult, I therefore, on the Morning of the 26th, wrote to his Lordship, and I soon after went on Shore to the Meeting of the Lieutenant-Generals of the Army, taking with me Rear Admiral Sir Richard Keates; I found them decidedly of Opinion that no Operation could be undertaken against Antwerp, with any Prospect of Success, at this advanced Season of the Year, and the Enemy increasing in Strength, and our own Forces diminished by Sickness: and that as the taking of Lillo and Lietkenshoek would not ensure our obtaining the ultimate Object of the Expedition, without Antwerp being reduced, and the Country near these Fortresses being inundated; it was also their decided Opinion, that the Army ought not to make any Attempt on them. I had already, in the most unqualified Manner, offered every Naval Assistance to reduce these Fortresses, and also in Aid of every other Operation of the Army. Conceiving the Subject of the Deliberations of the Generals perfectly military, I withdrew with Sir Richard Keate. The Ships of the Enemy which were above the Town of Antwerp about Five Miles have come down, and are now extended along the River Facé of it, except Two of the Line lower down, in the Reach above Liefkenhoeik; and Four Frigates went to Lillo. An immense Number of small Gun-Boats are on the Boom; behind them a Crescent of Sixty Gun and Mortar-Brigs. The Battery between Lillo and Fredrick Hendrick is finished; it has Ten Guns. The Enemy has been driven from that which he was constructing on the Doel Side with Lofs, by the Fire of our Bombs and Gun-Vessels.

Admiralty-Office, September 2, 1809.

REAR-ADMIRAL SIR ALEXANDER COCHRANE has transmitted to the Honourable William Wellesley Pole, a Letter from Captain Pigot, of His Majesty's Ship the Latona, giving an Account of his having, on the 18th of June last, captured La Felicité, a French Frigate, pierced for Forty-two Guns, but having only Fourteen of her Main-Deckers mounted, and One Hundred and Seventy-four Men on board. She had left Guadaloupe, in Company with another Frigate, bound to France with Colonial Produce. Her Comfort escaped through superior sailing, after a long Chace by His Majesty's Sloop Cherub.
