Downing-Street, May 18, 1811.

A DISPATCH, of which the following is an Extract, was on the 15th Instant received at Lord Liverpool's Office, addressed to His Lordship by Lieutenant-General Viscount Wellington, dated Villa Formosa, 1st May 1811.

HAVING received Intelligence from Lieutenant-General Sir Brent Spencer on the 27th April, Two Days after I addressed Your Lordship last, that the Enemy were increasing their Force on the Agueda, I arrived here on the 28th. The Enemy had on the 23d attacked our Picquets on the Azava, but were repulsed. Captains Dobbs and Campbell, of the 52d Regiment, and Lieutenant Eccles, of the 95th Regiment, distinguished themselves upon this Occasion, in which the Allied Troops defended their Post against very superior Numbers of the Enemy. One Lieutenant (Lieutenant Pritchard) and Seventeen Soldiers were wounded. The Enemy repeated their attack upon our Picquets on the Azava on the 27th, and were again repulsed; and this Day again they reconnoitred the Banks of this River with Eight squadrons of Cavalry and Three Battalions of Infantry. They did not make any Attempt to pass the River, nor did they attack the Picquets upon the Bridge of Marialva. They have collected a very large Force at Ciudad Rodrigo. Marshal Massena and the Headquarters of the Army are at that Place.

The River Agueda is not yet fordable for Infantry, but is so for Cavalry.

Sir William Beresford has taken up the Position which I had proposed for him in Estremadura; but I have not yet heard that he had re-established the Bridge at Juramenha.

Admiralty Office, May 18, 1811.

Copy of a Letter from Admiral Sir Charles Cotton, Bart., Commander in Chief of His Majesty's Ships and Vessels in the Mediterranean, to John Wilson Croker Esq; dated on board the San Josef at Sea, the 17th April 1811.

SIR,

ALTHOUGH the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty will be earlier acquainted, through the Medium of Rear-Admiral Bayles, with the gallant Action fought on the 13th Ultimo in the Adriatic, by His Majesty's Ships named in the Margin*, against a Squadron of the Enemy's Frigates, consisting of Five in Number, One Corvette, a Brig, Two Schooners and a Kébec, and One Gun-Boat, which terminated in the Capture of Two of the Enemy's Frigates and the Destruction of another; I nevertheless think it right to transmit the Account of this brilliant Affair to their Lordships. The Event speaking for itself, I shall briefly remark that the Success of His Majesty's Squadron has been no other than could be expected from Ships in the high Order and State of Discipline of those in question, and led on by an Officer of the Reputation of Captain Hoste.

* Amphion, Cerberus, Active, Volage.

I have sent Orders to Captain Hofte with the Amphion and Volage, (which appear to have suffered a great deal and been in this Country the longest,) to take the Prizes to Spithead.

I have the Honour to be, &c.

(Signed) C. COTTON.

*Magnificent, off Liffa,
March 24, 1811.*

SIR,

IT is with the greatest Satisfaction I herewith transmit a Letter I have received from Captain Hofte, giving an Account of a most gallant Action, which has been fought in the Adriatic between a Detachment of Frigates named in the Margin*, under his Command, and the Enemy's Squadron from Ancona, the Result of which is that Two of the Enemy's Frigates have been captured, and one destroyed; the Remainder owing their Escape to the crippled State of the Masts and Rigging of His Majesty's Ships.

When the great Disparity of Force in this Action is considered, the Smoothness of the Water, which enabled the Enemy's small Craft to take a Part, and, from his being to Windward, enabled to choose his own Plan of Attack, I think, Sir, the Superiority in Bravery, Discipline, and professional Knowledge exhibited by the British Officers and Seamen never was more conspicuous.

I received by a Neutral Vessel, when off Corfu, a few Lines from Captain Hofte, written immediately after the Action, which mentioned that the Ships which had escaped had taken Refuge in the Island of Lefina, in a very disabled State, and where he thought they may be destroyed, I therefore immediately proceeded hither in the Magnificent, but found on my Arrival that they had sailed and gone to Ragusa.

I have the Honour to be, &c.

(Signed) GEO. EYRE.

* Amphion, Cerberus, Active, Volage.

His Majesty's Ship Amphion, off the Island of Liffa, March 14, 1811.

SIR,

IT is with much Pleasure I have to acquaint you that after an Action of Six Hours we have completely defeated the combined French and Italian Squadrons, consisting of Five Frigates, One Corvette, One Brig, Two Schooners, One Gun Boat, and One Xebec; the Force opposed to them was His Majesty's Ship Amphion, Cerberus, Active, and Volage. On the Morning of the 13th, the Active made the Signal for a strange Fleet to Windward, and Daylight discovered to us the Enemy's Squadron lying to, off the North Point of the Island of Liffa; the Wind at that Time was from the North West, a fine Breeze. The Enemy having formed in Two Divisions, instantly bore down to attack us under all possible Sail. The British Line, led by the Amphion, was formed by Signal in the closest Order on the Starboard Tack to receive them. At Nine A.M. the Action commenced by our firing on the headmost Ships as they came within Range; the Intention of the Enemy appeared to be to break our Line in two Places, the Starboard Division, led by the French Commodore, bearing upon the Amphion and Active, and the Larboard Division on the Cerberus and Volage; in this Attempt he failed (though almost aboard of us), by the well directed

Fire and compact Order of our Line. He then endeavoured to round the Van Ship, to engage to Leeward, and thereby place us between two Fires, but was so warmly received in the Attempt, and rendered so totally unmanageable, that in the Act of wearing he went on Shore on the Rocks of Lyffa in the greatest possible Confusion.

The Line was then wore to renew the Action, the Amphion not half a Cable-length from the Shore; the Remainder of the Enemy's Starboard Division passing under our Stern and engaging us at Leeward, whilst the Larboard Division tacked and remained to Windward, engaging the Cerberus, Volage, and Active. In this Situation the Action commenced with great Fury, His Majesty's Ships frequently in Positions which unavoidably exposed them to a raking Fire of the Enemy, who with his Superiority of Numbers, had Ability to take advantage of it; but nothing, Sir, could withstand the brave Squadron I had the Honour to command. At Twenty Minutes past Eleven A. M. the Flora struck her Colours, and at Twelve the Bellona followed her Example. The Enemy to Windward now endeavoured to make off, but were followed up as close as the disabled State of His Majesty's Ships would admit of, and the Active and Cerberus were enabled at Three P. M. to compel the Sternmost of them to surrender, when the Action ceased, leaving us in Possession of the Corona of Forty-four Guns, and the Bellona of Thirty-two Guns (the French Commodore), the Favorite of Forty-four Guns on Shore, who shortly after blew up with a dreadful Explosion, the Corvette of the Enemy making all possible Sail to the North West, and Two Frigates crowding Sail for the Port of Lefina, the Brig making off to the South East, and the small Craft flying in every Direction; nor was it in my Power to prevent them, having no Ship in a State to follow them.

I must now account for the Flora's getting away after having struck her Colours. At the Time I was engaged with that Ship, the Bellona was raking us; and when she struck, I had no Boat that could possibly take possession of her. I therefore preferred closing with the Bellona and taking her, to losing Time alongside the Flora, which I already considered belonging to us. I call on the Officers of my own Squadron as well as those of the Enemy to witness my Assertion. The Correspondence I have had on this Subject with the French Captain of the Danaë (now their Commodore,) and which I enclose herewith, is convincing, and even their own Officers (Prisoners here) acknowledge the Fact. Indeed I might have sunk her, and so might the Active; but as the Colours were down, and all Firing from her had long ceased, both Captain Gordon and myself considered her as our own: the Delay of getting a Boat on board the Bellona, and the anxious Pursuit of Captain Gordon after the beaten Enemy enabled him to steal off, till too late for our shattered Ships to come up with him, his Rigging and Sails apparently not much injured; but by the Laws of War I shall ever maintain he belongs to us. The Enemy's Squadron, as per inclosed Return, was commanded by Monsieur Dubourdieu, a Captain de Vaiffeau, and a Member of the Legion of Honor, who is killed. In Justice to a brave Man I must say, he set a noble Example of Intrepidity to those under him. They ailed from Ancona the 11th Instant, with Five Hundred Troops on board, and every thing necessary for fortifying and garrisoning the Island of Lissa. Thanks to Providence we have this Time prevented them.

I have to lament the Loss of many valuable Officers and Men; but in a Contest of this Kind it was to be expected. It is now my Duty to endeavour to do Justice to the brave Officers and Men I had the Honour to command. I feel myself unequal to the Task; nothing from my Pen can add to their Merit. From your own Knowledge of Captains Gordon, Whitby and Hornby, and the Discipline of their Ships, every Thing you know, Sir, might be expected; and if an Officer so near in the same Rank as themselves may be permitted to give an Opinion, I should say they exceeded my most sanguine Expectation, and it is a Duty I owe all to express in the most public Manner my grateful Sense of the brave and gallant Conduct of every Captain, Officer, Seaman and Royal Marine employed on this Occasion. From my First Lieutenant Sir David Dunn, I received every Assistance that might be expected from a zealous, brave and intelligent Officer, and his Exertions (though wounded) in repairing our Damage, is as praise-worthy as his Conduct in the Action, particularly as I have been unable to assist him from a Wound in my right Arm, and several severe Contusions. Captain Moore of the Royal Marines, of this Ship, received a Wound, but returned to his Quarters immediately it was dressed. The Captains of the Squadron speak in the warmest Terms of their Officers and Men, particularly their First Lieutenants Dickenson, Henderson and Wolridge; and the Behaviour of my own Officers and Ship's Company, who have been with me so long, was every Thing I expected from their tried Worth; but I must not particularize where all were equally meritorious. I am now on my Way to Lissa, with the Squadron and Prizes. The Damage the Ships have sustained is very considerable, and I fear will render us totally incapable of keeping the Sea. I enclose a Statement of the Enemy's Force, together with a Return of Killed and Wounded in the Squadron, and deeply lament they are so great.

I have the Honour to be, &c.

(Signed) WILLIAM HOSTE.

 THE Frigate you commanded in the late Action with the British Squadron struck her Colours to His Britannic Majesty's Ship Amphion, under my Command; I was not able to take possession of you at that Moment, being engaged with the Bellona Frigate, but I considered you as my own, and as a Man of Honour you must have thought so yourself; I call on the Officers of your own Squadron, as well as those I have the Honour to command, to witness my Assertion. You know, Sir, I might have sunk you, had I not considered you as having surrendered, and so might Two of my Squadron also. On board His Imperial and Royal Majesty's Frigate
 SIR, gate the Danaë in the Roads of Liffina.
 IN consequence of the Wounds received by Monsieur Peridier, Commandant of His Imperial and Royal Majesty's Frigate La Flore, I have had the Honour to take upon me the Command of His Imperial and Royal Majesty's Ships, and cannot surrender to you His Majesty's Frigate under the Laws to which you refer, because she did not strike her Colours, as you are pleased to state. His Majesty's Frigate had her Flag cut by Shot. Her State not allowing her to continue any longer the Engagement, her Captain thought proper to withdraw from it. If you should not consider my Answer satisfactory, I request you will address yourself to my Government.

I have the Honour to be, &c.
 To Monsieur the Commandant of the Amphion Frigate, at Liffa.

His Britannic Majesty's Ship Amphion,
 SIR, Island of Liffa, March 19, 1811.
 THE Letter I had the Honour of receiving Today was neither signed nor dated (I presume through Mistake); I return it for its Signature.
 As Captain of the Danaë, you will not admit that the Flora struck her Colours in the late Action, nor did I call on you to do so. No, Sir; I call on Monsieur Peridier, the Commander of that Ship, as a Man of Honour, to declare whether she struck her Colours or not; and if Monsieur Peridier was so severely wounded as not to have Charge of the Ship at that Time, I look to his next in Command for an Answer to my Letter of the 15th; but I again assert, and ever shall maintain, that, by the Laws of War, his Frigate belongs to my Sovereign, and his Sword to me; the World will judge between us.

I have the Honour to be, &c.
 WILLIAM HOSTE.
 To the Captain commanding the Frigate Danaë.

His Majesty's Ship, Amphion, Island of Lissa, Adriatic, March 15, 1811.

SIR,
ON my Arrival here this Morning, I found the Remainder of the French Commodore's Crew and Troops, Two Hundred in Number, had retired to Lissa; they were summoned to surrender by Messrs. Lew and Kingston, Two Midshipmen of the Active, (who had been left in Charge of Prizes,) and several Men belonging to Privateers. The Summons was acceded to; they laid down their Arms and were made Prisoners of War. The spirited Conduct of those young Men deserve every Praise, nor can I forbear mentioning the dastardly Behaviour of a Sicilian Privateer Brig of Fourteen Guns, named the Vincitore, and commanded by Captain Clemento Fama, who was lying in this Port, and previous to the Commencement of the Action hauled down his Colours to a small One Gun Venetian Schooner; this was witnessed by every Man in the Squadron, and I believe, there was but one Opinion on the Subject. Messrs. Kingston and Lee afterwards went on Board, took Charge of the Brig, beat off the Schooner, and prevented her from destroying the Vessels in the Bay.

I have omitted a Circumstance in my former Letter respecting the Corona, which, from the meritorious Conduct of those Officers and Men employed, deserves to be mentioned. The Corona caught Fire in the Main-Top, shortly after her Capture, and the whole of her Main-Mast and Rigging was instantly in Flames. Lieutenants Dickenson, of the Cerberus, and Hay, of the Active, with a Party of Men, were on Board her at the Time. The Ship now presented a most awful Spectacle, and I had quite given her up as lost. No possible Assistance could be afforded from the Squadron, and she had to trust alone to her own Exertions; these, however, were not wanting, and by the extraordinary Perseverance and Coolness of the Officers and Men employed, the Fire was at last extinguished, with the Loss of the Main-Mast, and the Ship of course saved to the Service. I have to express my warmest Thanks to Lieutenants Dickenson and Hay, and the Officers and Men employed, and beg Leave to recommend them to the Commander in Chief.

I have the Honour to be, &c.

(Signed) W. HOSTE.

Captain G. Eyre, or Senior Officer.

Admiralty-Office, May 18, 1811.

Extract of another Letter from Admiral Sir Charles Cotton, Bart. to John Wilson Croker, Esq. dated on board the San Josef, off Toulon, the 24th April, 1811.

I Have the Satisfaction to transmit the enclosed Copy of a Letter from Captain Bullen, of the Cambrian, dated the 16th Instant, then Senior Officer on the Coast of Catalonia; giving an Account of the Surrender of Figueras to the Spaniards on the 10th of this Month, and the other Successes therein mentioned. Their Lordships will perceive that I have, in consequence of this favourable Turn of Affairs, increased the Force on the Coast of Catalonia, in order to afford a more effectual Co-operation to the Marquis of Campoverde, (from whom, and as well from Major-General Doyle, I have also heard of the Fall of Figueras,) in his intended

Operations to drive the French from Rosas, and the other Ports on the Coast, and ensure Supplies for the Spaniards reaching Figueras, and the other Places in possession of our Ally:

I should mention to their Lordships that the Ammunition, with which the Store-ship lately captured by the Ajax and Unité was laden, will enable me to afford Succour to the Spaniards in that respect, in compliance with their repeated Application.

SIR, Cambrian, off Rosas, 16 April, 1811.

I HAVE great Pleasure in sending to you, by the Blossom, the important Intelligence of the Surrender of Figueras to the Spaniards, on the 10th Instant; and that St. Phillon and Palamos were taken possession of by the Cambrian and Volontaire on the 12th and 14th, the Guns all embarked, and the Batteries destroyed. I am now on my Way to Rosas and Cadequis, and I have Reason to hope the latter Place, with Silva, will also shortly be ours.

The Fall of Figueras has roused the Spaniards, who are arming in all Directions, and Hostalrich and Gerona are at this Moment garrisoned by Spanish Troops. The only correct Account I can learn is, that Four Hundred Italians, with Two Hundred French Troops, were left to protect Figueras, and that the former, disgusted with the Treatment they daily receive from the French, and being also half starved, opened the Gates of the Fortress to a Body of Spanish Troops (apprized of their Intention), who rushed into the Castle and put every Frenchman to the Sword.

At this Moment about Two Thousand effective Spanish Troops are in full Possession of this important Place; and General Sarsfield is on his Way with more, as well as Supplies of every Kind.

The French General D'Hilliers, who has the Command in Catalonia, on hearing of the Fall of Figueras, has abandoned all his Holds in Spain, except Barcelona, and is collecting the whole of his Force to attack it, as well as to prevent Supplies from getting in; but I am told a Quantity of Provisions was concealed in the Town, unknown to the French, which have been given up to the Spanish Troops in the Castle, who are in the highest Spirits possible.

The Termagant continues to watch Barcelona, and I purpose remaining off here with the Volontaire, ready for any Thing that may offer; as under all the existing Circumstances, I think it likely Rosas may give up.

I also beg to inform you, that a large Settee, deeply laden with Grain for Barcelona from Port Vendee, was the Night before last most handsomely cut out from under the Medes Islands and Batteries by the Boats of this Ship, led on by Lieutenant Conolly, without a Man being hurt.

I beg Leave to offer you my Congratulations on the Fall of Figueras, and the fair Prospect it opens:

I have the Honour to be, &c.

(Signed) CHA. BULLEN.

Admiral Sir Charles Cotton, Bart.

P. S. Since writing the above, I spoke a small Boat from Begar, which tells me the French General had made a rash Attempt to recover Figueras Two Days since, and lost Seven Hundred Men.
