Published by Authority.

From Tuesday, May 12, to Saturday, May 16, 1812.

Carlton-House, May 14, 1812.

THIS Day the Right Honourable the Lord Mayor, the Aldermen, Sheriffs, and Officers of the Corporation of London, waited upon His Royal Highness the Prince Regent with an humble Address and Condolence, which was read by John Silvester, Esq. the Recorder, as follows:

To His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, REGENT of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

The humble and dutiful Address and Condolence of the Court of Lord Mayor and Aldermen of the City of London.

May it please your Royal Highness,

WE, the Lord Mayor and Aldermen of the City of London, humbly beg leave to approach your Royal Highness, to offer our condolence, and to express our horror and detestation at the unexampled and atrocious act of assassination on the person of the Right Honourable Spencer Perceval, First Commissioner of His Majesty's Treasury and Chancellor of the Exchequer, within the walls of the Honourable House of Commons, on his way to the discharge of his important public duties.

And we trust that, though the painful sensation will be long felt which has been excited by the event, yet that the national alarm may be speedily allayed by the discovery, that this horrible deed is unconnected with any system of a sanguinary nature, instances of which have unfortunately occurred in other parts of this kingdom, but which bear a stamp unknown before to the manly and generous character of the English people.

We fervently hope and believe, that the unextinguishable loyalty of the subjects of the united empire will be exerted to prevent a repetition of so foul an atrocity.

We beg permission to assure your Royal Highness, on an event so melancholy and so much to be deplored, more particularly on account of the many public and private virtues of so distinguished a character, of our steady loyalty and unfeigned attachment to your royal house and person, and our resolution to support the crown and dignity of these realms.

Signed by order of Court,
HENRY WOODTHORPE.

To which Address His Royal Highness was graciously pleased to return the following answer:

I thank you for this dutiful Address.

I deeply deplore the melancholy event which has deprived the country of a person most eminently distinguished for his public and private virtues.

I trust that the alarm which that event cannot but have excited, may be allayed by the belief that it is unconnected with any system of a sanguinary nature—a system hitherto certainly unknown to the manly and generous character of the English people.

Whilst I thank you for the warm assurances of your loyalty and attachment, I rely upon your resolution to support the crown and dignity of these realms; and although I cannot but deeply regret the disturbances which have taken place in some parts of the kingdom, I most confidently trust that the loyal and zealous endeavours of the great body of His Majesty's people, co-operating with the exertions of those powers which are vested in me for their protection, will enable me effectually to secure their peace and happiness.

They were all received very graciously, and had the honour of kissing the Prince Regent's hand.

THE following Addresses have been presented to His Royal Highness the Prince Regent; which Addresses His Royal Highness was pleased to receive very graciously:

To His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, REGENT of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

The humble and dutiful Address of the Noblemen, Freeholders, Justices of Peace, Commissioners of Supply, and Heretors, of the County of Peebles.

WE, His Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Noblemen, Freeholders, Justices of Peace, Commissioners of Supply, and Heretors, of the county of Peebles, humbly beg leave to approach your Royal Highness with the fervent expression of our attachment for your person, and devotion to your government, which has commenced under the most auspicious circumstances.

While the brilliant success which has crowned

His Majesty's arms in the mighty contest in which Spain and Portugal are engaged with the enemy of freedom and independence, has added a fresh wreath to the laurels which already encircled the British diadem, the ardent zeal with which your Royal Highness has espoused the cause of a great and loyal people, exhibits to the world the firm assertor of the rights and liberties of mankind, treading in the same path of glory and of duty, which his father so nobly trod before; and makes your country cherish the well founded hope, that the same policy which so long guided the counsels of our Sovereign and proved the happiness of his people, will be the rule of a prince whose patriotic adherence to the rights and interests of the country he is now called upon to govern, will never, we are firmly persuaded, be shaken by any feelings inconsistent with the public good.

We hail as a gratifying proof of the same patriotic views, that spirit of conciliation to neutral powers, which has dictated the declaration that those restrictions on trade, rendered necessary by way of retaliation against the frantic rage of the enemy to destroy our commerce, the pillar of our independence and naval superiority, shall cease the moment his hostile measures are withdrawn; and we trust that neutral nations will be satisfied that, while under your government, a due regard to our national rights will be maintained, the exercise of those rights will ever be tempered with a due regard to the rights of others.

While in common with the rest of His Majesty's subjects we continue to lament the severe visitation which has deprived us of that paternal government, under which for more than half a century the people of this country have hitherto been conducted in safety through these eventful times, we feel this calamity lightened, when we already see so conspicuously in the son the same zeal for the public welfare, the same views of national policy, the same adherence to those principles which placed your family on the throne, which uniformly animated our revered Sovereign; and we have the best assurance that the same paternal and patriotic government, which made him the father and the friend of his people, will continue to increase the glory and augment the happiness of the subjects of this country, and amid the overthrow of ancient thrones and the downfall of legitimate sovereigns, will rivet the attachment for your person and government, too strongly to be dissolved by any efforts of foreign policy, or arts of domestic faction.

Signed, in the name and by the appointment of the meeting, this 30th day of April 1812 years, by Thos. G. Carmichael, Preses.

Unto His Royal Highness George Prince of Wales, REGENT of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

The humble Address of the Freeholders, Commissioners of Supply, and Justices of the Peace, of the County of Dumbarton.

May it please your Royal Highness,

WITH feelings of the most sincere attachment to your Royal Highness's person and government, we, the Freeholders, Commissioners of Supply, and Justices of the Peace, of the county of Dumbarton, in a general county meeting assembled, humbly beg leave to express our warmest gratitude to your Royal Highness, for the proofs which you have already given of undeviating regard for the interest of your people, and of the most upright, wise, and steady conduct in the exercise of those high and important duties now belonging to your situation.

While we deeply regret, in common with His Majesty's other faithful subjects, the present inability of our most gracious and beloved Sovereign to exercise in person the functions of royalty, we have had the pleasing consolation of knowing by experience, that the defect could be well supplied. We pray to Almighty God, that your Royal Highness's life and health may long be preserved, as a source of happiness to your people, and as our best security for the continuance of those great and signal advantages which have attended the auspicious dawns of your power.

We beg leave to assure your Royal Highness, that as we have the most entire confidence in your wisdom, and in the justice, ability, and good intentions of your government, so, we are determined in our different spheres to serve and support your Royal Highness with all the zeal which is due from faithful and loyal subjects to the best of princes; never losing sight of that excellent constitution which we enjoy, nor of those principles of rational freedom, which we consider as our birthright; nor shall we be deterred from doing our duty either by the clamours of internal faction, or the threats of external force.

Signed in presence, and by appointment of the meeting, Hay Cambell.

To His Royal Highness the PRINCE REGENT.

The humble, dutiful, and loyal Address of the Provost, Magistrates, and Council, of the Royal Burgh of Ayr.

May it please your Royal Highness,

WE, His Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Provost, Magistrates, and Council, of his ancient burgh of Ayr, beg leave humbly to approach your Royal Highness with the most lively expressions of our attachment to your royal person, and unfeigned assurances of our ardent zeal for the support and dignity of our unrivalled constitution; as well as to congratulate your Royal Highness upon your recent entry to the unrestricted exercise of the regal authority of these realms.

If we may be permitted to judge of the future by the past, we would look forward with confidence and satisfaction for a continuance of those firm and energetic measures which have marked your Royal Highness's councils, and crowned with unexampled success His Majesty's arms.

Whilst we lament, in common with His Majesty's other loyal subjects, the malady with which it has pleased the Almighty to afflict our revered Sovereign, we cannot but admire the tender sympathy and filial affection which have governed all your Royal Highness's proceedings toward your royal father, and we pray that a prince of such amiable dispositions, and so eminently qualified to govern, may be long preserved to copy after the virtues and example of so illustrious a parent; so that your Royal Highness may be enabled to support the honour and independence of the crown, and secure the liberty and happiness of a grateful people.

Signed in our presence, and by our appointment, at the Council Table, the 20th day of April 1812, William Cowart, Provost.

the Royal Burgh of Ayr.].

To His Royal Highness the PRINCE REGENT
of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

May it please your Royal Highness,

WE, His Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, the Freeholders, Justices of the Peace, and Commissioners of Supply, of the county of Stirling, beg leave to approach your Royal Highness, with the strongest assurance of our attachment to your person and government.

While we most deeply deplore and sincerely sympathise with your Royal Highness, on the much lamented indisposition of our revered and our much beloved Sovereign, we eagerly embrace the opportunity of conveying to your Royal Highness these sentiments of unfeigned gratitude, for the manner in which your Royal Highness has conducted the government of these realms during the period of the restricted regency, by following out those measures, which during the long and glorious reign of your royal father, have so eminently distinguished the British nation, and so gloriously upheld the character of the British arms.

We beg leave most cordially to congratulate your Royal Highness on the brilliant success which has lately so conspicuously distinguished His Majesty's fleets and armies; we reflect with feelings of pride and exultation, on the splendid achievements accomplished by His Majesty's arms in Spain and Portugal. We look forward with the most lively interest, to the great struggle which is there maintained against the common enemy of independence and social order: we rely upon the protection of Divine Providence in so just a cause, and feel confident that by a continued display of the same skill and irresistible bravery on the part of His Majesty's arms, and by a perseverance in the same wisdom and vigour in the councils of your Royal Highness, you will ultimately be enabled to bring the arduous contest in which we are now engaged to a successful and honourable issue, not less favourable to the interests of Europe, than, from its commencement, it has been glorious to the British name.

We are impressed with a due sense of the difficulties of the present arduous conjuncture, and while we lament the unavoidable pressure of the times, arising solely from the nature of the contest in which we are engaged, we should feel wanting in our duty, if on this occasion we did not state to your Royal Highness our most cordial approbation of the measures you have hitherto pursued, for promoting the prosperity and supporting the commercial interests of the country: and we acknowledge with sentiments of reverence and gratitude, that the sole objects of your royal care and concern, are to promote the happiness of your people, and to preserve inviolable, our excellent constitution in church and state.

Trusting to the Almighty for a continuation of the blessings which we so eminently enjoy, and that your Royal Highness may be long preserved to this happy nation; that the result of your councils may ever tend to the happiness of your people, to the prosperity and glory of the empire, is the most ardent wish and earnest prayer of, please your Royal Highness, His Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, the Freeholders, Justices of the Peace, and Commissioners of Supply, of the county of Stirling.

Subscribed in name and by appointment of the meeting, by Sir William Bruce, of Stenhouse, Baronet, the chairman, at Stirling, the 30th day of April 1812, Wm. Bruce, Preses.

[Presented by the Duke of Montrose.].

To His Royal Highness the PRINCE REGENT
of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

WE, the Freeholders, Justices of the Peace, and Commissioners of Supply, of the county of Perth, assembled at our general annual meeting, beg leave to approach your Royal Highness with every sentiment of loyalty and attachment.

While we bow with submission to the dispensations of Almighty God, we beg leave to express to your Royal Highness our full participation in the universal sentiment of deep affliction, felt by a loyal people, for the severe and protracted calamity with which our beloved Sovereign has been visited.

We revere the dignity and delicacy so becoming your exalted situation, which marked the conduct of your Royal Highness, during the restricted exercise of the royal functions; and the decision, firmness, and wisdom, with which, since these restrictions ceased, your Royal Highness has adopted that system of foreign and domestic policy, which we conceive to be indispensable to the maintainance of the British character, and to the safety of our invaluable constitution in church and state; has secured to your Royal Highness our gratitude and confidence, and will command our most zealous, active, steady and loyal support.

We avail ourselves of this opportunity of offering our most cordial congratulations, on the splendid and important successes, which, under Divine Providence and the auspices of your Royal Highness, have continued to attend His Majesty's arms.
While the enemy has been driven from his last possession in the east, the valour and discipline of His Majesty's troops, aided by the zeal and bravery of our allies, and conducted by the consummate skill of British officers, have frustrated every attempt of the tyrant of Europe to subjugate the kingdoms of Spain and Portugal.

The fresh laurels so recently obtained, while new obstacles have been opposed to the progress of the invaders of the Peninsula, strengthen our sanguine hopes, that the efforts of a gallant people, encouraged and supported by the vigour of your Royal Highness's councils, will ultimately prevail in the glorious struggle, which has been so long and so perseveringly maintained for their independence.

In the western hemisphere, we trust, that the United States of America will at last perceive and acknowledge the perfidious policy of our enemy; and that those principles of maritime law and commerce, which the usage of civilized nations had sanctioned, and those rights which our own naval superiority confers, and which our independence as a nation so imperatively require us to maintain, will be recognised and re-established in all parts of the world; and we rely on the firmness and wisdom of your Royal Highness's government, that no mistaken and destructive policy on our part, shall ever suffer those principles and rights to be compromised or abandoned.

That your Royal Highness may long continue to enjoy the attachment, respect, and gratitude of a loyal people; and that under your government the happiness, prosperity, and glory of the British empire may be maintained and extended, is our most earnest prayer.

Signed by our Preses, in our name, and by our appointment, John M. Murray, Preses.
