WAR DEPARTMENT.

Downing-Street, August 4, 1812.

A DISPATCH, of which the following is an extract, has been this day received at Lord Bathurst's Office, addressed to his Lordship by General the Earl of Wellington, dated Rueda, July 14, 1812.

GENERAL Bonnet joined the enemy on the evening of the 7th instant, and the army have since extended to their right as far as Toro, where they have been actively employed in repairing the bridge which they had before destroyed.

Lieutenant-General Sir R. Hill broke up from Albuera upon the 2d instant, and moved upon the enemy, who retired before him towards Cordova. His last letter is of the 9th from Llerena, and at that time part of the enemy's force had marched upon Fuente Ovejuna, from Berlanga; and General Drouet, with ten thousand men, with a very small proportion of artillery, had marched through Campillo upon Zalamea.

I have no authentic accounts of the siege of Astorga of a later date than the 5th instant. It is reported that there are two breaches in the place.

WHEREAS it hath been humbly represented unto His Royal Highness the Prince Regent, that about one o'clock in the morning of the 8th instant, two men came on board a hoy called the Sisters, then lying at Galley Quay, near the Custom House, in the port of London; and represented to William Huxtable, an officer of the customs then on duty, that they were ordered by the owner to take the said hoy to the London Docks, and immediately conveyed the said hoy to the lighter road off the Custom House, and there left her; and that between two and three o'clock in the said morning of the 8th instant, three other men, armed with cutlasses, came on board the said hoy from a skiff, and violently forced the said William Huxtable down the after scuttle into the cabin, where Charles O'Neil, another officer of the customs, then was, and threatened to blow out the brains of the said officers if they made any resistance; and having fastened down the said scuttle, and imprisoned the officers, the said men broke open the main hatches, and feloniously carried away several bales of raw silk, and one case and one trunk of ostrich feathers.
