

Convoy for Italy. By a Barke arrived this Morning from Leghorne we have Advice, that some of the English Brigats had taken the Admiral of Sully. We have not any fresh News from the Sieur du Quesne, who according to the last Account we had of him, continued before Scio, where the Tripolin men of War had so well secured themselves, that they seem'd not to apprehend any attempt he could make upon them.

Paris, Nov. 26. The Deputies of the Clergy meet constantly, but have not as yet brought the Matters before them to any head. We have the confirmation of the Algerines having broke the Peace with us, and that they have already taken some of our Ships.

Whitehal, Nov. 22. These following Addresses were presented to His Majesty, and were received by him very Graciously.

To the Kings most Excellent and Sacred Majesty.

The Humble Address of Your Majesties Loyal Subjects, the Deputy-Lieutenants, Justices of the Peace, Military Officers and Gentlemen, together with the Clergy of the County of Radnor.

Great and Dread Sovereign,

Though we are satisfied that we live in an Age when to express our constancy to the Crown, though by the most Humble Addresses, is by the Factious and Seditious look'd upon as unnecessary, impertinent and vain; because (perhaps) it doth too much speak our unshaken Loyalty, and detect their black and secret Crimes; yet with Hearts full of Joy, with Souls wholly Devoted to Your Service, we do with all Humility approach Your Throne; and where we usually leave our Cares and Fears, and find ease, thither we think fit to bring our Gratitude, and the most submissive tenders of Duty; firmly believing, that as Crowned Heads can no where more safely repose themselves, than in the fresh Assurances, and frequent Instances of their Peoples Love, so neither can the Subject be any where more safe, more happy, or more easie, than in the steady Government of a good Prince, in a well temper'd Monarchy. That Your Majesty and all the World may see we want not just Causes for the strictest and most devout Acknowledgments we can make, we will beg leave to repeat with joy some of those Blessings that have rais'd us to this fair degree of Loyalty and Gratitude. That Your Majesty is not yet crowded into the Grave of Your Martyr'd Father, by the same, or (if possible) more villainous Arts; that we have a true Protestant Prince, and a true Protestant Religion; that we neither are under a Bloody Spanish Inquisition, or a rigid Geneva Synod; that the Laws are Your Rule, and that You will make them ours; that You neither do, nor will, exercise Arbitrary Power Your Self, or permit it in others; that Parliaments are so valued by You and shall be frequent; that You will neither Abrogate good Laws, or consent to new ones that may endanger the Government; that You will extirpate Popery, discourage Faction, and Your Self strictly observe, and constantly maintain the Religion as now by Law established; that You secure our Property, and never yet attempted to invade our Liberties; that Justice is administered impartially, and freely, and Mercy held out, even to those that have scarce deserv'd it, or more than once forfeited their Titles to it, are Causes that merit rather an anniversary Thanksgiving to Heaven, and Thanks to Your Sacred Majesty, than such a weak and single Testimony as this; yet since we have no other way at present to express the just Seale of all those Blessings we enjoy from Your most auspicious, and happy Reign over us: We most humbly intreat Your Majesty, to accept this free-will offering of our grateful, and enlarged Hearts, attended with fixed Resolutions to stand by Your Majesty with our Lives and Fortunes, in the preservation of Your Sacred Person, Your Heirs and lawful Successors, and the Government in Church and State, as now by Law established; and this we do unfeignedly, sincerely, and heartily, upon the Faith of true Christians, and Loyal Subjects, as we hope for the Blessing of Your long Reign over us here, or to be happy hereafter;

Your Majesties most Humble, most Obedient,
And Loyal Subjects and Servants.

To the Kings most Sacred Majesty

The humble Address of Your Loyal Subjects of the Burrough of New-Radnor.

Great and Dread SIR,

Though we have not been so fortunate as to make our humble Acknowledgments to Your Majesty as early as other your good Subjects have done, yet we know that we live under the auspicious Government of so Excellent a Prince, that hath always his Arms open to Receive; and His Heart full of Mercy to Pardon all that are not obstinately wilful, or notoriously Guilty; we have the misfortune to live remote from that benigne Influence that warms the Breasts of such as are placed nearer to the Rays of Majesty, and to this unhappy distance we have this superadd'd, that between us, and the delight of our Eyes, and Joy of our Hearts, our most Gracious Sovereign; several fou, Fogs and darke Mists, have been rais'd of causeless jealousies, and needless fears; the Authors insinuating to us their great apprehensions, that Arbitrary Power and Popery were growing upon us (and indeed from some of our fellow-Subjects we had just cause to fear the first) but your Sacred Majesty in pity to our deluded Ignorance, by those emanations of Goodness, Mercy; and Truth manifested in your late Declaration, hath enlighten'd our Minds, and enliven'd our Hearts, from whence flows this Spring-tide of Duty and Gratitude, and shall still do so while we have a drop of Blood in our Veins; for we are unanimously resolv'd so sacrifice our Lives and Fortunes, in defence of your Majesties Sacred Person, your Heirs and lawful Successors, and the Government in Church and State, as now by Law established, against the Factious Schismatics, and Bloody Romanists: From these, Heaven defend you still; may your Reign be long and prosperous, your Change late, and Glorious, so pray

Your Majesties most Humble, most Loyal,
most Obedient, Subjects and Servants
