PRESENT,

His Royal Highness the PRINCE REGENT in Council.

WHEREAS His Majesty was pleased, by His Majesty's general Order in Council of the fifth of April one thousand eight hundred and five, touching the performance of quarantine, to direct, that where any ship or vessel shall attempt to enter into any port or place in Great Britain, or the islands of Jersey, Guernsey, Alderney, Sark, or Man, whether such port or place shall have been appointed for the performance of quarantine or not, the Superintendent of Quarantine, or his Assistant, (if there shall be such Superintendent or Assistant at such port or place), or, if not, the Principal Officer of His Majesty's Customs at such port or place, or such Officer of the Customs as shall be authorised by the Commissioners of the Customs, or any four or more of them, to act in that behalf, shall go off to such ship or vessel, and shall, at a convenient distance from such ship or vessel, keeping to windward, demand of the Commander, Master, or other person having charge of such ship or vessel, answers to certain preliminary questions therein set forth: And whereas His Royal Highness the Prince Regent was pleased, by His Orders in Council of the twenty-eighth of February one thousand eight hundred and eleven, and the twenty-ninth of September one thousand eight hundred and twelve, and the thirty-first of July last, to direct, that certain questions, in addition to the preliminary questions directed by His Majesty's general Order in Council of the fifth of April one thousand eight hundred and five, touching the performance of quarantine, should be put to the Commanders, Masters, or other persons having the charge or command of such ships or vessels: And whereas it is deemed expedient, that, in the case of ships or vessels coming from or having touched at any of the places mentioned in His Majesty's said Order in Council of the fifth of April one thousand eight hundred and five, as places from which it is probable that the plague, or some other infectious disease or distemper, highly dangerous to the health of His Majesty's subjects, may be brought into Great Britain; or having on

"Did you carry any bill of health with you to the port or place where you took in the cargo you have now on board? From what place? Were the said bills of health clean, unclean, or suspected?"

His Royal Highness the Prince Regent is thereupon pleased to order, in the name and on the behalf of His Majesty, and by and with the advice of His Majesty's Privy Council, that the questions above set forth, in addition to the preliminary questions directed by His Majesty's general Order in Council of the fifth of April one thousand eight hundred and five, and the Order in Council of the twenty-eighth of February one thousand eight hundred and eleven, the twenty-ninth of September one thousand eight hundred and twelve, and the thirty-first of July last respecting the performance of quarantine, be put to the Captains, Commanders, Masters, or other persons having charge or command of ships or vessels coming from or having touched at any of the places above described and enumerated:

And His Royal Highness was further pleased to order, in the name and on the behalf of His Majesty, and by and with the advice aforesaid, that such Captains, Commanders, Masters, or other persons having charge or command of such ships or vessels, shall, upon such questions being put by the Superintendent of Quarantine, or his Assistant, or Principal Officer or other Officer of the Customs, authorised by the Commissioners of His Majesty's Customs, or any four or more of them, to act in that behalf, give true answers to the same, in writing or otherwise, and upon oath or not upon oath, according as they shall be required by such Superintendent, or his Assistant, or Principal Officer or other Officer of the Customs, authorised as aforesaid, under such pains and penalties as are inflicted by an Act passed in the forty-fifth year of His Majesty's reign, intitled "An Act for making further provision for the effectual performance of quarantine."

AT the Court at Carlton-House, the 5th of October 1813,

PRESENT,

His Royal Highness the PRINCE REGENT in Council.

COLONIAL DEPARTMENT.

Downing-Street, October 14, 1813.

DISPATCHES, of which the following are copies, were this day received by Earl Bathurst, from Lieutenant-General Sir George Prevost, Bart.

Head-Quarters, Kingston, Upper

Canada, August 8, 1813.

IHAVE the honour to acquaint your Lordship that the enemy's fleet of twelve sail made its appearance off York on the 31st ultimo: the three square-rigged vessels, the Pike, Madison, and Oneida, came to anchor in the offing, but the schooners passed up the harbour and landed several boats full of troops at the former garrison, and proceeded from thence to the town, of which they took possession. They opened the gaol, liberated the prisoners, and took away three soldiers confined for felony: they then went to the hospitals and parolled the few men that could not be removed; they next entered the store-houses of some inhabitants, seized their contents, chiefly flour, the same being private property; between eleven and twelve o'clock that night they returned on board their vessels; the next morning, Sunday the 1st instant, the enemy again landed, and sent three armed boats up the River Don, in search of public stores, of which being disappointed, by sunset both soldiers and sailors had evacuated the town, the small barrack, wood-yard, and store-house, on Gibraltar-Point, having been first set on fire by them; and at daylight the following morning the enemy's fleet sailed.

The plunder obtained by the enemy upon this predatory expedition has been inconsiderable, and the loss has altogether fallen upon individuals; the public stores of every description having been removed; and the only prisoners taken by them being confined felons and invalids in hospital.

The troops which were landed were acting as marines, and appeared to be about two hundred and fifty men; they were under the command of Commodore Chauncey, and Lieutenant-Colonel Scott, an unexchanged prisoner of war on his parole, both of whom landed with the troops: the town, upon the arrival of the enemy, was totally defenceless, the militia were still on their parole, and the principal Gentlemen had retired, from an apprehension of being treated with the same severity used towards several of the inhabitants near Fort George, who had been made prisoners and sent to the United States: Lieutenant-Colonel Battersby, of the Grenadier Guards, with the detachment of light troops under his command, who had been stationed at York, was, upon the appearance of the enemy's fleet off that place on the 29th ultimo, ordered with his detachment and light artillery, to protect the protection of the depôts formed on Burlington Heights, where he had joined Major Maule's detachment of the 104th regiment, and on the following evening. The enemy had, during the course of that day, landed from their fleet five hundred men, near Brant's House, with an intention of storming the heights, but finding Major Maule well prepared to receive them, and being informed of Lieutenant-Colonel Battersby's march, they reembarked and stood away for Fort George.

My last accounts from Major-General Donkersburg are to the 3d instant, when the enemy's fleet had anchored off Niagara. I have received no tidings of our squadron under Sir James Yeo, since its sailing from hence on the 31st ultimo.

I have the honour to be, &c.

GEORGE PREVOST.

Head-Quarters, Kingston, Upper

Canada, August 8, 1813.

REFERRING to my dispatch of the 1st instant, wherein I had the honour of acquainting your Lordship that I had thought it expedient to endeavour to relieve Upper Canada from the pressure of the war, and to call the enemy's attention to the defence of their own settlements on Lake Champlain, by employing such naval officers and seamen, as circumstances would permit me to obtain from Quebec, to man our gun-boats, and the captured American vessels, for the purpose of co-operating with a small but chosen body of troops, in various demonstrations on that sheet of water.

I have now the satisfaction of transmitting herewith to your Lordship, for the information of His Royal Highness the Prince Regent, the copy of a letter I have just received from Major-General Sir R. H. Sheaffe, commanding in the Montreal district, conveying the official report of Lieutenant-Colonel Murray, detailing the operations, of the combined movements which took place on the 29th July; and I also annex the copy of another, which I have received from Captain Everard, of the Royal Navy, to whose prompt, zealous, and able assistance, I feel highly indebted.

The objects of this service have been fully accomplished, by the total destruction of all the enemy's arsenals, block-houses, barracks, and stores of every description at Plattsburgh, Swanton, and Champlain Town, and the extensive barracks at Saranac, capable of containing four thousand men, have been burnt; all naval, ordnance, and other stores, on the west side of the Lake, have been destroyed or carried away.

This important service has been performed with a degree of promptness and regularity highly honourable to the officers directing the expedition, and without sustaining any loss.

I have, &c.

SIR,

Montreal, August 5, 1813.

I HAVE the honour of transmitting to your Excellency, the reports of the Naval and Military Commanders of the force employed on the expedition to Lake Champlain, undertaken in obedience to your directions.

Lieutenant-Colonel Murray, with the troops and two of the gun-boats, returned on the 3d instant to Isle aux Noix, and the vessels arrived there yesterday. The service on which they were sent, has been effected in a manner which reflects great credit on the Commanders, and on those who acted under them.

I have, &c.

SIR,

Isle aux Noix, August 3, 1813.

THE land forces of the expedition that left the province on the 29th July, on an enterprise on Lake Champlain, returned this day, after having fully accomplished the objects proposed, and having carried every order into execution.

The enemy's arsenal, block-house, commissary's buildings, and stores at the position of Plattsburg, together with the extensive barracks of Saranac, capable of containing four thousand troops, were destroyed; some stores were brought off, particularly a quantity of naval stores, shot, and equipment for a large number of batteaux. The barracks and stores at the position of Swanton, on Missisquoi Bay, together with several batteaux at the landing-place, were destroyed.

A detachment has been sent to destroy the public buildings, barracks, block-houses, &c. at Champlain Town. Every assistance was rendered by the co-operation of Captains Everard and Pring, royal navy, commanding His Majesty's sloops of war Broke and Shannon.

I experienced very great benefit from the military knowledge of Lieutenant-Colonel Williams, 13th regiment (second in command). I have to report, in the highest terms of approbation, the discipline, regularity, and cheerful conduct of the whole of the troops; and feel fully confident, that had an opportunity offered, their courage would have been equally conspicuous.

General Hampton has concentrated the whole of the regular forces in the vicinity of Lake Champlain, at Burlington, from the best information, said to be about four thousand five hundred regular troops, and a large body of militia.

The militia force assembled for the defence of Plattsburgh, disbanded on the appearance of the armament. The naval part of the expedition is still cruising on the Lake. For any further information, I beg leave to refer you to your Aide-de-Camp, Captain Loring, the bearer of this dispatch.

I have, &c.

REFERRING to my letter of yesterday, I have now the honour to enclose the report of Captain Elliott, Deputy Assistant-Quarter-Master-General, stating his having completed the service he was detached upon. I take this opportunity of expressing the very great benefit I derived from the judicious and zealous conduct of Captain Elliott, in the execution of the arduous duties of Deputy Assistant-Quarter-Master-General to the expedition.

SIR,

Isle aux Noix, August 4, 1813.

AGREEABLE to your orders communicated to me yesterday, I landed with a detachment of the 100th regiment under my command, and proceeded to Champlain Town, where we burnt two block-houses, and destroyed the commissary's stores. This service was performed without opposition, there being none of the enemy's troops at that post, and the inhabitants remaining perfectly quiet.

I have, &c.

His Majesty's Ship Broke, Lake

SIR,

Champlain, August 3, 1813.

MAJOR-GENERAL Glasgow has apprised your Excellency of my repairing with a party of officers and seamen to man the sloops and gun-boats at the Isle aux Noix, in consequence of your letter of the 4th ultimo, addressed to the Senior Officer of His Majesty's ships at Quebec, stating it to be of great importance to the public service that an attempt should be made to alarm the enemy on the Montreal frontier, &c. and agreeable to your wish that I should communicate any thing interesting that might occur, I have the honour to acquaint you, that the object for which the corps under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel Murray had been detached, having been fully accomplished by the destruction of the enemy's block-house, arsenal, barracks, and public store-houses at Plattsburgh, and the troops having embarked on the 1st instant to return, there being neither public buildings nor store-houses remaining on the west side of the Lake beyond Plattsburgh, I stood over to Burlington, with the Shannon and one gun-boat, to observe the state of the enemy's force there, and to afford him an opportunity of deciding the naval superiority on the Lake. We were close in on the forenoon of the 2d, and found two sloops of about one hundred tons burthen, one armed with eleven guns, the other thirteen, ready for sea, a third sloop (somewhat larger), fitted out with guns on board, and two-gun schooners laying under the protection of ten guns mounted on a bank of one hundred feet high, without a breastwork, two scows mounting one gun each, as floating batteries, and several field-pieces on the shore. Having captured and destroyed four vessels, without any attempt on the part of the enemy's armed vessels to prevent it, and seeing no prospect of inducing him to quit his position, where it was impossible for us to attack him, I am now returning to execute my original orders.

I have the honour to be, &c.

Foreign-Office, October 15, 1813.

DISPATCHES, of which the following are copies, have been received by Viscount Castlereagh, His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, from Lieutenant-General the Honourable Sir Charles Stewart, K. B. His Majesty's Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to the King of Prussia.

MY LORD, Prague, September 17, 1813.

ALTHOUGH nothing very material has occurred in this quarter since my last dispatches, I take advantage of an opportunity that offers to state to your Lordship a few particulars that may be interesting.

On the 13th, General Count Bubna, who now commands the Austrian corps lately under General Neipperg, which has been much reinforced, entered Neustadt and Neukirchen, and came into close communication with General Blücher, who had his head-quarters at Hermshutt, with his advanced posts beyond Bautzen, the enemy having retired to Bish-öffwerder.

On the 14th, in the morning, the advanced posts of the grand army advanced again to the frontiers by the road to Petersvalle. The rear guard of the enemy, consisting of two battalions of infantry, a regiment of cavalry, and some guns, were forced from Nollendorf by Count Pahlen, commanding Count Wittgenstein's advance. The artillery of the Allies, and more force, were in readiness to follow as soon as the roads could be made practicable. The Prussians, under General Kleist and Prince Augustus, moved to Ebersdorf and Tolsdorf.

Buonaparte assisted personally at the grand reconnaissance that was made on the 10th: he had his head-quarters at Leibstadt on the 11th, and moved forward on the left of the Allies to Barenstein, near Altenburg, on the 12th. The plan of the enemy seems to have been to have attacked the Allies, if he could do so with an evident advantage, if not, to impede their advance, and by menaces gain time either to extricate himself from the dangerous predicament in which he stands, or to manoeuvre the Allies out of their position.

On the 15th, in the morning, the enemy continued to retire, and Prince Schwartzberg ordered a general reconnaissance on all sides to be made; Count Wittgenstein's and Count Pahlen's corps fell in with the enemy near Peterswaldt. Four squadrons of Russian cavalry very gallantly charged a French column, and cut down several hundred men. To give your Lordship some idea of these attacks, from a French return which has been found of the loss of the 7th regiment of infantry, when the Russian cavalry in Count Osterman's action charged, they had eight hundred and twenty wounded, and seven hundred and thirty killed; the residue of fugitives remaining were six hundred.

The enemy's corps in advance, opposed to Count Pahlen, consisted of twelve thousand men, under General Bonnet; they made a good stand near Gottliebe. Six Russian light guns did great execution, and forced this column to leave their ground. The main position of the enemy was not attacked.

An Austrian corps of seventeen thousand men, under Count Colloredo, equally reconnoitred the enemy on the side of Barenstein and Breitenau.

The head-quarters of the enemy, according to report, were now removed to Dippoldswalde.

General Thielemann's partizan corps, which I have already mentioned to your Lordship, has had considerable successes. He took possession of the town of Weissenfels, which was occupied by infantry and artillery, and made a General forty officers, and near one thousand three hundred men prisoners.

The Austrian Colonel Mensdorf, another partizan, took a French courier, between Leipzig and Dresden, charged with dispatches and letters from the French army to Paris, at least five thousand in number. These letters give the most doleful details of the French army, and of their defeats. The whole are to be printed, and are in the most desponding stile.

Of the whole corps engaged under Marshal Ney, only sixteen thousand men have escaped, ten thousand have arrived at Dresden, under Oudinot, the rest at Wittenberg and Torgau.

It is also stated, that the new guards, and particularly the artillery, suffered dreadfully in the battle by Dresden; Generals Vachot and Scibier were killed; and Generals Dumoutier, Dental, Gros, Boieldieu, Maison, Veen, and Aubert, severely wounded.

Reinforcements amounting to fifteen thousand men have reached Erfurt; but they are of a bad quality of troops.

On the 15th, in the evening, the enemy brought up more troops against Count Pahlen, and as it was not the intention of the allies to engage in a general affair in the mountains and defiles of Saxony, the advanced corps moved back to Nollendorf. The French had two corps d'armée supporting their advanced corps of twelve thousand men.

General Blücher's last accounts were from Bautzen, and his advanced posts at Weiskelürch, within a German mile of Dresden, and he is in close communication with the Prince Royal's army.

General Kleinau's corps is at Marienberg. A considerable corps of the enemy are at Freyberg, and a corps of their cavalry between that and Nossen.

I have the honour to be, &c.

(Signed) C. STEWART, Lieut.-Gen.

MY LORD, Prague, September 19, 1813.

It appears that the enemy on the 16th occupied the mountain and heights, in front of Nollendorf, in considerable force. They made, in the evening, an attempt to turn the right of the Allies before Culm, while they also assailed the centre and left.

Buonaparte seems to have assisted in person at this affair.

Fifteen thousand men were detached to turn the right, eight thousand advanced in front and on the left: about thirty thousand men and eight thousand cavalry in reserve, formed the attack on the part of the enemy.

On the 17th the corps moving on our right, being concealed by an intense fog, and, advancing through thick woods, had succeeded in gaining our flank before its movement was perceived. While the enemy forced the Russians and Prussians from the village of Nollendorf by very superior force, but were kept in check on the left, General Jerome Colloredo, with a corps of Austrians, fell on the enemy's advanced column, which had gained our right, and with an intrepidity, steadiness, and order that has gained universal admiration, completely defeated it, took between two and three thousand prisoners, among whom is the General of Division Kreitzer, and many officers, and ten guns: our loss may have been about one thousand killed and wounded.

At the time the enemy made their attack on the centre, the Prussians were about to be relieved by the Russians, which occasioned some momentary disorder. A very fine young man, a son of General Blücher, who was distinguishing himself very gallantly in re-establishing order, was killed.

The enemy, repulsed at all points, retired into their position again on the mountains, occupying however Nollendorf. The Allies took up their old ground, and extend across the plain in a semicircular position.

The continued affairs and skirmishes during the last fortnight have cost many men on both sides; but there can be no doubt of the enemy having suffered in at least a double proportion.

It is stated as a positive fact, that Buonaparte had his horse shot under him while reconnoitring on the hill.

I enclose a detailed report received from Colonel Cooke, of the affair of the 16th and 17th.

I have the honour to be, &c.

SIR,

Töplitz, September 17, 1813.

UPON the evening of the 16th instant, the 2d, 4th, and 14th corps of the French army, headed by Buonaparte with his guards, advanced upon the Allies from their position adjacent to Peterswalde, and drove them, by great superiority of force, through Nollendorf to the ground they had occupied the preceding day at the foot of the mountain.

The Prussians made a brilliant charge of cavalry, and their commander was wounded and taken prisoner.

Upon this day some skirmishing, apparently very harmless, was renewed. General Zietlich, with three battalions of Prussian light troops, retained his ground with spirit, until suddenly overpowered by numbers, and standing in need of ammunition, he was forced to yield ground.

At the entrance of the gorge the enemy formed their columns of attack, and deployed both to the right and left of the road, keeping up a sharp fire of tirailleurs, until their artillery had been brought down through the abattis constructed upon the hill.

The Allies had occupied the high ground upon their right, adjacent to Neudorf, with the division of Count Colloredo; in the centre and upon the left there were two divisions of Russian infantry, under the Count Wittgenstein, and a reserve of cavalry, exclusive of the Prussians, in the rear of the Austrians, under Count Pahlen.

The enemy advanced upon Culm, on either side of the road, without our being able to arrest his progress.

General Zietlich's corps was not sufficiently powerful for this purpose, and as it was uncertain whether the enemy intended a serious attack, the troops were formed in the rear of Culm, a Russian battery having been established upon the Weinberg. These guns were supported by four additional brigades upon the right and left of the village.

The enemy, under cover of their artillery, attempted to turn this difficult passage, which you are acquainted with, by gaining the commanding mountain upon our left; in this they failed. They then attempted the right and centre, but were kept in check in the centre, while Count Colloredo upon the right moved forward to take them in flank; this movement had the desired effect, and the enemy, fearing for his communications, withdrew to the foot of the mountain, and after dark to their original position.

The movement of Count Colloredo was much admired; and the French General Kreitzer and some prisoners fell into our hands.

The enemy are still at Nollendorf.

I have the honour to be, &c.

AUSTRIAN MILITARY REPORTS.

Head-Quarters, Töplitz, September 15, 1813.

THE Commander in Chief the Prince Schwarzenburgh, deemed it necessary to make a strong reconnoissance against the enemy, and accordingly detached the corps of the Generals Count Wittgenstein, and Count Colloredo, which were stationed on the Nollendorff road towards Breitenau; and that of Prince Augustus of Prussia, towards Ebersdorf, upon the enemy's right flank, whilst the Duke of Württemberg and General Count Pahlen were to attack his front and left wing. The enemy had already withdrawn his artillery, and defended himself merely with his infantry. The brave General Count Pahlen, rapidly attacked it, (without waiting for the other troops,) with the hussar regiment of Isum and Lubinski, by which movement a whole battalion of the enemy was cut down, and another taken prisoner.

General Thieleman directed his march from Altenburg against Weissenfels, and forced that place, which was defended with infantry and artillery. One general of brigade, one colonel, thirty seven officers, and one thousand two hundred and fifty-four prisoners fell into his hands.

Colonel Mensdorf made several hundred prisoners in Wurzen, between Leipzig and Dresden. Amongst these is a French courier, who was conveying the post bag of the French army to Paris; several thousand letters, and other important dispatches, were found upon him.

Among other particulars, we learn from these letters, that the new guards, and particularly their artillery, had suffered extremely in the battles before Dresden. The Generals Vachot and Siebier have been killed. The Generals Dumontier, Dental, Gros, Boieldieu, Maison, Veen, and Aubert, are severely wounded.

All these letters agree in describing the deplorable situation and despair of the French army.

The roads from Dresden and Torgau to Erfurt are crowded with French fugitives and stragglers.

Teplitz, September 17, 1813, Ten o'Clock at Night.

TO-DAY; at one o'clock in the afternoon, a corps of the enemy's troops advanced upon Nollendorff. The advanced posts retired. The abbatis on the high road was abandoned. The Prussian van guard under General Ziethen, and the Russian van guard under General Wittgenstein, took up a position at Culm. The engagement began near that place. The thick fog, which covered the whole country, did not allow us to form an exact opinion of the enemy's force.

At six o'clock the division of Colloredo, posted in ambush, and which had, with admirable precision, followed all the enemy's movements, debouched upon his flank. General Colloredo had established a battery of twelve-pounders, which entirely enfiladed the highway: as soon as he attacked the French, their rout became complete. In the meantime General Meerveldt, who acted in the rear of the enemy, had come up to the church at Nollendorff.

Had not the night put an end to the combat, the enemy's army would have been totally destroyed. Nevertheless, their loss must have been immense, as they effected their retreat under a shower of grape-shot, while our soldiers pursued them, with great rapidity, as far as the heights. It is not possible as yet to determine the number of prisoners, or of pieces of artillery, that have fallen into our hands. General Kreitzer, who commanded part of the young guards, is taken.

Our loss appears to have been proportionably small.

The Emperor Napoleon was upon the heights, and directed this attack, the result of which may be compared to that of the first battle of Nollendorff, except that the enemy's force was this time less considerable.

The village of Arbesan became a prey to the flames in the midst of the combat.

His Majesty's Ship Valiant, Halifax-Harbour, June 28, 1813.

SIR,

I BEG leave to acquaint you, that La Hogue sailed on the 25th, and the next day chased the Young Teazer, American privateer, into Lunenburg Bay, Nova Scotia, where La Hogue anchored, and sent her boats in chase, but before they reached the privateer, she blew up, from what cause is not known; it is supposed about thirty men perished in her, and eight got on shore at Lunenburg (two of them badly wounded by the explosion); they surrendered to the militia, and can give no account of the cause of the accident.

I have, &c.

ROB. DUDLEY OLIVER, Captain.

I BEG to acquaint you, that to-day the Maidstone, in company with Poictiers and Nimrod, captured, after a chase of about four hours, the York Town, American ship privateer, of twenty guns and one hundred and forty men; she was returning from a cruise; she is in all respects well fitted, and suitable for His Majesty's service.

Copy of a Letter from Lieutenant Puckinshorne, of His Majesty's Ship St. Domingo, addressed to Captain Baker, of the Conflict Sloop, and transmitted by Admiral Sir John Warren to John Wilson Croker, Esq.

SIR,

His Majesty's Sloop Conflict, August 10, 1813.

IN compliance with your orders, I proceeded with the division of boats under my direction up the St. Michael's river. We advanced along shore close to the town of St. Michael's, and were discovered by the enemy's patrol, who fired on us; a few minutes after a battery, mounting six twelve and six-pounders, gave us a round of grape and cannister, when we immediately landed, got possession of the battery, and drove the enemy into the town. After spiking the guns, splitting the carriages, and destroying all the ammunition and stores, I re-embarked, with the loss of only two wounded. By this time the enemy had collected in considerable numbers, and commenced firing from two field-pieces in the town. The destruction of the battery being complete, and not a vessel to be seen, I deemed the object of the enterprise fulfilled, and returned on board with the boats. The conduct both of officers and men was exemplary and highly praiseworthy for their steadiness, in forming quickly, in landing, and driving the enemy into the town.

I have the honour to be, &c.

J. PUCKINGHORNE.

To Captain Baker, His Majesty's
Sloop Conflict.

As several Artificers and Manufacturers, Subjects of Great Britain, have, from Time to Time, gone into Foreign Countries to exercise their several Callings, contrary to the Laws of these Kingdoms, the following Abstracts of Acts of Parliament of Their late Majesties King George the First and Second, and of His present Majesty, for preventing such Practices, are published, for the Information of all Persons who may be ignorant of the Penalties they may incur by Disobedience to them: And it will be observed, that such Penalties likewise extend to those who are any ways concerned or instrumental in the Sending or Enticing Artificers or Manufacturers out of these Kingdoms, or in the Exportation of the Tools and Instruments used by them, as well as to the Artificers or Manufacturers themselves.

Statute 5 George I. Chap. 27.

IF any person shall contract with, entice, or solicit, any artificer in wool, iron, steel, brass, or other metal, clock-maker, watch-maker, or any other artificer of Great Britain, to go into foreign countries out of the King's dominions, and shall be convicted thereof, upon indictment or information in any of the Courts at Westminster, or at the Assizes or Quarter Sessions; he shall be fined any sum not exceeding ONE HUNDRED POUNDS for the first offence, and shall be imprisoned three months, and till the fine be paid. And if any person having been once convicted shall offend again, he shall be fined at the discretion of the Court, and imprisoned twelve months, and till the fine be paid.

If any of the King's subjects, being such artificers, shall go into any country out of His Majesty's dominions, to exercise or teach the said trades to foreigners; and if any of the King's subjects in any such foreign country, exercising any of the said trades, shall not return into this realm within six months after warning given by the Ambassador, Minister, or Consul of Great Britain, in the country where such artificers shall be, or by any person authorised by such Ambassador, &c. or by one of the Secretaries of State, and from henceforth inhabit within this realm; such persons shall be incapable of taking any legacy, or of being an executor or administrator, or of taking any lands, &c. within this kingdom, by descent, devise, or purchase, and shall forfeit all lands, goods, &c. within this kingdom, to His Majesty's use, and shall be deemed alien, and out of His Majesty's protection.

Upon complaint made, upon oath, before any Justice of Peace, that any person is endeavouring to seduce any such artificer, or that any such artificer hath contracted or is preparing to go out of His Majesty's dominions, for the purposes aforesaid, such Justice may send his warrant to bring the person complained of before him, or before some other Justice; and if it shall appear by the oath of one witness, or by confession, that he was guilty of any of the said offences, such Justice may bind him to appear at the next Assizes or Quarter Sessions: And if such person shall refuse to give security, the Justice may commit him to gaol till the next Assizes or Quarter Sessions, and until he shall be delivered by due course of law. And if any such artificer shall be convicted, upon indictment, of any such promise, contract, or preparation to go beyond the seas, for the purpose aforesaid, he shall give such security to the King not to depart out of His Majesty's dominions, as such Court shall think reasonable, and shall be imprisoned till security given.

If any of the above offences shall be committed in Scotland, the same shall be prosecuted in the Court of Justiciary or the Circuits there.

Statute 23 George II. Chap. 13.

It shall be lawful for any Officer of the Customs in Great Britain, or for any Officer of the Revenue in Ireland, to seize and secure, in some of His Majesty's warehouses, all such tools or utensils prohibited to be exported, as such officer shall find on board any vessel not bound directly to some port in Great Britain or Ireland, or to some other of the dominions of the Crown of Great Britain; and all tools so seized shall, after condemnation, be publicly sold to the best bidder; and one moiety of the produce shall be to the use of His Majesty, and the other moiety to the officer who shall seize and secure the same.

One moiety of the forfeitures shall be applied to the use of His Majesty, and the other moiety to the use of the person who shall sue for the same.

BY these Statutes the like penalties and forfeitures as above-mentioned are extended to persons packing or putting on board any vessel, not bound directly for some port in Great Britain or Ireland, any machine, engine, tool, press, paper, utensil, or implement whatsoever, used in or proper for the working or finishing of the cotton, steel, or iron manufactures of this kingdom, or any part or parts of such machines or implements, or any models or plans thereof; and all Captains of ships and other persons receiving or being in possession of any such articles, with an intent to export the same to foreign parts, and all Custom-house Officers suffering an entry to be made thereof, are respectively liable to the like penalties as are above-mentioned, in the case of tools and utensils used in the woollen and silk manufactures.
