Genova, Decemb. 24.

THe 21th instant in the Morning, Sailed from hence the Antelope Frigate, Captain Story Commander, bound for Majorca, Alicanti, Malaga, and Cadiz. and from thence Home, with the Constantinople Merchant, a Pink, and a Genouesse, under her Convoy. This States Convoy, will soon after Christmas, be going for Spain.

Dantzick, Dec. 18. The Letters from Poland tell us, That the Overtures for a Defensive Alliance between that Crown and the Czar of Muscovy, had been again renewed, but that it was not believed they would have any effect; the Poles seeming to have great mistrusts of the Moscovites, since the Peace they lately concluded with the Turks, at a time that the Czar's Ambassadors were treating a League between the two Crowns at Warsaw, and their apprehensions of the Turks not being so great as they were, for the Ottomans have not of late given them any occasion to suspect their designing a new War; but on the contrary their advices from Constantinople say, That the Grand Vizier finds himself sufficiently employed in the management of Affairs at Home, and in maintaining himself against the many Enemies he has, and therefore is not at all inclined to engage in new Wars.

Vienna, Dec. 21. Yesterday we had an Account, that the Duke of Lorraine was arrived at a small place not far from hence, and that his Highness would be here as to Morrow, or the day following. From Odenburg they write, that the Imperial Ministers are using their utmost endeavours so to regulate the Points that remain as yet undetermined, as that the States may return home fully satisfied. The Imperial Troops in Hungary, as well as the Rebels, are now in their Winter-Quarters; and we are assured that Count Teckelej shews a great disposition to an Accommodation, and that he has rejected several Overtures that have been lately made to him by the Turks, in order to the keeping him in Arms against the Emperor. All the Places which the Rebels and Transylvanians made themselves Masters of this Summer, are now again in the hands of the Imperialists, after having suffered very much. We have an account of above 400 Villages that have been burnt, or otherways destroyed, during this War in Hungary.

Hamburg, Dec. 30. Yesterday Sir Peter Wyche, the King of England's Resident here, took his leave of the Senate, in order to his return home; and we are expecting Mr. Skelton, His Majesties Envoy Extraordinary to the Dukes of Lunenburg, and the Hanse Towns. Our Letters from Stockholme inform us, that the King of Sweden was so well recovered, that he could walk in his Chamber; and that His Majesty was going to make four new Senators. From Rathbonne they write, that the Dyet having settled the five Points that have been so long before them, concerning the Army of the Empire, it was not doubted but the same would now in a very short time be brought on foot; several of the Circle's having expressed a great readines to furnish their Troops, and to contribute what else depends on them, for the accomplishment of a thing, in which the Empire is so much concerned.

Marseilles, Dec. 30. The French Intendant at Toulon having dispatched a Bark to Argiers, to acquaint that Government, that the Turks that are Slaves in the French Gallies should be delivered to them, if they would continue the Peace, is come back, and brings an Account that those People are resolved to go on with the War, having already had such advantage by it; for they have taken above 30 Sail of Ships and Barks, and among the rest a small Frigate of the Kings, carrying 14 Guns, Commanded by a Knight of Malta, who was sold in the Market for 14000 pieces of Eight; and it's feared a very rich Ship of this place, bound home from Constantinople, having on Board the French Ambassadors Brother, and several other considerable Passengers, is likewise fallen into their hands; a Bark that came from Constantinople with her, arriving here Nineteen or Twenty days ago. The Algerines have now 16 Ships, besides three new ones upon the Stocks, which may be Launched in a Months time; they have likewise two Gallies, 4 Barks, and 6 Brigantines; six of their Ships were gone to the Westward, and Canary was preparing to follow in 3 or 4 days. It is confidently reported here, that Monfieur du Quefne has at last made a Peace with the Tripolins; and that Matters are amicably adjusted at Constantinople, between the Grand Vizier and the French Ambassador, and that he would suddenly have his publick Audience, and that in the manner he desired. Here are fitting out 12 Gallies, 8 being designed for Genova, and the other three for the Guard of these Coasts: And at Toulon, they are fitting 8 Men of War against the Algerines.

Paris, Jan. 3. The Letters from Marseilles confirm what we had heard before of the Algerines having taken a small Frigate of 14 Guns, and carried her to Argiers; and that several considerable Merchant Ships have been likewise taken, and among the rest one belonging to Sr. Malq's. It is said that Monfieur d'Oppede, the King's Ambassador in Portugal, is recalled. The Sieur Breccourt, the French Comedian, who lately fled from the Hague, is now here.

There

There are Letters from the French Ambassador at Constantinople, of the 29th of the last Month, giving an Account of an Audience he had had of the Grand Vizier, which, according to what is published here, is as follows,

That on the 13th of October, being the Eve of the Feast of Bairam, the Grand Vizier sent for the Sieur de Guilleragues, the French Ambassador, to come to an Audience; that accordingly the Ambassador repaired to the Grand Viziers Palace, and was received by the Chaux Bacha, and conducted into the room of Audience; That the Grand Vizier came thither soon after, and sat down on a Stool placed on the Sofa; That at the same time another Stool was given the Ambassador below the Sofa, which he refused, Declaring, that he had Order from the Emperor of France his Master, not to Sit but upon the Sofa; That he was resolved punctually to obey them; and that therefore he would not Sit at all, but would speak standing, which could not be drawn to any Consequence: Then he presented to the Grand Vizier a Letter from the King, which the Grand Vizier having received and delivered to one of his Officers, he told the Ambassador that the French had done a great deal of damage at Scio, that they had killed 250 persons, beaten down several Houses and Mosques, and part of the Citadel; and that to repair the same, he must give 750 Purles, 500 Crowns in each Purse; To which the Ambassador Answered, That the Tripolins were the occasion of what had happened at Scio, that the Sieur du Quefne had only executed the Orders of the Emperor his Master, and had not fired upon the Citadel, till that had fired upon his Ships; That the Sieur du Quefne would not part from Scio, till he had determined this Affair with the Tripolins, and that then he would come to the Dardanelles and Demand him, the Ambassador, to carry him home, if they continued to refuse him the Sofa. The Grand Vizier pressed the Ambassador to make satisfaction for the damages sustained at Scio; and upon his positive refusal to give any Moneys, told him he would send him to the Seven Towers. The Ambassador Answered, That if they lay any restraint upon him, it would be taken for a breach of the Peace, and that the Emperor his Master was able to revenge it, and to deliver him. After which, the Ambassador was carried into the Apartment of the Chaux Bacha, where he staid two days, during which, the Grand Vizier sent him several Refreshments, and great endeavours were used to induce the Ambassador to give the Moneys Demanded; but he persisted to Declare, that he would not give any; However, he offered, in case he might have the Sofa, to make in his own Name, a Present to the Grand Signior of the Curiosities of France. The third day, being the 16th of October, the Ambassador desired to return to his own House, which the Grand Vizier consented to.

Plymouth, Dec. 29. Yesterday arrived here His Majesties Ships the Forefight and the Falcon from the Streights; the Merchants Ships that came under their Convoy, being above 30 in Number, are most of them past up the Channel.

Falmouth, Dec. 29. On Sunday last put to Sea the Charles of London, James Kendall Master, bound home from Antego, from whom we have an Account, that they have lately had a Hurricane in those parts, and that several Merchants Ships have been lost.

Deal, Jan 2 Yesterday came hither one of His Majesties Coaches, with several others to fetch the Ambassador from the King of Fex; who accordingly parted from hence this Morning, with his Attendants for London. The Sweepstakes, who the last week sailed from Spirithead, where she had lain several weeks, being bound for Jamaica, has by the late ill weather been forced into the Downs, where she now is with above 250 Sail of Merchants Ships, outward bound. The Wind blows now very fresh at South-west.

It having been reported to the prejudice of the poor distressed French Protestants that have come into this Kingdom for Shelter and Protection, that Mr. Smithies of Cripplegate going to visit some of them, found them at Mals; the said Mr. Smithies has Declared under his Hand, that the said Report is altogether false and groundless.
