

We pray the God of all Mercies to pour down His choicest blessings on your Royal Highness's person, family, and Government.

We humbly beg leave to solicit your Royal Highness's most gracious protection for ourselves, and for our churches, the most ancient foreign Protestant in the United Kingdom.

Done this twenty-fourth day of April, One thousand eight hundred and fourteen.

To His Royal Highness the PRINCE REGENT of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

May it please your Royal Highness,

WE, the undersigned Dutch Officers, who emigrated in the year 1795, and were favoured with a yearly allowance by His Britannic Majesty, humbly beg leave to lay at the feet of your Royal Highness our respectful homage, and the expressions of our heartfelt gratitude for this gracious and generous support.

When the overwhelming power of the French revolution had overthrown the legal government of the United Provinces, we followed the dictates of honour and duty; and, at the call of the ever to be lamented Prince Frederick of Orange, appeared in a few weeks, with thousands of our countrymen, on the banks of the Weser, to join the protecting banners of Great Britain. The policy of those times rendered our proffered services unavailing. Our native land was lost to us. Hundreds of officers looked up for assistance to the mighty King of the British people, and He afforded them protection and support. They have ever since enjoyed His royal munificence; and now that it has pleased the Almighty to bring the United Netherlands once more under the paternal care of an illustrious Prince of the House of Orange, your Royal Highness, impressed with the same feelings which moved the mind of your Royal Father, closes this long course of generous beneficence by granting to all the officers, still on the Dutch pension-list, a full year's allowance in advance.

We most gratefully acknowledge this distinguished mark of your Royal Highness's bounty, and fervently pray that it may please the Almighty to grant your Royal Highness a long and glorious life, and to the British people the blessings of a lasting and prosperous peace.
