

At Charing-Cross, Norroy King of Arms read the Proclamation; and the procession moved on to Temple-Bar, the gates of which were shut; and Rouge Dragon Pursuivant of Arms came out of the rank between two Trumpeters, preceded by two Life Guards to clear the way, rode up to the gate, and after the trumpets had sounded thrice, he knocked with a cane. Being asked by the City Marshal from within, "Who comes there?" he replied, "The Officers of Arms, who demand entrance into the City to publish the Royal Proclamation of Peace." The gates being opened, he was admitted alone, and the gates were immediately shut again. The City Marshal, preceded by his Officers, conducted him to the Lord Mayor, to whom he shewed the royal warrant, which his Lordship having read, returned, and gave directions to the City Marshal to open the gates, who, attending the Pursuivant on his return to them, said, on leaving him, "Sir, the gates are opened." The Trumpets and Life Guards being in waiting, conducted him to his place in the procession, which then moved into the City (the Officers of Westminster filing off and retiring as they came to Temple-Bar); and, at Chancery-Lane end, Windsor Herald read the Proclamation a third time. Then the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Sheriffs joined the procession immediately after the Officers of Arms, and the same moved on to the end of Wood-Street, where the Cross formerly stood in Cheapside. The Proclamation having been there read by Chester Herald, the procession was continued to the Royal Exchange, where the Proclamation was lastly read by Lancaster Herald.

The acclamations of joy were general from many thousands of spectators, who filled all the streets through which the procession passed.
