AT the Court at Carlton-House, the 30th of May 1814,

PRESENT,

His Royal Highness the PRINCE REGENT in Council.

IT is this day ordered by His Royal Highness the Prince Regent in Council, in the name and on the behalf of His Majesty, that the prohibition, under the Order in Council of the twenty-first of January last, against the exportation of sheet copper, be, and the said prohibition is, hereby taken off. And the Right Honourable the Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury, the Commissioners for executing the Office of Lord High Admiral of Great Britain, and the Lord Warden of the Cinque Ports, are to give the necessary directions herein as to them may respectively appertain. Jas. Buller.

THE following Addresses have been presented to His Royal Highness the Prince Regent; which Addresses His Royal Highness was pleased to receive very graciously:

To His Royal Highness the PRINCE REGENT.

WE, His Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the undersigned Inhabitants of the City of Wells and its neighbourhood, humbly beg leave to offer to your Royal Highness our most unfeigned thanks for the gracious answers which your Royal Highness has been pleased to return to the addresses of the two Houses of Parliament, upon the subject of the immediate and total abolition of the slave trade.

We had seen with the deepest regret and considerable disappointment, that in the recent treaty with France no provision was made for the immediate abolition of a traffic, avowedly repugnant to every moral and religious principle, but that, on the contrary, the probable consequence of that treaty appeared to be the revival of the traffic by France on a large scale, and to an indefinite extent.

This probable revival of the French slave trade, and the restoration to France of her African forts and factories, under such circumstances, excited our peculiar regret, by disappointing the hopes we had been led to indulge of the moral and religious improvement of those numerous tribes, amongst whom these possessions are situated, and in countries where the slave trade having been nearly suppressed, the consequent introduction of civilization and a legitimate commerce had begun to make some compensation for the miseries formerly inflicted.

We also could not but lament that the recognition in the treaty of the radical injustice of the African slave trade, should be followed by the implied contemplation of its revival, and though that implied contemplation was accompanied by a declared determination to abolish the trade after five years, yet we could not conceal from ourselves, that various and extensive interests might probably be created, which, at the end of the specified term, might considerably impede the fulfillment of that declared determination.

But, whilst we deplored the existence of the obstacles which might prevent or delay the immediate and total abolition of this nefarious traffic, we could not but feel convinced, and wish now most explicitly to declare our conviction, that your Royal Highness's government exerted its most cordial endeavours to remove them, and that no means of attaining this most desirable object were omitted, which it then conceived to exist, and to be compatible with that respect and delicacy which independent Powers reciprocally owe to each other.

Animated however by the late unanimous addresses of the two Houses of Parliament to your Royal Highness, and placing full reliance on the gracious intentions of your Royal Highness, so often and so fully declared, and so lately confirmed by the answers to these addresses, we now venture humbly to express our hearty concurrence in the earnest and anxious entreaties of the House of Lords, that new proposals may be made without delay to the French government for the accomplishing of this most important object, the immediate and total abolition of the slave trade.

We also feel confident that your Royal Highness's government will use its utmost exertions on all favourable opportunities, to impress on the minds of the Sovereigns of Europe that full and entire conviction of the inhumanity of this trade, which alone will ensure the efficiency of its abolition, inasmuch as if the measure were the exclusive result of any other motives or considerations, it is to be apprehended that there would be no adequate security against the future revival of it, either openly, or clandestinely, by a connivance, which would in all probability be attended by a considerable aggravation of its horrors.

Encouraged then by the decided sentiments, which His Most Christian Majesty has expressed, branding, as he has done, the slave trade as repugnant to the principles of natural justice, we shall indulge the hope that, in conformity with these sentiments, His Most Christian Majesty may be induced, by the suggestions of your Royal Highness, to suspend the revival of this traffic within his dominions, until the Congress shall have decided upon the subject.

And we shall thence look forward to the decision of that Congress with firm confidence and joyful anticipation, as about to put the seal to the opinions, which His Most Christian Majesty has so unequivocally avowed, as about without delay to adopt the example, and thus fulfill the grand object and satisfy the warmest wishes of your Royal Highness, the Legislature, and the people of these united kingdoms.

[Transmitted by the Right Honourable J. H. Addington, and presented by Viscount Sidmouth.]

To His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, REGENT of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

The humble, dutiful, and congratulatory Address of the Gentlemen, Clergy, and Freeholders of the County of Merioneth, at a Meeting held pursuant to public notice assembled.

May it please your Royal Highness,

WE, the Gentlemen, Clergy, and Freeholders of the County of Merioneth, beg leave to approach your Royal Highness with our most sincere expressions of cordial congratulation on the restoration of peace and amity, between His Majesty's dominions and the kingdom of France.

When we reflect upon the long series of years in which war and desolation have afflicted the nations of Europe, and in which anarchy and injustice seemed to triumph without restraint, over established order and undoubted right; when we look back upon that colossal power which appeared at one time so firmly seated on its throne of blood, and threatened with destruction every thing that dared to oppose its arbitrary decrees, we are for a moment lost in amazement at the important change which has taken place in the relations of our country. But though our expectations have indeed been exceeded by the events which have led to the present happy state of things, we clearly and thankfully discern the causes that have produced such glorious effects. To the Supreme and Almighty Disposer of all things in heaven and earth, we first raise our hearts in profound gratitude for his merciful protection. The finger of God is plainly visible in all that has been done. The hand of Providence is seen in every circumstance of the late stupendous transactions. The time and the manner of their being effected are stamped with legible marks of a wisdom which cannot err, and a power which cannot be withstood. But while we acknowledge with the deepest sense of the Divine goodness, the gracious interference of Providence in our behalf, we appreciate fully the noble efforts of those who were made the glorious instruments of restoring the blessings of peace to a distracted world. The steady wisdom of His Majesty's counsels, conducted through the most arduous period of the late tremendous struggle, by the genius of that distinguished Statesman, whose name must ever be dear to Britain, the persevering exertions of our country in the great cause, when the nations around stood appalled at the danger which threatened us; the valour, the intrepidity, and the skill of our Commanders and our forces by sea and by land, particularly the celebrated stand made by the illustrious Wellington against the whole power of an enraged enemy, deserve and receive our warmest admiration, and the cordial offering of our unqualified applause. To them, under Heaven, and to those high-minded Allies who joined with them in defence of liberty and justice, we confess ourselves indebted for the security we enjoy, and that peace, in the return of which we now rejoice; and while we do rejoice in thus sitting down again at peace, under the shade of our glorious Constitution, we put up our earnest and devout prayers to Almighty God, that He would be pleased to preserve unimpaired the blessing He has bestowed upon us, and that He would shower down upon your Royal Highness, and upon every branch of your royal house, the choicest of His mercies, and ever defend that just and equal government under which our country has so long flourished.

At the request of the Gentlemen, Clergy, and Freeholders of the County of Merioneth, William Gryffydd Oakeley, Sheriff.

COLONIAL DEPARTMENT.

Downing-Street, July 19. 1814.

A DISPATCH, of which the following is an extract, was this day received by Earl Bathurst from Lieutenant-General Sir George Prevost, dated Head-Quarters, Montreal, June 8, 1814.

IT is with regret I have to report to your Lordship, the unfortunate result of an enterprize made by the boats of the squadron on Lake Ontario, under the command of Captains Popham and Spilsbury, of the royal navy, with nearly two hundred seamen
and marines, against a flotilla of the enemy's craft laden with naval stores from Oswego, at Sandy Creek, from whence the stores were to have been conveyed by land to Sackett's Harbour. A large boat, with two long twenty-four-pounders, and a nineteen and a half inch cable for the enemy's new ship, having been taken by our squadron then blockading Sackett's Harbour, the information obtained from the prisoners of the sailing from Oswego, of fifteen other boats with stores, led to the attempt which has terminated so disastrously, and for the particulars of which, I beg leave to refer your Lordship to the copy of Captain Popham's letter to Commodore Sir James Yeo, herewith transmitted.

It is some consolation, under this severe loss, to know, that before this time it will have been supplied by the arrival at Kingston of the first division of the officers and seamen lately landed here from England: the second and third divisions have also passed this place, on their route to Lake Ontario.

By accounts from Major-General Riall, all was quiet on the Niagara frontier on the 27th ultimo; and as I have not had any accounts from Michillimackinac since Lieutenant-Colonel M'Doual proceeded for that place on the 20th of April, I have every reason to think he must have reached that post in safety, and be fully prepared to defend it against any attempt of the enemy.

SIR, Sackett's Harbour, June 1, 1814.

HAVING obtained certain information that the enemy's boats, with their guns and stores, had taken shelter in Sandy Creek, I proceeded to that place (having ordered Captain Spilsbury to accompany me), and reached the entrance of it shortly after daylight yesterday morning. I landed, accompanied by Captain Spilsbury and some of the officers, and having reconnoitred their position, determined on an immediate attack. The masts of their boats (consisting of eighteen) were plainly seen over the marsh, and, from their situation, did not appear to be very near the woods; and their not attempting to interrupt our entry into the creek, led me to hope they were only protected by militia. This circumstance, added to the very great importance of the lading of their boats, to the equipment of their squadron, was a strong motive for me to risk the attack, not aware that they brought their riflemen in their boats, and that a body of Indians had accompanied them along the beach.

The boats advanced cautiously to within about a quarter of a mile of the enemy, when Lieutenant Cox, of the royal marines, was landed, with the principal part of his men, on the left bank; and Captain Spilsbury and Lieutenant Browne, with the coborn and small arm party, accompanied by Lieutenant M'Veagh, with a few marines, were landed on the right bank. Their respective parties advanced on the flanks of the gun-boats (which had, from their fire, dispersed a body of Indians) to a turning which opened the enemy's boats to our view, when, unfortunately, the sixty-eight pounder cannonade, on which much depended, was disabled. Seeing us pulling the boat round, to bring the twenty-four pounder to bear, the enemy thought we were commencing a retreat, when they advanced with their whole force, consisting of one hundred and fifty riflemen, near two hundred Indians, and a numerous body of militia and cavalry, which soon overpowered the few men I had. Their resistance was such as I could have expected from a brave and well disciplined body; but, opposed to such numbers, unavailing: their officers set them an example honourable to themselves, and worthy of a better fate. Captain Spilsbury, for a time, checked the advance of the enemy by the fire which he kept up with the coborn and his party; and I feel much indebted to him for his conduct throughout. Lieutenants Cox and M'Veagh, who nobly supported the honour of their corps, are, I am sorry to say, dangerously wounded. Mr. Hoare, Master's Mate of the Montreal, whose conduct was conspicuous throughout, is the only officer killed. Our loss in killed and wounded (mostly dangerous) is great. I send as correct a return as I can possibly get of them, as well as of the survivors. The winding of the creek, which gave the enemy great advantage in advancing to intercept our retreat, rendered any further perseverance unavailing, and would have subjected the men to certain death.

Lieutenants Marjoribanks and Rowe, in the rear, with the small boats, did every thing in their power; and Lieutenant Loveday's exertions, in the Lais gun-boat, was such as I was much pleased with.

The exertions of the American Officers of the rifle corps, commanded by Major Appling, in saving the lives of many of the officers and men, whom their own men and the Indians were devoting to death, were conspicuous, and claim our warmest gratitude.

I have the honour to be, &c.

Captain.

OFFICE of the COMMISSIONERS appointed to carry into effect the Second and Fourth Additional Articles of the Treaty of Paris.

No. 18, Downing-Street, July 19, 1814.

THE Commissioners appointed, amongst other things, to examine and liquidate the claims of His Britannic Majesty's subjects upon the French Government, for the value of the property, moveable or immoveable, illegally confiscated by the French Authorities, as also for the total or partial loss of their debts or other property illegally detained under sequester since the year 1792, do hereby give notice to all persons who claim to be Creditors of the French Government, and are desirous of availing themselves of the benefit of the said Additional Articles of the said Treaty, that they are ready to receive all claims that may be presented at their Office on or before Saturday the 20th day of August next, between the hours of eleven and three o'clock, by creditors or their agents legally authorised; after which period the Commissioners will proceed to Paris.

That the parties may be informed, what particulars are to be stated in making their applications, the Commissioners do further give notice, that when their claims are for the total or partial loss of their credits on the French Government for sums of money vested in the public funds of France, and unlawfully sequestered since the year 1792, they must state distinctly the amount, and in what fund they were vested; and if for life annuities, the names of the persons for whose lives the annuities were granted, and, as far as they are able, whether those persons are alive, or when and where they died. When their claims are for the value of other property, moveable or immoveable, unlawfully sequestered or confiscated by the French Authorities, they must state distinctly the nature and amount of the property, and the time and place when and where it was sequestered or confiscated. When interest makes part of the claim, the rate must be stated, and whether it be according to the rate specified in any obligation, or on what ground it is claimed, and the amount of the interest must be distinguished from the principal.

Where parties reside at a distance, they must appoint an agent legally authorised to appear before the Commissioners. When the original creditor is not living, or is not the claimant, the heir or personal representative, or person in possession of deeds of assignment and other instruments, is required to produce the titles under which he claims, whether probates of wills, letters of administration, deeds of assignments, or other instruments.

The Commissioners do further give notice, that a deed, directed to be prepared in pursuance of an unanimous vote of a general meeting of creditors held at the City of London Tavern, on the 27th day of June last, pursuant to public advertisement for that purpose, is lying at the Office of the Commissioners, for the inspection of the claimants or their agents, between the hours above stated, and that the said deed is to be executed by the claimants or their agents, at or before the time when they present their claims.
