Admiralty-Office, September 27, 1814.

CAPTAIN Wainwright, of His Majesty's ship Tonnant, arrived this morning at this Office with dispatches from Vice-Admiral the Honourable Sir Alexander Cochrane, K. B. to John Wilson Croker, Esq. of which the following are copies.

Tonnant, in the Patuxent, Sept. 2, 1814.

SIR,

I HAVE the honour to acquaint you, for the information of my Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty, of the proceedings of His Majesty's combined sea and land forces since my arrival with the fleet within the capes of Virginia; and I beg leave to offer my congratulations to their Lordships upon the successful termination of an expedition, in which the whole of the enemy's flotilla under Commodore Barney has been captured or destroyed; his army, though greatly superior in number, and strongly posted with cannon, defeated at Bladensburg—the city of Washington taken, the capital, with all the public buildings, military arsenals, dock-yard, and the rest of their naval establishment, together with a vast quantity of naval and military stores, a frigate of the largest class ready to launch, and a sloop of war afloat, either blown up or reduced to ashes.

Such a series of successes in the centre of an enemy's country, surrounded by a numerous population, could not be acquired without loss, and we have to lament the fall of some valuable officers and men; but considering the difficulties the forces had to contend with, the extreme heat of the climate, and their coming into action at the end of a long march, our casualties are astonishingly few.
