Edinburgh, June 25.

THis night two considerable prizes came up to Leith-Road, laden with Sack, and six more are in view coming in, taken, as is said, by Captain Murray.

Sunderland, June 26. On Sunday last arrived here two prizes, which (with six others) were the Sunday before taken by some of our Frigates upon the Coasts of Norway, being both of them Vessels of 500 tons, laden with Deales and other Timber.

We have here certain advice from Montross in Scotland, that great store of Prizes are daily brought in thither by the Scottish Privateers; and, that of late, scarce a day hath past, in which there have not been two, three or four prizes sent in, in such that that Harbour is so full thereof, that they are forced to send off several of them to other places.

Legorne June 17. The 12 Instant arrived in this Port two Gallies, belonging to some private persons of Genova; they came from Palermo, but touched at Naples, by whom, as from several other Vessels from those parts, we are told, that the great Duke's Gallies riding about the Island Favo Ivo, used to a Co-sair Erigandine of the Turks, aboard whom they took several prisoners: They tell us, that the Gallies of Naples and Sicily, with those of the Pope, and the Knights of Malta were united, and on their way to the Levante: but by Letters from other parts we are informed, that upon a late order from his Catholic Majesty, those of Naples and Sicily were to return, and take in Sardinia in Italy, and other places of his Dominions, to transport them into Spain.

Upon the arrival of the news of the Election of the new Pope, the great Duke dispatched away two Couriers, one to Pistoia to Bali Rispigliosi, a Knight of the Order of Saint Stephen, and brother to the new elected Pope; and another to Rome to Congratulate this Election.

Genova, June 21. This morning arrived here two Couriers from Madrid, the one bound for Vienna, the other for Naples, which tell us, that Don Juan of Austria was by her Majesty's order again returned to Madrid, and that he was, to the great satisfaction of the Court and People, admitted into the Council of State, where he presides; and that they have great hopes that his prudence will have a strong influence upon that Monarchy, and produce good effects: He speaks not publickly in the Streets, but passes alwayes privately in his Chaire, to avoid all suspicion of popularity.

'Tis here reported, that six Algier men of War have fought with the Holland Convoy about Allicant, but with what success we yet know not.

This Morning the Duke and Senators of this City, in an unusual State, passed with a Train of 60 Coaches from the Palace to Strada Balbi, to the Consecration of a new Church built there by the Jesuites.

Several French Men of War are lately put to Sea from Thoulon; and others with their Gallies are fitting up to follow. 'Tis said the French have demanded passage of the Duke of Savoie for 10000 Men through his Dominions; but we hear not of any great preparations made at Milan to receive them, should they March that way.

From Savoie we are told, the Duke still requires that the City of Geneva should send their Deputies to Turin, to treat there with his Ministers, which they seem resolved not to comply with; and that the Duke is raising new Forces, and particularly three new Regiments of Horse, one to be called the Regiment of Malitia, all whose Officers are to be Knights of that order, by whom great care is taken for the choice of stout Men, well horsed and clad, whose servants are to make up another Troop, all of them in rich Liveries; the Regiment is to be commanded by Signior Ada: a second is called the Prince of Piedmonts Regiment, to be Commanded by Don Gabriel de Savoy; and the third the Regiment D'Este to be commanded by the Marquis D'Este.

Venice, June 24. From Constantinople 'tis said, that the Grand Signior is much displeas'd that the Grand Visier had made no farther progress in the sieg of Candia, of which he being sensible, is resolv'd to attempt it with all force he is able to make; for by our late advices from Candia, 'tis said, he has already from his Batteries began to play upon their Forts, 5000 Men being entrench'd before the Fort Demetrius, which they are battering with 100 Pieces of Canon, and that he expects a recruit of 8000 Men more from Moroca.

From Zante and Corfu we are advic'd, That two Squadrons of the Gonayes of Barbary, one of 7. men of War, the other of 6. are cruising upon those coasts; which gives us some apprehensions for our last Convoy of 6. Patiches, who may probably run some hazard in their passage that way.

We are not yet inform'd what the Design may be of those Turkish Forces which are drawn together in Albania; which keeps not only Ragusa and Cattaro, but all our other places thereabouts upon their Guards. The Bills of Bosnia profess one man out of each House in all the Countries about him, to serve him in the Wars; only those of Licca and Corbaccia have refused, pretending that having been lately much impoverished by a Death and scarcity amongst them, they were unable to go to War, the Famine having been so extreme, that a great number of the Inhabitants have perish'd by it.

Cologne, June 28. From Berlin we are told, that upon the late Accession of the Electors of Brandenburgh the 8th Instant, his Electoral Highness sent away several Gentlemen to all the neighbour Courts about him, to inform them of his loss; and only none was ordered to Cassell, Madam the Landgrave, with the Princess her daughter, being gone thence for Denmark: Colonel Barthils employed to Erfort to sound the Intention of the Elector of Mayence, is return'd with much satisfaction, touching his inclination to follow the Interest of the Elector of Brandenbourg.

Monheur Millet the French Envoy, who was design'd to have commanded the Forces which the King his Master resolv'd to have sent into Poland, is, by the diversion of that design, inclin'd to stay some time at Berlin, till he can have farther Orders sent him from France.

Brussels, July 8. We are certainly inform'd that the French Army have made three assaults upon the Fort adjoining to Doway, but have been each time beaten off with very great loss of men, after which they rais'd a battery of five great Guns against the Town, which were dismounted by a Counter-battery of seven guns, and that 2000 wounded men were brought into Tournay, where there are 1000 Swisses left in Garrison, for the security of that Town.

Brussels, July 9. We have had here a confident Report, that 1200 men were lately put into Doway for its defence; but we are rather induc'd to believe a later report of its surrender, after a siege of near eight days, and several assaults made upon it. Count Marsin is drawing his forces together, and 'tis believed will in few daies be at the head of a flying Army of about 20000 men, which 'tis believed may put some stop to the proceedings of the French. We are here very ill satisfied of the misbehavior of the Town of Tournay, during the sieg of that place, which is in some measure revenged on them by the French themselves, by whom they are said to be disarm'd and highly Tax'd, notwithstanding their conditions upon their surrender.

Hague, July 6. Great care is taken for the continual supply of our Fleet with all Necessaries, 20 Fireships more being fitting up: and the Count de Hoorne with 2500 foot ordered to march to Helvoet-sluis, where they are to embark, and joyn with De Ruyter: It is confidently said, that the Spaniards have put 1200 Men into the City of Douay, which 'tis believed will give the French a longer employment then they expected.

The Estates are unwilling as yet to dismiss the six great Men of War that were built at Amsterdam upon the French account; some differences being risen about the defraying the expenses of them, which they desire may be fully discharged before they can be permitted to put to Sea.

We are still in doubt of the intentions of Sweden, and continue our cares for the security of our Frontiers. Monsieur Tongel is ordered Envoyé from that Crown to the Marquis de Castal Rodrigo at Brussels, and after the dispatch of his Affairs there, to pass forwards for Spain; which, with some other reasons gives several persons occasion to conjecture, that there is a good Correspondency between the King of Sweden and the House of Austria.

The Herz de Schravemoeur is sent by the States to his Electoral Highness of Brandenburg, to condole with him for the death of the Elector. The Count de Donna is returned to Breda, to sit there in the room of the deceased Monsieur Coyer, and to use his endeavours with Monsieur Fleming for the effectual carrying on the Treaty, in quality of Mediators.

Paris, July 9. Letters from before Douay of the fifth give this account of the Siege, That the second instant his Majesty having sent before him 2000 Horse under the command of the Count de Duras to invest Douay, followed himself in person, and arrived at the Camp, before it the second instant, when so furious an Attempt was made by a party of horse, that they forced the Spaniards to retire within their Trenches: his Majesty immediately giving order for the Siege. The third instant, the French opened their Trenches, though with much loss: and the next day several Volunteers were hurt in visiting the Works that were cast up before the Town, amongst others the Prince de Courtenay received a hurt in his side by a bullet from a Falcon, and the Sieur de Noue, Captain of the Navarre Regiment, lost one of his Feet by a great Shot: That afternoon the Cannon plaid hard upon the Besiegers from the Town, especially at the relieving of the Guards, by which the Prince d' Epinoy had his Arm broken; The Sieur de Brisfac, was shot through the Thigh with a Falcon Bullet, and the Count de Cambourg hurt also in the Thigh, with several men, and 11 horses kill'd. That evening were two assaults made upon two several parts of the Town, wherein several considerable persons were hurt, particularly the Marquis de Brouter, the Sieur Voubart Commander of the Regiment of Picardy, Mongiret Commander of the Regiment of Lionnois, with the Chevalier Maupeou, the Sieurs Balzac, de la Magdelaine, and others. Since this they have made themselves masters of the Counterscarp, and filled up the Trenches, hoping in few days to oblige the Town to a Surrender.

Since the former, we have now certain news of the surrender of Douay, and that after several Assaults given to it, in which, as also by their Cannons discharged from the Town, many persons of quality were hurt, and many men slain, a Trumpet was sent to them to let them know, that if they did not immediately give up the place, no quarter should be given to any person. The Count de Gramont, with some few of his friends going with him, to assure them of the intentions of the King, and to persuade them to a surrender, which they upon Articles yielded to, giving up the Town the next morning.

Dublin, June 26. This City, and generally the whole Kingdom is in a quiet posture. His Grace the Lord Lieutenant and the Council are not wanting in contributing all they can to the peace and safety of all parts. He has ordered a Trench to be drawn about the whole City and Suburbs, and strongly fortified the Harbor. Yesterday he took a view of that part of the Army which lies in these parts, with the City-

Millis's both of horse and foot, which he finds in a very good equipage, being both ready and willing to engage themselves in his Majesties service for the defence of their Country, and has besides ordered an Account to be given him of all persons in the City from 16 to 60 years of age.

Hull, June 29. On Wednesday last was sent up the Humber, a prize, taken off Scarborough, being a Dutch Cutter of six Guns and 30 Men, called the Sun of Middleburgh; chase was also given to three others, but the weather being over-calm favoured them in getting away with their Oars.

Newcastle, June 29. The Flying Greyhound a Privateer, Captain Hogg Commander, has sent into this Port a Dutch Flyboat of 300 tuns, taken off the Scaw, and bound for Norway. This place is by the care and diligence of the Earls of Ogle and Carlisle put into so good a posture, that we fear not any thing that can be attempted on us; As are likewise the rest of the Ports upon the Sea-coasts, where any danger might otherwise be apprehended.

Plymouth, June 30. This morning was brought in hither a Flyboat of S. Maloes of 90 tuns, 6 guns, and 11 men, bound for Newfound-land, and from thence to ply about the Streights, being a Vessel commissioned by the Duke de Beaufort. Two other small Vessels were chased, but escaped. About 50 leagues to the Westward of Scilly, were discovered two great Frenchmen of war, being high carved ships, and judged to carry about 60 guns apiece.

Whitehall, July 3. By several Letters arrived from the Coasts, we have this account of the motion of the Dutch Fleet. The 1. instant, about 80 Sall of them with 9 Flagships came to an anchor near night in the Bay near Alborough within two miles of the shore, where it was expected they would have made some attempt the next morning, and accordingly the place was provided for their reception: But about the break of day, the Dutch weighing, at the first stood nearest in to the shore; but in a little time, for the space of an hour sailed Northwards, after which they all tackt and stood again to the Southwards, close by the Light-house at Oxford, and about 7. that morning past the Nesse towards Harwich. The same day about 1. of the clock, their Fleet consisting of 47 Sail with their Attenders, stood within half cannon-shot of the shore, towards Felstow-Cliffe, but out of reach of Landguard Fort, leaving 5 of their number at the Sledway; and then manning out their Boats, landed about 3000 men at the Cliffe, with a great band of Pikee. Near 2000 of them marched up, and made two Assaults upon Landguard Fort, where they were stoutly entertain'd, and after three quarters of an hours dispute in the first assault, and about a quarter of an hours only in the second, they were forced to retire in such haste, that they left their ladders all of them behind them, scarcely being able to carry off their Dead, which is judged to be about 150 at the least.

While these assaults were making upon the Fort, about 1200 that were left behind near the Cliffe to secure their retreat, were encountered by the Trained Bands, under the Command of the Earl of Suffolk, and a smart skirmish began between them, which continued till 10 in the evening; when it was renewed by the return of the beaten Companies from the Fort, who by the lowness of the Ebb were hindered at the present from returning to their Boats: at which time a party of 500 Foot were drawn out, under the Command of Major Legge, to fall upon the Enemy in the Rear; whose success we must expect at the arrival of the next Post. In this dayes Service we lost only three or four Men, and as many hurt, with Captain Darrel, who has received a wound in the shoulder.

They have not as yet made any attempt upon the Town, being resolved first to try their fortunes upon the Fort, to which ('tis believed) they have not the courage left them to return.
