WHEREAS by an Act of Parliament, made and passed in the fortieth year of the reign of His present Majesty, intituled "An Act for making wet docks, basons, cuts, and other works, for the greater accommodation and security of shipping, commerce, and revenue, within the port of London," it was enacted, that it should and might be lawful for the Directors of the London Dock Company, or any thirteen or more of them, from time to time, either absolutely to sell and dispose of, or to let out and demise on lease, or at rack rent, or in any other manner that should be thought advisable, all or any of the freehold or leasehold estates, lands, houses, and wharfs, docks, works, hereditaments, and premises thereby vested in the said Directors, and which should thereafter be conveyed to them in pursuance of that Act, in such manner, and upon such terms, and for such considerations as the said Directors should from time to time judge proper and think most advantageous to the interest of the said Company, provided the said freehold and leasehold estates, lands, houses, wharfs, docks, works, hereditaments, and premises were first offered for such sale, letting, or demising to the respective person or persons, upon the terms and conditions aforesaid, of or from whom the premises respectively were purchased by or on behalf of the said Company: And whereas by an Act, made and passed in the forty-ninth year of the reign of His present Majesty, intituled "An Act to alter and amend several Acts, passed in the fortieth, forty-fourth, forty-fifth, forty-sixth, and forty-seventh years of His present Majesty, for making wet docks, basons, cuts, and other works, for the greater accommodation of shipping, commerce, and revenue, within the port of London, and for the purposes therein mentioned relating thereto, and to enlarge the powers and authorities by the said Acts granted to the London Dock Company," after reciting (inter alia) to the effect above recited, and also reciting, that by reason of the great alteration occasioned by the taking of streets and taking down houses and other buildings within the limits of the said first recited Act, and the length of time which had elapsed since the passing of the said first recited Act, and of deaths, removals, and other circumstances, great difficulties had arisen in giving such notice as was by the said first recited Act required to be given to the persons of or from whom the premises respectively were purchased under the authority of the said recited Acts, and that many of such persons could not be found, it was therefore enacted, that it should be lawful for the said Directors, or any thirteen or more of them, in respect of all or any such part or parts of the said freehold and leasehold estates, lands, houses, wharfs, docks, works, hereditaments, and premises, as the said Company were or should be desirous either absolutely to sell and dispose of, or to let out or demise on leases, or at rack rent, or otherwise as in the said first recited Act mentioned, to proceed to sell, dispose of, or to let out or demise the same on leases or at rack rent, in such manner and upon such terms as in the said first recited Act mentioned, provided that the same should be first offered for such sale, letting, or demising to the respective person or persons upon the terms aforesaid, of or from whom the premises respectively were purchased by or on behalf of the said Company, either under the hand of the Treasurer of the said Company, for the time being, or by advertisement in the London Gazette, and two daily newspapers usually circulated in London, one calendar month, at least, before any such sale, letting, or demising.

And whereas the said Directors, or thirteen or more of them, have judged it proper absolutely to sell and dispose of the several houses, lands, hereditaments, and premises, more particularly mentioned and described in the schedule hereunder written, being parts of the estates, houses, lands, hereditaments, and premises which are vested in and have been purchased by and conveyed to the said London Dock Company, pursuant to the said first recited Act, or the Act, or Acts subsequently passed for extending and enlarging the time for the making of such purchases, upon certain terms, and for certain considerations, which the said Directors judge proper and most advantageous for the said Company.

Notice is therefore hereby given, that the said premises, mentioned and comprised in the said schedule hereunder written, are hereby first offered for such sale to the respective person or persons upon the terms aforesaid for from whom the said premises respectively were purchased by or on the behalf of the said Company.

By order of the Directors, Geo. Robinson, Secy London Dock House, May 26, 1845.
