THE following Addresses have been presented to His Royal Highness the Prince Regent; which Addresses His Royal Highness was pleased to receive very graciously:

To His Royal Highness the PRINCE REGENT.

WE, His Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Bishop, Dean and Chapter, Chancellor, Archdeacons, and Clergy of the Diocese of Salisbury, beg leave, in all humility, to present to your Royal Highness our sincere congratulations on the fortunate events which have recently taken place in the foreign and domestic relations of this country.

Whilst we lament, in common with all our fellow-subjects, the indisposition which has deprived us of His Majesty's parental government, we have had the consolation of seeing, not only the Constitution effectually sustained by the wisdom and vigour of your Royal Highness's Councils, but the renown of His Majesty's arms widely extended by a succession of victories, eclipsing, in splendour of military achievement, the proudest periods of our history.

We have also seen, with mingled sentiments of patriotic exultation, and of devout gratitude to the Supreme Disposer of all events, the magnanimous perseverance of our country in the long protracted contest for the liberties of the world, ultimately crowned with complete success; and a glorious war terminated by an honourable peace, which, we ardently pray, may long ensure the repose, and consolidate the strength and prosperity of the British empire.

Impressed with a due sense of the invaluable benefits which this kingdom has derived from the mild and equitable rule of the House of Brunswick, we humbly offer to your Royal Highness our hearty congratulations on the marriage of Her Royal Highness Princess, Charlotte Augusta to His Serene Highness Leopold Prince of Saxe Cobourg; and we shall not cease to pray, that your Royal Highness's life may be long and prosperous, and that there may never be wanting a descendant of your illustrious line to fill the throne of these realms, and to reign in the hearts of an united, free, and enlightened people.

[Transmitted by the Bishop of Salisbury, and presented by Viscount Sidmouth.]

To His Royal Highness George Prince of Wales, REGENT of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

The humble Address of the Provost, Fellows, and Scholars of the College of the Holy and Undivided Trinity of Queen Elizabeth, near Dublin.

May it please your Royal Highness,

WE, the Provost, Fellows, and Scholars of the College of the Holy and Undivided Trinity of Queen Elizabeth, near Dublin, humbly hope we may be permitted to approach your Royal Highness with our warmest and most sincere congratulations on the nuptials of Her Royal Highness the Princess Charlotte of Wales.

Protected for more than a century in the enjoyment of our liberties, our laws, and our religion, under the illustrious House of Brunswick, we feel that our best interests depend on its prosperity, and we hail with heartfelt satisfaction, the event which promises to it such increase of happiness.

The high character of the Prince whose fortunate destiny it is to become an Englishman on this joyful occasion, gives additional gratification. Son to the gallant Chief who stood forth conspicuous amongst the foremost champions of loyalty, he has been nurtured in the principles of honour and of justice, on which the welfare of civilised society depends; and having devoted the first years of his manhood to the support of the same great cause, in which the energy of the British nation has been so gloriously exerted, he must have learned to form a just estimate of the character of that people to whose interests his own are now inseparably united, and to value as they deserve, the Constitution and the Laws by which that character has been formed.

On the events by which that character has been tried, since we had the honour of presenting our congratulations to your Royal Highness on the restoration of the independence of Europe, and on
