

uphold and hand down uninjured to posterity our admired Constitution.

Dated, Cork, 13th February 1817.

[Transmitted by His Excellency the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, and presented by Viscount Sidmouth.]

To His Royal Highness the PRINCE REGENT,
&c. &c. &c.

WE, the undersigned, His Majesty's most loyal and attached subjects, the Protestant and Roman Catholic Inhabitants of the Manor and Lordship of Burrishoole, in the County of Mayo, beg leave, in the most humble manner, to offer to your Royal Highness our heartfelt congratulations on your late providential escape from the attacks which were directed by the disloyal against your Person, on your return from executing the Royal functions in opening the present Session of Parliament.

We are most anxious to testify the abhorrence felt by us of the principles which occasioned so gross an insult to be offered to your Royal Highness, and in the most earnest manner do declare ourselves ready to rally round the Throne, and to make a willing sacrifice of our lives and fortunes in defence of your Person and its dignities.

We moreover beg your Royal Highness to believe, that we are equally anxious to oppose and defeat the attempts which are now daily making by the malevolent to delude the unthinking multitude, and to overthrow that proud bulwark of real liberty, the British Constitution.

We trust that the zeal of your Royal Highness's servants will enable the powerful arm of justice to fall heavy on the infamous authors of so foul a deed.

[Signed by 117 Protestants.]

We, the freeholders of Achill and Ballycroy, amounting in the aggregate, as to population, to the number of four thousand persons, Roman Catholics, do authorise our landlord, Sir Neal O'Donel, Baronet, to affix his signature to the foregoing Address for us individually and collectively, the whole earnestly and respectfully requesting and praying the Right Honourable Robert Peel to present this our Address to His Excellency the Lord Lieutenant, as the best possible proof of their attachment and devotion to the Constitution in Church and State, at the same time humbly entreating that this our respectful Address be forwarded by His Excellency, and by him laid at the foot of the Throne.

Neal O'Donel.

To His Royal Highness George Prince of Wales, REGENT of the United Kingdom of Great and Ireland.

May it please your Royal Highness,

WE, the Noblemen, Freeholders, Justices of the Peace and Commissioners of Supply of the County of Berwick, beg to approach your Royal Highness, with our warmest congratulations on your preservation from the imminent danger with which your Royal Person was lately threatened, while your Royal Highness was engaged in one of the most important functions of your exalted station.

While we deeply lament the extent to which the detestable intrigues of a few factious men have been successful in deluding a portion of the subjects of this kingdom, we cordially participate in the satisfaction every loyal mind derives from the manifestation of firm attachment to your Royal Highness's Person and Government, which the late occasion has so strongly called forth in every part of this realm; combined with the feeling of abhorrence universally prevailing towards those traitorous persons, who, availing themselves of a time of temporary and unavoidable difficulty, are, under the specious pretext of reform, diffusing their deadly poison, and seeking to sap the foundation of the Constitution, under which this great country has so gloriously prospered.

We beg to assure your Royal Highness, that we renew, with cordial satisfaction, the pledge of these sentiments. We are not insensible of the pressure which has for a time clouded our national prosperity, but our confidence is unshaken in the wisdom and energy of your Royal Highness's Councils, and in the splendid example afforded by the personal sacrifice which your Royal Highness has been lately pleased to make, we have a gratifying proof of your desire, in conjunction with the Parliament, to meet the exigency of the times, by limiting the public expenditure within the narrowest bounds compatible with the due exercise of the vital powers of the State.

We indulge the fullest hope that this country, which has come forth from the late long and arduous contest so transcendent in power and glory, will, during peace, maintain the high station it has attained. We, however, strongly feel, that under Providence, this result can only follow the steadfast maintenance of public order, the firm administration of the existing laws of the land, and by the inviolable preservation of a Constitution, which is the admiration of surrounding States, and under the influence of which Great Britain seems to have reached the highest point of human glory.

With this noble fabric, the name of your Royal Highness's illustrious Family is inseparably connected, and we beg to convey the expression of our ardent wish that your Royal Highness and your descendants, enthroned in the affections of a grateful people, may long sway the sceptre of this realm with continued prosperity.

Signed in our name and by our appointment, by the Earl of Home, Lord-Lieutenant of the county, Preses of the meeting, at Greenlaw, the 21st of February 1817.

Home, Preses.

[Transmitted by the Earl of Home, and presented by Viscount Sidmouth.]

To His Royal Highness the PRINCE REGENT.

The humble address of the Magistrates and Town Council of the Royal Burgh of Dingwall, in Council assembled.
